Huge Welcome for Team Canada

Times News Services

As Canadians from coast-to-coast rejoiced Thursday over Canada's final-game win and ultimate series victory in the unofficial world series of hockey Prime Minister Trudeau announced in Ottawa that the country will lay on a welcome-home reception for Team Canada to rival VE-Day celebrations.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said in his telegram: "Congratulations. Magnifique. Your great team effort is an inspiring example to your country. Canadians are proud of you — the best hockey team in the world."

Outside the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, about 35 boisterous hockey fans waved Canadian flags and shouted "Esposito for Pope" and "Esposito for prime minister," then shook hands with embassy staff who ventured out into the crowd.

In St. John's, Nfld., one elementary school had pupils watching the game as part of their lesson.

Nurses reported in one hospital that radios were at a premium as all but the most seriously ill tuned in.

Most of the students in Toronto schools chose to watch the game after Ontario Education Minister Thomas Wells told school administrators Wednesday they were free to cancel classes if students wanted to watch the game.

Work even stopped on the Soviet freighter Almetyevsk in Toronto harbor. Captain Alexander Lokrovnikov gave his 41-man crew time off to watch the game on the ship's television.

"Yes, two hours off today," he said. "Very special."

In Stratford, Ont., actor William Hutt was performing as King Lear in the storm scene, one of the most dramatic in Shakespeare's play.

With lightning flashing and thunder pealing through the Festival Theatre, Hutt finished his speech before a

Bus Service Expansion Announced

Early expansion of the bus systems in both Victoria and Vancouver will be the first stage of a long-term effort by the government to handle transportation needs, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said today.

Lorimer told a press conference the cabinet has agreed, following a preliminary report from him, "that the time has come to make a choice between the automobile and transit."

Lorimer said the government has decided against building a third crossing of Burrard Inlet in Vancouver, to help prevent the lower mainland urban centre from being overrun with freeways and cars.

A "beefing up" of the bus system will be followed by "planning for the long-term transportation needs of the modern, growing urban centres."

He gave no details of what the short-term expansion of bus systems would entail, or the study of transit systems.

But he said he is open to discussions with local and regional governments, and agreed it might be feasible to make regional governments the owners of the bus system.

Lorimer's statement was welcomed by Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, which suggested to the Social Credit government some months ago that the region take over the B.C. Hydro with the help of government subsidies.

The offer never received any formal acknowledgment, and Curtis said today: "Now I'm hopeful that we have only one way to go — and that's ahead."

"I know there will be municipal and regional people ready, willing and quite able to discuss transit in a constructive, positive sense with the new minister."

However, Curtis said he fully appreciated the minister had a great deal on his plate and would be able to produce no quick solutions.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young said the decision sounded as though the city could now move into rapid transit.

MARCOS FIRES CIVIL SERVICE

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos today ordered the entire civil service corps of about half a million, including his cabinet, to submit their resignations no later than Oct. 15 in a sweeping effort to reform Philippine bureaucracy.

Marcos, who imposed martial law last Friday, said the only exceptions to his order were members of the Supreme Court, the auditor-general's office, the Court of Appeals and other constitutional officers.

The president moved first on the bureau of customs and bureau of internal revenue, both considered to be among the most graft-ridden in the government. Among those already fired, the president said, were 2,000 officers and men from the bureau of customs and 192 from the bureau of internal revenue, including a regional director.

Lewis Seeks Probe on CDC 'Family Ties'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judicial inquiry into alleged conflicts of interest within the government's Canada Development Corp. was demanded here Thursday by New Democratic Party leader David Lewis.

His call for an investigation followed a news report that one of the CDC directors, Douglas N. Kendall, is father of the president of a company in which the government corporation has invested $4.5 million.

Until last March — before the CDC purchase was made — Kendall was also a director of the company, Venturetek International Ltd., of Toronto. His son, Jeremy Kendall, is president of the holding company which specializes in high-risk investments.

The CDC was created two years ago by Parliament under a board of directors, mostly businessmen, who were to supervise the investment of both private and public money into Canadian enterprises. The $4.5 million purchase of Venturetek stock gives the CDC 35 per cent ownership.

The senior Kendall is still president of one of Venturetek's major holdings, Hermes Electronics of Halifax.

NDP researchers armed with an arsenal of statistical ammunition went to work soon after the report of the Venturetek deal appeared in a Toronto newspaper.

"With this development, the time has come to take a very close look at the links, or should I say chains, that bind government and big business together," said Lewis.

Besides Kendall, the New Democrat leader called a roll of five CDC directors, who Mr. Lewis alleges, are examples of "specific cases of conflict of interest."

Lewis also charged two members of the industrial incentive advisory board with conflict-of-interest for having senior positions with firms receiving grants.

They are:

—E. Kendall Cork, vice-president of Noranda Mines Ltd., which has been offered $3,522,000 in DREE grants and whose subsidiary, Gaspe Copper Mines, got $3,267,000.

—J. B. Estey, executive vice-president of National Sea Products Ltd., recipient of DREE grants worth $3,689,331.

Lewis also said M. W. MacKenzie, president of the government-owned Multiplex Corp. of New Brunswick, is in a conflict situation because he

JAIL BREAK SQUAD SET

OTTAWA (CP) — The solicitor-general's department is moving ahead with plans to set up a new security system that will include special squads inside Canada's 10 federal prisons to "smoke out and analyse" escape rumors.

The move follows a rash of prison breakouts in the last several months and a special study on security made by the RCMP and penitentiary officials.

Central to the plan are the "special security squads" that will work inside jails attempting to uncover and prevent break-outs.

NEWS BRIEFS

Hijacker Given Life Sentence

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Frederick William Hahneman was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday for hijacking a jetliner and bailing out over Honduras with $303,000 in ransom. U.S. District Court Judge Oren Lewis said he gave Hahneman the maximum sentence under the federal air piracy law to present an example to would-be hijackers.

Pickets Stop Work

MACKENZIE (CP) — Construction of a new British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. pulp mill was halted today when construction workers refused to cross picket lines set up by the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

TORONTO (UPI) — The next Commonwealth conference will likely take place in Canada in 1973, the first time the conference has ever been held here, Prime Minister Trudeau announced today.

World Bank 'Tool'

WASHINGTON (WP) — In the strongest possible terms, the government of Chile denounced the World Bank Thursday as a tool of the United States, charging that loans have been suspended because of Chile's nationalization of U.S. copper interests.

Taiwan Severs Ties With Japan

Times News Services

Taiwan broke off diplomatic relations with Japan tonight as Japan and China formally announced they had established diplomatic ties after 35 years of hostilities.

A foreign ministry spokesman in Taipei labelled Japan's recognition of Peking a "perfidious action" and other sources said the Taiwan government plans to boycott Japanese imports for three months in retaliation.

The foreign ministry statement said Japan must assume full responsibility for the rupture of the ties and any consequences which may arise.

In a six-point joint communique, issued by Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, Japan recognized Peking as "the sole, legal government of China."

The Chinese reaffirmed that Taiwan is an "inalienable part" of their territory. Japan said it "fully understands and respects this stand of the government of China."

It also was decided they would hold negotiations for other agreements on trade, navigation, aviation, fishery and other areas.

Sources close to the foreign ministry said Taiwan authorities had expected Japan to not go any further than Canada and other countries who had merely stated that they "take note" of China's claim of sovereignty over the Nationalist Chinese-held island bastion.

The communique said "the abnormal state of affairs which has hitherto existed between the People's Republic of China and Japan is declared terminated on the date of publication of this statement."

The two governments also agreed to establish "durable relations of peace and friendship."

DEATH KISS BRINGS JAIL

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man was convicted Thursday of assault causing bodily harm in the death of a woman he struck when she bit his lip during a kiss.

Herman Fries was sentenced to nine months.

The woman, Leone Gail Merry, suffered a broken jaw when she was struck, but the court was told she died as a result of a rupture of a faulty vein in her brain.

Pathologist Dr. Thomas R. Harmon said an autopsy showed she had an aneurism, or weak spot, in the vein, a condition she had had since birth. He said the aneurism could have ruptured at any time in her life.

Bomb Explodes In Jerusalem

Times News Services

JERUSALEM — A time bomb police said was planted by Arab guerrillas exploded in a crowded Jerusalem supermarket today and wounded three persons, one of them the wife of a Venezuelan diplomat.

It was the first bombing in the Holy City in two years and police said they suspected Arab guerrillas were behind the incident. A number of Arabs in the neighborhood were immediately detained for questioning.

All three women — Margarita de Ochoa, wife of the second secretary of the Venezuelan embassy, Rina Schwartz of the United States and Israeli student Dina Cohen — were released from hospital after receiving treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

The supermarket was crowded at the time of the explosion, with the normal pre-Sabbath crowds swelled by people buying for the last day of the Jewish festival of Tabernacles.

It was the scene of a previous guerrilla attack three days ago when two persons were killed.

Meanwhile, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat urged Palestinian leaders to form a government in exile and promised Egypt's immediate recognition for it.

Speaking to a Cairo rally marking the second anniversary of the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser, Sadat also reiterated his rejection of an interim peace settlement and direct negotiations with Israel. He indicated that Egypt's strained relations with the Soviet Union may be improving.

PoWs 'Recaptured' on Return

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three prisoners of war released by North Vietnam returned to the U.S. Thursday night and were whisked away to military hospitals, angering the anti-war activists who escorted them to freedom.

"What you just witnessed is a recapture scene, replacing one incarceration with another," Mrs. Cora Weiss, one of those who helped arrange the release of the three pilots, told newsmen. The anti-war group accused the Pentagon of jeopardizing future PoW releases by assuming immediate control of the men. The Pentagon declined to comment on the charges.

Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, 34, of Valdosta, Ga., was flown by medical evacuation jet to the U.S. air force hospital at Maxwell air force base in Montgomery, Ala.

Navy Lieut. Norris A. Charles, 27, of San Diego, Calif., was taken to a hotel near John F. Kennedy Airport for a family reunion, then flown to the Balboa naval hospital in San Diego.

The three men, wearing new uniforms they had donned on the flight from Copenhagen, descended from the rear door of the giant Scandinavian Air System (SAS) Boeing 747 looking fit but showing signs of stress.

Waiting relatives rushed to them, hugging and kissing them in an emotional reunion.

Elias, the only one of the three who spoke into a bank of microphones, said: "I would like to say I am happy to be home again and I am thinking about other people not yet home." His wife said, "I couldn't be happier."

Charles did not make any formal statement but told a reporter for a network of black radio stations that he was furious over the military's handling of their arrival. Charles, who was shot down over North Vietnam last December, was quoted as saying he had to "fight" before he was able to see his relatives awaiting him outside the plane.

The anti-war activists said Elias had asked to go to a hospital for a checkup, but Charles and Gartley had objected, maintaining they were in excellent health and did not require hospital care.

Smith Quits Hospital Board

Donald Smith, first vice-president of the Victoria General Hospital board, resigned Thursday night because he will be spending much of his future time out of the province.

Smith, retired vice-president of Ocean Cement Ltd., told the board he could not do justice to the position under the circumstances and his resignation was accepted with regret.

In other business at the closed meeting, the board voted unanimously to readmit the press to future meetings. The board has closed its previous meeting as well during the height of a controversy over resignation of Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, the hospital's executive director.

Directors agreed to continue the hospital's support of a methadone clinic operated by Dr. Jim Laing. The hospital has been supplying space and some volunteer help over weekends for the daily distribution of methadone for heroin addicts.

The board decided to undertake an intensive study of the Hastings Report after concluding it will have far-reaching implications on future delivery of health care.

The federally-financed report on the future of community health centres in Canada carries the name of its director, Dr. John Hastings, professor of health administration at the University of Toronto.

It proposes how health centres might be established and the national health care delivery system modified in an effort to control rapidly climbing costs.

UVic Student Clubs Go on Display

University of Victoria's student clubs put on displays today in the Student Union Building as part of the seventh annual Clubs Day sponsored by the Alma Mater Society.

Organizations ranging from the Transcendential Meditionists to the Skin Divers set up exhibits.

Highlight of the day was a jump by four parachutists from the UVic Skydiving Club to the central campus quad at 12:30 p.m.

packed house of more than 2,000 students.

Then he paused and announced the final score of the game.

Pandemonium broke loose in the theatre and to top it off, a festival employee said, "they didn't even turn off the thunder."

In the tiny western Ontario village of Lucknow, Mrs. Evelyn Henderson commented: "When Paul scored that goal it was like an atom bomb going off.

"It was the most exciting moment for me in Paul's hockey career, and I'm certain it was for him, too," said the mother of the Toronto Maple Leaf winger who scored the winning goal with 34 seconds remaining in the game.

"I'll celebrate with a cup of tea," Mrs. Henderson replied when asked how she planned to mark the occasion.

"But you better believe we are all so very proud of Paul. His father certainly would have been proud of him today — he was so interested in hockey and Paul's career."

Mr. Henderson died in 1968.

Meanwhile, Premier Frank Moores has invited all members of Team Canada to spend a week's holiday in Newfoundland at the provincial government's expense.

However, in Moscow, raindrops were falling and Red Square was almost deserted early today.

One Canadian observer contradicted reports of a big celebration in the square, as the vanguard of Canadian fans and Team Canada prepared for an early departure.

"Why should there be a celebration?" he asked facetiously. "The Russians lost.

and Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford were not available for comment.

Lorimer said neither the regional governments nor Ottawa have yet been informed of the NDP government's decision with regard to the third crossing.

But of Ottawa's involvement, Lorimer said: "They may may want to proceed on their own, but I doubt it."

To open up the central Vancouver area to more cars by constructing a new crossing would leave governments with "no way of getting rid of them" Lorimer said.

"There has to be a decision made whether you want the cities covered with freeways," or develope a mass transit system.

The third crossing, he said, would be a "fatal step" towards giving it to the automobile.

Lorimer said in response to a question that the $27 million Burrard Inlet Fund set up by the previous government for the crossing "will be available for the transit projects."

The minister, in response to other questions, said Victoria's transit needs will be studied but added that "the pressure is on the lower mainland at the moment."

Big GOP Slush Fund Used for Spying

By CARL BERNSTEIN and BOB WOODWARD
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — John Mitchell, while serving as U.S. attorney-general, personally controlled a secret Republican fund that was used to gather information about the Democrats.

Beginning in the spring of 1971, almost a year before he left the justice department to become President Nixon's campaign manager, Mitchell personally approved withdrawals from the fund, according to reliable sources involved in the Watergate investigation.

Those sources have provided almost identical, detailed accounts of Mitchell's role as comptroller of the secret intelligence fund and its fluctuating $350,000-$700,000 balance.

The only record of the fund — a single sheet of lined ledger paper listing the names of about 15 persons who received payment and how much each received — was destroyed by Nixon campaign officials after June 17 break-in at Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate Hotel here, investigators were told.

Four persons other than Mitchell later were allowed to approve payments from the fund, it was learned.

Two of them were identified as former secretary of commerce Maurice Stans, now finance chairman of the president's campaign, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, interim manager of the Nixon campaign prior to Mitchell, and now a deputy director of the campaign.

The other two, according to the souces, are a high White House official now involved in the campaign and a campaign aide outside of Washington.

The sources of the Post's information on the secret fund, and its relationship to Mitchell and other campaign officials, include law enforcement officers and persons on the staff of the Committee for the re-election of the president.

Asked to comment on the report, a spokesman for the committee, Powell Moore, said: "I think your sources are bad: They're providing misinformation. We're not going to comment beyond that."

Asked if the committee was therefore denying the contents of the story, Moore responded: "We're just not going to comment."

It has been established, however, that G. Gordon Liddy, the former Nixon committee finance counsel who was one of seven men indicted in the Watergate case, withdrew well in excess of $50,000 in cash from the fund, the sources said.

The fund, which was kept in a safe in Stans' office, primarily consisted of cash contributions made to the Nixon campaign over an 18-month period, according to sources.

Although the only record of the fund was destroyed, investigators were able to reconstruct at least a partial list of recipients.

Lawson Sues Chabot

Vancouver Senator Ed Lawson has initiated legal proceedings against former Social Credit Labor Minister James Chabot for alleged "disparaging remarks" during the recent provincial election campgian.

The liberal-appointed senator claimed in Supreme Court in Vancouver that Chabot made remarks calculated to disparage Lawson in his office as a senator, as a member of the Joint Council of Teamsters and as a trade unionist.

is former chairman of Chemcell Ltd., which has had DREE grants worth $497,898.

Lewis also replied to a statement by J. V. Clyne, chief executive officer of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., denying the firm is a "corporate welfare bum" as Lewis has designated corporations he claims are not paying their fair share of government expenses as a result of write-offs and incentive grants.

The NDP leader said the profit figure claimed by the company is $302 million less than the figure claimed by the NDP because the company subtracts depletion allowances and other accounting charges which do not accurately reflect true expenses.

The company's claim of $226 million in taxes includes taxes on sales of property, not just income tax, said Lewis.

Lewis's much publicized campaign tactic of disclosing "corporate welfare bums" drew the ire Wednesday of Minister of State Pat Mahoney campaigning at Quesnel Wednesday who said federal New Democratic Party policies under leader Lewis would wipe out millions of Canadian jobs.

Mahoney said "Mr. Lewis's policies would turn northern and Western Canada into an economic desert and it wouldn't do much for the Golden Horseshoe in Ontario either."

"Once you accept the basic socialist doctrine that the state can run things better than the private sector it is pretty easy to accept the thesis that incentives to private enterprise are a rip off." he said.

Also on the campaign trail Prime Minister Trudeau made a vigorous defence of his government's foreign policy in a speech in Toronto saying Canada has achieved independence without alienating anyone and gained new respect in the world as an initiator rather than as imitator.

Far from seeing foreign affairs as they used to, as a somewhat academic exercise, Canadians are realizing there can be tangible benefits for individuals as a result of such policies, Trudeau said.

The initiative to establish full diplomatic relations with Communist China besides starting "a train of events which has taken the Chinese government into the United Nations and taken President Nixon to Peking," means Canada has "a head start of immense value in developing relations of all kinds with China."

Meanwhile, in Timmins, Ont., Social Credit leader Real Caouette attacked the federal welfare system and difficulties faced by provinces in getting federal funds.

Caouette said the welfare system is an "encouragement to laziness, deception and fraud."

He said a Social Credit government would replace the existing welfare system with guaranteed incomes of $1,200 per year for a single person and $2,400 for a married couple.

the weather

A westerly flow from the Pacific is bringing milder air to all sections of the province today. Several weather systems embedded in this westerly flow will cross the north coast and move into the central interior and Cariboo regions today and on Saturday. These will bring extensive cloud and periods of rain to the more northerly portions of the forecast districts both today and Saturday where as the south coast and southern interior regions will experience a considerable amount of sunshine today. Mainly cloudy skies are forecast for Saturday however. Afternoon temperatures will be some five to 10 degrees milder today, a welcome change to the record-breaking cool spell of the past 10 days.

Bird Report Good Deal

Quick now, when was the last time you bought something and found that the price had gone down?

While you're mulling that one over in your mind let me tell you about such a bargain I recently came across. It was the 1971 Annual Bird Report for Southern Vancouver Island.

Published by the Victoria Natural History Society, the Annual Bird Report is a product of the Records Committee of that august group. With society president Dr. J. B. Tatum at the helm, the Records Committee contains some of the best there is to offer among this island's bird watchers.

Denman Island is represented by Walter Fitzpatrick; Duncan by John Comer and Victoria by A. R. Davidson, Ron Satterfield and David Stirling.

Now in its second official year, the Annual Bird Report was born of a need to bring system and order to the chaos of recording bird sightings that existed before 1969. This year's production contains information on more than 230 kinds of birds seen in the area east of a line drawn between Ladysmith and Sooke and is a compendium of the observations of nearly 50 bird-watchers.

While no new birds were marked up for either the province or Canada, the 1971 Annual Bird Report still contains a goodly portion of exciting events from the birder's point of view.

For example, the spring of 1971 saw John Comer and the Duncan naturalists making birding news with their discovery of a Green Heron's nest. These little herons had been showing up off and on near Duncan in recent years and there were suspicions that the birds were nesting.

Now it's official. The nest has been found and a new breeding bird goes into the books for Vancouver Island.

September saw another event of note — this time in Victoria, Clover Point to be exact — when Ron Satterfield recorded hundreds of Sooty Shearwaters passing the point. In one half-hour period, he chalked up 258 of these dark, slender-winged, gull-like birds from the southern hemisphere — some of them passing right over the sewer outlet.

Sooty Shearwaters are wanderers of the great oceans, when they're not at home in their nesting grounds. They regularly occur as far north as the Aleutians in the Pacific and Labrador on the Atlantic side. But they're seldom seen near land.

The Annual Bird Report also reveals that 1971 did little to untangle the Common Teal — Green-winged Teal problem. The Common Teal, a sub-Arctic bird that breeds from Iceland to the Aleutians, bears a striking resemblance to our familiar Green-winged Teal.

To confuse the issue even more, the two species apparently interbreed successfully, producing birds with a bewildering combination of field marks from both species. A mixture of pure Common Teal, as well as hybrids, turned up often enough in the Victoria area last year to keep the pot boiling on the question of when is a Common Teal not a Common Teal.

While glaucious-winged gulls are seldom news in Victoria — they're our most common gull — Jeremy Tatum's propensity for reading the numbers (with a telescope) on the aluminum leg bands some of them wear, occasionally produces surprises. Last year it was a bird seen at Clover Point in February that had been banded in Cordova, Alaska, the previous July.

An added bonus in the 1971 Annual Bird Report is a brief summary of the results of a 7-year study of pheasant populations on Saanich peninsula by Rory Finegan of the Wildlife Branch.

Oh yes, before I forget, the Annual Bird Report is going for $1.80 this year — fifteen cents below last year's price. If you want a copy 'phone Jeremy Tatum at 592-1332. Better still, send him the money — the price includes sales tax and postage — at 416—3187 Shelbourne.

It'll be money well spent.

Sharing a Little

There is something heartwarming in the accounts of the Uganda refugees' arrival in Montreal yesterday. The reception given the first contingent — with others to follow over the next few days— and the grateful appreciation of the immigrant Asian families, reinforce the belief that the federal government did the right thing in opening Canada's doors to them.

As Mr. Bryce Mackasey put it: "I never realized it could be such an enriching job to be minister of immigration."

The approximately 5,000 newcomers will be distributed across Canada in various cities, and their numbers will be negligible among Canada's 23 million residents. Fears that they will add to the unemployment problem are not likely to be realized. Many will take jobs which do not appeal to Canadians, others in the professions or with various forms of training and experience, should soon make places for themselves in our economy.

The ruthlessness of their eviction from the land in which they were born is on a par with many notorious expulsions in the world's history. They were permitted to take very little with them, and even then, according to some, they were robbed by Ugandan soldiers while on the way to airports. It would have been a black mark against us if Canada could not have found room for a relatively small number of such unfortunates.

Now that the immigration plan is under way, Canadians should complete it on an individual basis by giving a friendly welcome to the newcomers where they are met. It's a matter of practising what we preach.

Lowering the Air Fares

Announcement in Washington of the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board decision to establish a low-cost fare schedule for both domestic and international air routes marks an expansion of the breakthrough indicated earlier by individual concerns seeking authority to operate transatlantic flights for charges of less than $100 one way.

This is presumably a response to the conflict which has occurred between scheduled lines, tied to higher charges, and charter flights which have been absorbing a great deal of the business on which major lines depended for profit margins.

To the travelling public, the reduction will come not only as a financial boon, but as an avenue by which to escape from the maze of technicalities and misrepresentations which earlier charter rules have created. Obviously the low-cost sponsors will have to make a profit to maintain their operations. But it is scarcely likely that an agency such as the Civil Aeronautics Board would countenance a major reduction in charges if they did not appear justifiable.

No economies should be allowed to lower the safety factors essential to air travel, but if various frills can be trimmed away for those who wish to forego the conventional extra amenities of air transport, then the logic of such trimming is clear.

The board explains that it is acting in response to "the public need for more widely available low-cost air transportation." It also states that its action is being taken independently of other governments. Under existing circumstances it seems inevitable that Canada will follow the Washington lead, at least on the transatlantic route. Who, anxious to save money, will fly to London from Montreal at existing rates if a substantially lower-cost flight is available across the border?

While Thousands Cheer

The sober realization, from one end of Canada to the other, that the Russian hockey team was going to be a tough one to beat made the final victory of the Canadian team all the sweeter. The Soviet effort was of a calibre that could have changed the overall standing at any time, and only the most partisan of Canadian fans would fail to agree with the Russian assistant coach that luck played at least some part in Canada's 4-3 series victory, with one tie.

That fact does not detract from the Canadian achievement, however. The shock that went through the country when the super-star NHL players lost the first game by 7 to 3 resulted in a new respect for the Soviet team, and the Russians continued to earn this throughout the series, win or lose.

Despite some tense incidents when roughness on the ice and dissatisfaction with the refereeing brought tempers to the boil, the net result of the long-awaited series has been beneficial. A good contact has been made with the Russians, which should result in further meetings, on the ice or elsewhere. And the many anxious moments, leading to eventual victory, renewed a bond among Canadians from coast to coast. We proved once again — as we do from time to time — that deep down there really is a Canadianism that pulls the nation together when common interests inspire it.

Tidy Man

The chairman of the Rhodesian Front Party, Mr. Desmond Frost, has come out with a classic comment on the relationship between government and the press. This spokesman for the ruling party in Rhodesia urges that the press of his country be nationalized, because "their basic intention is the downfall of our present government."

The only meaning to be read into Mr. Frost's assertion, of course, is that the government should take over the newspapers and make sure that they will change their tune and support the present regime.

Most dictatorial regimes are a little more roundabout in their approach when they get ready to control the press. Mr. Frost makes it pretty clear: become a mouthpiece of the government or get ready to be taken over. No wonder the Rhodesian government doesn't want too many native black voters.

JAMES RESTON

Planning a Democratic Miracle

WASHINGTON — No President in over 100 years has ever won a national election by as large a margin as Richard Nixon now holds over George McGovern in the polls, yet Gary Hart, McGovern's 33-year-old national campaign director still thinks his man can win.

He concedes that the odds look bad now — 34 points behind (63 to 29 per cent of those polled). Lyndon Johnson's margin over Barry Goldwater in the popular vote in 1964 was 61.1 to 38.5, Franklin Roosevelt's biggest victory over Alf Landon in 1936 was 60.8 to 36.5, and Warren Harding's percentage over James M. Cox in 1920 was 60.3 to 34.1.

These one-sided polls and the constant predictions in the press of a landslide Nixon victory are in themselves hurting McGovern, Hart says, particularly with campaign contributors and also with voters who merely want to be on the winning side.

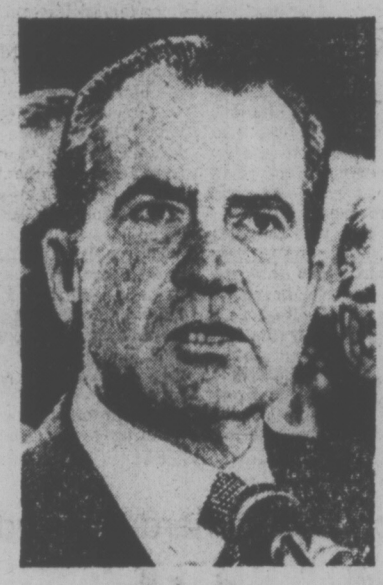
"But we may see something wholly new this time," he adds. "McGovern losing the popular vote and actually winning the electoral vote and the election."

Objectives Recognized

The young campaign director is not very specific about how he hopes to bring about this miracle, but at least he knows what McGovern has to do and where the young McGovern organizers have to concentrate their effort.

It takes 270 electoral votes to win, and McGovern has to take all the states Hubert Humphrey carried in 1968 and all the close ones he lost. This means the thirteen Humphrey states — Connecticut, Hawaii, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington, and West Virginia plus the District of Columbia. These gave Humphrey 191 electoral votes in 1968 and would give McGovern 213 under the new allocation of electoral votes in 1972. But in addition, he would have to add California, 45 electoral votes, and either New Jersey's 17, Ohio's 25, or Illinois' 26.

Of course, McGovern keeps saying that he's not going to concede the loss of any state, but Hart, who has to put the party's limited or non-existent funds where they will do the most good, is obviously concentrating on these states. For example, he notes that there are now over 700 McGovern headquarters in the state of Illinois alone.



RICHARD NIXON
... mile high, inch deep

The top McGovern advisers are remarkably cool under the circumstances. They have lived so long with adversity in this endless campaign that the polls and the internal staff difficulties and the bad press don't seem to throw them. Hart seldom talks about the themes of the campaign, but about the restlessness in the country and the kind of organization that will finally organize the latent strength of the Democrats and independents by November.

What is particularly surprising about the latest Harris survey is that it shows the President ahead among labor union voters, 56-34 per cent, among Catholics 62-27 per cent, and among voters making $10,000 a year and more by 70-23 per cent.

Still, Hart's assumption is that none of these figures can measure the organization he and his colleagues are putting together in the big states, and the more the Republicans talk about winning by a landslide and the more they scatter their efforts in all fifty states, the more confident he is that by organizing and concentrating on the areas of maximum Democratic strength the miracle can be achieved.

Strategic Weakness

The weakness in this strategy, of course, is that the Republicans don't have to scatter their efforts over all the states, but can probably keep McGovern from winning, even if Hart's theories are right, by making a special effort in Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas, which should be Nixon country in 1972.

In the last few days, McGovern, with the aid of Sen. Edward Kennedy, has been getting larger crowds and a more enthusiastic response. Hart explains that, to get the most out of the limited resources, they have been picking major areas where the appearance of the candidate assures a lot of free television time in very populous areas. This does not show up on a national basis, he says but it is effective if you have an airplane and can hit two or three large electoral states in a single day.

His view is that Nixon's popularity "is a mile wide and an inch deep," and that what looks pretty bleak in the polls today will look quite different at the end of another month.

ART STOTT

Which Is the Real Living?

It had seemed that our September at the lake would be the usual renewal of a long-standing love-affair. What we call Indian summer came wooingly, a golden light filtering through the trees from a lowering sun in the afternoon, a tang in the air at dusk, and night with a sky full of stars.

Except at the weekend, the busy traffic of speedboats and water skiers had slackened off. The wild creatures began to return. In the morning a mink patrolled his feeding line, lifting a cautious head over the stones of our small jetty, sensing the air and then slipping back into the water to swim sinuously to the small wharf.

Natives' Return

When he had gone, a maturing brood of widgeon cruised in, cadging bread scraps and gaining confidence to eat out of the donor's hand. Overhead a hawk wheeled lazily. The ravens, raucous intruders in other years, withdrew, scavenging elsewhere. From the deeper woods came the rachet call of a Stellar Jay, forecasting the onset of fall. Cheeky, the squirrel, successor to a long line of Cheekies since the children were young, moved quietly about his business, running the branch paths of the trees, his characteristic scolding muted.

Then, after a distant slash fire had dulled the sky and given a bronze sheen to the still water at evening, came the rain — sheets of it. The drum roll of the downpour was continuous on the roof. The paths ran little rivulets. The thirsty forest duff turned spongy. The trees dripped, cascades fell from the eaves.

Dull days followed, dispiriting. Indoor chores became boring. Only the cheerful glow of an open fire, fed from a shrinking woodpile, and light reading broke the monotony.

Yet there was a restfulness even to the wet grayness — a sort of respiration of the land, inhaling, relaxing, sighing out each slow breath.

The problems of living were simple — bringing in fuel, fighting off mild bouts of cabin fever, checking a flashing where a leak developed, keeping the pump in order, boarding over a draught, and bringing in more fuel. A man grows used to the life, regaining appreciation for the simplicities — a sustaining meal, a warm bed at night, the comfort of the hearth, a human quiet that needs little or no conversation, no greater worries than the danger to visiting widgeon or a visiting mink, or the possibility that harsher winter may bring down trees that have lost their vitality. Perhaps the mind sleeps.

Back on the Breadline

Return to the city destroys the inoffensive isolationism. It becomes important to bring the town lot back into shape, cutting grass, tidying shrubs, worrying about the garbage can that has rusted out — and regaining contact with the malevolent flood of disaster in the news. The affairs of men press down, the inhumanities, the obligations cheerfully forgotten beside the lake, the sweep of events, local, national, international, man-made triumph and disaster, adjustments to the inevitable, the prosaic task of earning the daily bread.

A man, one day back at work from the unregimented, undemanding vacation of the lakeshore, where little is more provoking than the trout's loss of appetite, wonders which of the two courses is living — the job and the town or the country and the simplification of demands.

Which Is Real?

An old fantasy comes to mind of the man who slept and dreamed he was a butterfly, flitting from flower to flower. Then he woke and believed he was a man dreaming he was a butterfly — or was he a butterfly that had fallen asleep and later dreamed he was a man?

Is the simple life of the lake real living? Or is the essence of living the job, the urban responsibilities and the opportunity to break away from it occasionally at the lake?

September indicates there is no perfection in the two alternatives, providing the drab mist of doubts in the curtain of rain that dropped over the little bay last week. But there is still some virtue in the simplicities and a recognition of the many futilities busy man manufactures.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Sporting?

I am writing in response to an article in your sports section by Barry Thornton. The article is the first in a three-part series by this writer concerning his hunting trip in Alaska. I read the first article but have no intention of following through on the next two.

In an age when many species, including the big horn sheep, face extinction, it seems to me an incredible stupidity that men should still be hunting down the few remaining examples of wild life. The writers of hunting columns are so out of touch with the times and with the mood of the people that they must still believe that "masculinity" resides in the destruction of life — and that people want to hear about it and cheer their courage.

The real courage would be in struggling with the issues of the meaningful preservation of life—not in lugging technical machinery up a mountainside in order to blast life out of a ram.

The media must take a lead in changing the priorities and value judgments of people who still believe that there is a place for the "sporting" destruction of wild life. Neither we — nor the big horn sheep — have much time left.—Dr. Maurren Bendick, R.R. 2, Ganges, B.C.

'Outdoors' Is Out

I am writing in reference to the column "Outdoors" by Barry Thornton, September 21, 1972. The fact that he requires three paragrapns to tell us he gets smoker's cough in the Alps and has a new "light, aluminum inexpensive camera rifle mount" indicates poor writing. The fact that he apparently thinks he is engaged in a drama of "noble man and noble nature" indicates poor intelligence.

Being in the media, Mr. Thornton should surely have a better grasp of the human and natural environmental conditions existent today. Yet he presents us with a compelling tale that he is getting rained upon while he sets up equipment enabling him to participate in the extinction of a species.

In the suspicion that Mr. Thornton's stupidity is countenanced by the Times staff, I am seriously considering cancelling my subscription. — Sharon McCollough, Rural Route No. 2, Ganges, B.C.

The Price

On October 22nd, Hungarians across the nation will honor the memory of the Hungarian Freedom Fighters who, in 1956, rose up some 300,000 strong and tried to throw off the yoke of their Communist oppression. Not so strangely, the subversion of the democratic system was observed in Hungary as far back as the 1948 elections, when Hungarian Communists and various socialist parties formed a coalition designed to gain control of the country "democratically". Once in power, it banned all opposition and quickly emerged as a puppet of the U.S.S.R. — as was witnessed when Soviet tanks and troops rolled into Hungary to put down the uprising.

Canadians would be wise to recognize this pattern of "Communism by deceit" which often masquerades as "democratic" — much as Fidel Castro masqueraded as a champion of democracy, until he gained power. Then he cynically revealed himself as a long-time member of the Cuban Communist Party!

We can best remember the infamous betrayal of the Hungarian people by rededicating ourselves to the true ideals of freedom and social justice for all — not a one-sided bid for power by socialists or Fabian Socialists who masquerade as "liberals" and once in a while as "conservative!"

As the Hungarian, Baltic, Polish and Czeckoslovakian people were to discover: the price of freedom is eternal vigilance!—Patricia Young, 1030 Nanton Ave., Vancouver, B.C.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of Sept. 29, 1912:

Credential was the only horse at the show ring Saturday night that could match his own record over the hurdle, and he not only did it but set a record of 7 feet 3 inches over rails for all comers in the future. His previous record was 6 feet 10, and six inches of brush added. There was no jumper in the ring with the appearance, grace and strength of T. J. Smith's magnificent horse, but there were several bad-mannered faulty-ridden horses which failed.

Muhammed and Marx Going Hand in Hand

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH
The London Observer

Today Communist guerrillas at opposite ends of South-East Asia are wooing angry young Muslims with spurious arguments to prove that Muhammad and Marx would have seen eye to eye, while in an outwardly relaxed Peking, Chinese Communist leaders greet Asian Buddhists and Western Christians alike with protestations and proof of their religious tolerance.

Now is the time, therefore, to screw a watch-glass to the eye in search of fakes, for China is the country of the inverted comma of appearances, in which all are Maoists but some of them are only "Maoists" — secret opponents who give the Thought of the Chairman lip-service but not loyalty — and in which, by the same token, unyielding Christians are victimized behind a showcase of "Christians" who stand up for Jesus, but speak for Mao.

The same applies to all denominations, so that in 1951 one thousand Buddhist monks and nuns appealed to their co-religionists throughout China to join a "Patriotic Reform Movement" which would make them useful members of a Maoist society. A China Buddhist Association was created, and later a Chinese Buddhist Institute.

In 1956 even the Dalai Lama was persuaded to declare: "Tibet has made great progress under the correct leadership of Chairman Mao," and in Inner Mongolia monks following this gentle creed that sees the world and its passions as mere illusion were shouting pugnaciously: "to liberate Taiwan, I will take up a gun to fight against the American aggressors."

An Asian Buddhist Conference was held in Peking in 1963 to protest against the persecution of Buddhists elsewhere, after a leading dignitary had assured the world that in China "All religious activities are protected by the State."

Islam was also "protected by the State." A Chinese Islamic Association was formed in 1953, and a Chinese translation of the Koran appeared with a commentary that quoted selected extracts of Muslim teaching to prove the truth of Marxism-Leninism. A Muslim Classics Institute was set up to instil into imams "a fervent love for socialism," and a Chinese Islamic leader lauded those who "hoisted the banner of resistance to imperialism and colonialism."

The rectification of Christianity provided a similar performance of stage-magic. A "Reform Manifesto" was issued by Chinese Protestants, to be followed by one allegedly promulgated by responsible Catholics. A "Shanghai Progressive Church" was built without a cross on the roof, and St. Michael's in Peking was made the living of a Chinese priest who ended all sermons by intoning piously "Long Live Mao Tsetung, Long Live Communism." A National Christian Conference was held in 1954, a "Catholic Patriotic Association" materialized three years later, and by 1967 thirty-one compliant new bishops had been "elected" (in defiance of the Vatican).

All this enabled Premier Chou En-lai, the smiling illusionist behind this facade of fainthearts and frauds, to claim that China, "like other modern nations," respected "freedom of religious belief."

While a minority of Muslims, Buddhists and Christians worshipped the one true Mao, each according to his own rites, however, the Chinese Communist leadership set out to obliterate all other gods, condemning their creeds as "counter-revolutionary," "feudalistic superstition," "garbage reeking of the poisonous fumes of capitalism," and denouncing their more steadfast prelates and imams as "more venomous than viper or scorpion," "jackals of imperialism," agents of "oppression and exploitation," "spies who steal important military, political and economic information under the cloak of religion."

Beside these, the minatory warnings issued earlier this month to Christian missionaries by Mustapha bin Dato Harun, the Muslim Chief Minister of Malaysian Sabah, sound like faint if depressingly familiar echoes.

The Chinese not only talked, they acted. Persecution of the Buddhists in Tibet provoked the bloody revolt of 1959 and the flight of the Dalai Lama to India, lamas were reported to have been flayed, burned, buried and hanged, and in 1960 the International Commission of Jurists found China guilty of genocide. (But "religious life as practised by Buddhists is quite normal," claimed the Vice-President of the Buddhist Association a few months later).

The harassing, repressive tactics employed by the Communists against the Muslims provoked a series of violent local incidents which led to a major uprising in Sinkiang in 1962, when 60,000 Muslims were reported to have fled across the border to the Soviet Union. In 1951 Christian nuns from Canada were tried before a mob of 6,000 in Canton for murder and maltreating children and were sentenced to prison and deportation. From then on the list of priests who were jailed or shot, of nuns publicly humiliated, foreign missionaires beaten up and expelled, and churches demolished or closed down, steadily lengthened.

Buddist carvings from 7th century preserved by new Chinese regime

And then, in 1966, the Red Guards went on the rampage, smashing images, ransacking temples, mosques and churches, tormenting the devout, burning holy books, and shaving Christian heads to leave hair in the shape of a cross as a mark of shame, all in the name of the Great Cultural Revolution.

China is not unique in belaboring pious men who will not "socialise" their faiths. Last year a Buddhist assembly in Cambodia was told by the deputy Premier that nearly 300 monasteries had been destroyed and 30 monks killed by the Communists.

In the Mongolian People's Republic there are now only a handful of monks in what was once a Buddhist stronghold, and fully 12 years ago the Russians were bragging that they had already reduced the number of lamas in the Buryat Autonomous Republic in the USSR from 16,000 to a few dozen.

More recently the Soviet Union has been restoring Buddhist monuments and pointing magnanimously to the cultural links between Buddhist areas of the USSR and Buddhist countries outside it in order to impress the devout of Asia. But the advent of the ping-pong decade has provoked the most deceptive of inviting smiles on the face of atheist China.

After the frenetic iconoclasm of the Cultural Revolution, the China Islamic Association was revived and dusted down, and by 1971, visiting Muslims from Afro-Asia were reverentially praying in the Tungszu Mosque in Peking, unaware that it was a showpiece for foreigners and that most of the others in the Republic had been shut down.

Renowned Buddhist temples have since been reconditioned, and Easter services were celebrated in Peking this year.

The three-quarters of mankind who are not Chinese may sigh their relief at these signs of relaxation. But when Communist guerrillas are talking sweet Islamic reason to the Muslim of Thailand and the Philippines, and the Maoists are wooing Asia, the Arab world and the West by going through the motions of religious tolerance again, it is as well to distinguish the reality from the camouflage.

A False Vision Of Our Identity

The TORONTO STAR
An Editorial

The tranquilizer and the sedative are evidently going to be the main ingredients in Prime Minister Trudeau's re-election campaign.

In his opening speeches Trudeau has assured the voters that not only has the country been united by his Liberal government — an assertion belied by the dark coulds hanging over Confederation—but that the question of Canadian identity has been finally solved by his Liberals.

The other day, for instance, he told Ontario Liberal candidates and campaign workers that Canadians "no longer need to worry about . . . whether they will survive next to the Americans."

We wish it were so. But it is not, and no amount of wishing — or prime ministerial glossing — will make it so.

Trudeau referred to his administration's measures to promote bilingualism and Arctic sovereignty as having established Canada's identity. But what does it profit our people if their government can order simultaneous translations and northern shipping rules, but is impotent to determine their basic destiny? If they can wave the flag at foreign tankers, but can't read Canadian books, buy Canadian products, market Canadian ideas or control Canada's development?

Trudeau's legalistic conception of national identity overlooks the real sinews of a country: its economy, its culture, its collective vision. Many of the key economic decisions shaping this country's future are made not in Canadian legislatures but in American boardrooms. Canada has a higher degree of foreign ownership of industry than any developed country, and few controls to ensure that it respects this country's interests. The government's own task force recently reported that serious drawbacks, as well as benefits, go with this massive foreign ownership. How, then, can Canada's future be secure when more and more of its vital economic decision-making daily falls under foreign control?

In Toronto the prime minister said that only "the literati" and some journalists were still worried about Canada's identity. Richard Thomson, vice-president and chief general manager of the Toronto Dominion Bank, presumably doesn't belong in their classification. But he had just delivered a speech in Greece which did some very pointed and knowledgeable worrying on that very subject. Thomson, who is also a director of an American branch-plant company in Canada, said "there will be times when the interests of the subsidiary will differ from those of the parent." He said there was fear of Canadian businessmen becoming "a group of complacent managers carrying out the orders of absentee decision-makers at head office."

Thomson also questioned whether Canada could maintain its high living standard by relying on imported technology, imported entrepreneurship, imported economic initiatives, imported trade marks, patents and licenses. The branch plant mentality, he said, must be challenged, head-on.

THOMSON
. . . pointed speech

When Trudeau's Liberals introduced their feeble takeover bill in Parliament they absolutely failed to face up to the massive, ongoing invasion of this country by foreign interests. They have equally failed to see that nearly everywhere one looks — at magazine racks, movie marquees, bookstores, comic strips, theatre stages — Canada's independent self-image is constantly in danger of being overwhelmed by a sea of American culture flooding across the border. How can Canada's self-consciousness be secure when its writers, it poets, its artists are drowned out by the thunder of America?

Mr. Trudeau either doesn't know what's going on in the country, or is trying to lull the voters into false confidence. He pretends he has finally rescued Canada's identity. He has hardly begun. He says it's no longer an issue. It is an issue, an issue as important as the independent future of Canada's people, and it's something they should be thinking about on their way to the polls Oct. 30.

Alienated by the English Language

By HIREN MUKERJEE
Indian and Foreign Review

"My five-year-old daughter has been going to a nursery school for the last two years. She has barely learnt a couple of Hindi songs. It's always Ring-a-ring-a-roses and London bridge is falling down."

"The brain-washing of our children begins with A for apple. Then we worry when they reach their teens, saying that they don't have roots, they don't have commitments.

"We are having any number of seminars on education. Has anybody thought of one on nursery schools?"

This was stated recently in a Delhi weekly journal by one of India's most eminent cartoonists who is also happily a member of Parliament now. It sums up, characteristically, the cultural predicament of present-day India.

All perceptive foreigners must, no doubt, be struck by the phenomenon that English — of a sort — is widely spoken and understood in many parts of India. According to an unofficial estimate, nearly 30 million Indians use English as a second language. It is some measure of the thraldom which the English language, even with the British no longer as rulers, is continuing to exercise over this country.

In a celebrated book, The Legacy of India, its editor, G. T. Garratt, himself a former member of the Indian civil service, had the discernment and intellectual honesty to aver that the so-called "British" period was "the most arid", creatively speaking, in Indian history.

British rule might well have been the historical instrument for breaking up the old and decrepit structure of Indian society and preparing it, however inadequately, for the modern age. But for India it was, as long as it lasted, an emasculating experience which we recall with distate.

Even so, many people might say that India can at least be grateful for the British gift to this country, if it can be so called, of a language as rich as English and of the parliamentary process of governance.

However, English which is in this country a very alien language is so very much in the picture of independent India that the matter needs serious thinking over.

Most of the paradoxically termed "national" newspapers of this country are published in English; publication in Indian languages does not ensure all-India coverage, and young entrants into journalism and other writing fields discover soon enough that if they care for recognition they had better yield to the lures of whatever English writing they can muster.

Major formulations of national policy and discussion thereon in Parliament and other all-India forums are done almost entirely in English. The upper ranks of the civil service, and especially the foreign service, are Anglophile even to a fault.

More so are the top brass of our armed forces — their demeanor, their "mess" talk, their clipped (is it Sandhurst still?) accent sounding, someone said, "like echoes of General Montgomery." Their swagger sticks et al proclaim, as it were, their last-ditch adhesion to Englishry.

Till we get rid of what Gandhi used to call our "slave mentality" in relation to English, till we overcome the peculiar post-independence "craze for foreign," which V. S. Naipaul noticed so acutely during his Indian journey, we shall go on being, by and large, a secondary and derivative people, our native talent impeded, the massive reservoir of intellectual energy either untapped or distorted, a veritable weight on our planet, contributing little of significance to the world community.

Let it be repeated that no antipathy towards English is intended. In fact we should study more world languages and more intensively. English, naturally, first of all.

But we can and must have no use for that English which alienates us from our people and has become a status symbol of a privileged and grasping class. The present dominance of English casts a blight on the cultural scene and is a clog on the efflorescence of our people's creativity.

A Nation of Head-Bashers

By DENNIS BRAITHWAITE
The Toronto Star

Anyone who is upset about Team Canada's boorish, violent exhibition in Sweden is either putting on airs or doesn't know anything of this country's real nature.

Our hockey players have always been rough and tough — beating 'em in the alley as well as on the ice, in the words of Founding Father Conn Smythe — because Canadians, by any international standard, including the Russian, are a crude, semi-civilized people.

In World War II, Canadians were great fighting men — even when nowhere near the enemy. They were fond of busting up cafes in Holland, Belgium and France. Among the Allies, Canadians had a proud reputation as the most efficient looters of civilian property in the whole war, and I mean property of the friendly countries they "liberated" as well as shops and homes in Germany.

In that war and its aftermath there were two great troop riots, one at Aldershot in England and another in Halifax. Both were lulus, and who was involved? Not your Americans, not your Poles, not even you "barbaric" Russkies, but your good Canadian servicemen, naturally.

On the way overseas, my outfit stopped for a day and night at a camp in Windsor, N.S., which had been occupied the week before by a Canadian paratroop battalion. The camp staff and the people in the town were still in awe over the way those paratroopers in their red berets had wrecked the place before leaving. That was paratrooper style and we puny signalmen really envied their machismo.

During the occupation following the war, I worked on the army newspaper, the Maple Leaf, and though I had been to wild parties out West in the old days I never saw bashes like the Maple Leafers threw. One of them, in Germany, got so exuberant the British major whose mess we were using put the place out of bounds to all Canadians forever thereafter.

One time two of our jeep drivers, kids about 18 with busy pompadours, pulled their revolvers in a Brussels bar and ordered all the patrons out on the street. Just for the hell of it. Any ex-serviceman can tell you stories like these or wilder ones.

You remember the Montreal Forum riot some years ago, when the city was practically sacked because Clarence Campbell had suspended Rocket Richard — for beating another player with his stick. That was a beaut, a perfect expression of Canadian culture.

Canadians, as everybody knows, are the world's worst drinkers, holding to the idea that the purpose of libation is to get stinko, and then start looking for the action. I have seen rumbles in Timmins beer parlors where the combatants literally came flying through the windows just as the police riot squad arrived.

Do not from such as these expect finesse; it is in the Canadian psyche to bash heads and wreck furniture. This is how we realize ourselves and make statements for all the world to hear. For good or ill, we're a nation of knuckleheads, of brawn unencumbered with brains.

Hockey, we always thought, was that kind of game, our kind of game, and no one could ever beat us at it. Alas, those Europeans have taken that game and turned it into something else, a contest of skill and grace no less.

That, of course, lets us out.

Jobless Teachers Increase

EDMONTON (CP) — The number of certified teachers unable to find jobs in Alberta schools this year could go as high as 1,700, according to a spokesman for the Alberta Teachers' Association.

Dr. Murray Jampolsky, president of the 22,000-member association, said about 300 certified teachers responded to an association survey indicating they could not find work in their profession. The 1972-73 school year is about three weeks old.

The survey is far from complete and not all teachers unable to find work in Alberta schools are expected to respond, he said. Yet, results to date indicate "a slight increase in the response" compared with last year, said Dr. Jampolsky. "I take this . . . as a sign that more teachers are looking for employment this year than in previous years."

Courts 'Too Easy'

EDMONTON (CP) — Stronger prosecution of criminals is needed in the courts and crown attorney's office, a majority of Edmonton's police staff suggested in a survey.

A questionnaire distributed to members of the Edmonton police department by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, showed that 95 per cent of the members who responded thought the courts were too easy-going; 77 per cent said major crimes were prosecuted too leniently and 78 per cent said the prosecutor's office did not deal firmly enough with minor crimes.

Riot Force Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — A mobile strike force specializing in handling demonstrations, riots, strikes and disasters was recommended for Edmonton in a report by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

The report says the force should be used only in an emergency or for searches and surveillance.

Share Lacking

WINNIPEG (CP) — Western Canada has contributed a large share of Canada's export goods but has not received a fair economic return for them, President D. A. Ligertwood of the Western Canada Party said Thursday.

Ligertwood told a public meeting attended by about 30 people that the country's economy is controlled by an "elite group" concentrated in Toronto and Montreal, which does little to assist the Western economy.

Pact Rescinded

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta's Progressive Conservative government has rescinded an agreement to buy Calgary Power Ltd. by the year 2000, Environment Minister Bill Yurko said Thursday.

The agreement was signed in 1947 by the Social Credit government which was toppled last year by the Conservatives in a general election. The agreement required the government to assume complete ownership of the company by the end of the century.

In true Avis tradition, we announce the end of the mileage charge.

In line with the Avis tradition of trying harder, we proudly announce that we've cleaned up the rent a car rate jungle.

As of Monday, October 2, we're abolishing the annoying, confusing, chaos of rent a car rates. Instead, Avis has one single daily rate with three important advantages.

1. You can drive all the miles you want with no mileage charge—no matter how far you go.

2. It's much easier to calculate how much you're going to spend—before you spend it. All you pay is the straightforward daily rate, plus the gas you use.

3. You enjoy traditional Avis we try harder service and, in most cases, real savings we invite you to discover.

How about the Avis 20% discount? Simple. It no longer applies because the new daily rates have all been adjusted to compensate.

Avis. A tradition you'll want to experience.

Car	Daily rate
Economy (Colt, etc.)	$12.00
Compact (Valiant, Duster, etc.)	$13.00
Intermediate (Satellite, Coronet, etc.)	$14.00
Full size (Fury III, Polara Custom, etc.)	$15.00

Avis no-mileage-charge rates available across Canada except in some smaller centres. Other models such as sports cars, convertibles, wagons, luxury cars, etc. available at higher daily rates—still no mileage charge.

We try harder.

SOCRED WIN CONFIRMED

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — An official recount Thursday of votes cast in Peace River South in the Aug. 30 provincial election has confirmed the election of Social Credit candidate Don Phillips.

However, Phillips' winning margin was reduced to 21 votes from 23 over Conservative candidate Don Marshall when two absentee ballots for Marshall which had been rejected election night were credited to him.

Marshall represented Peace River South in the last legislature but crossed the floor to sit as a Conservative.

The official results now are Phillips, 2,978 votes, Marshall 2,957, Liberal and New Democratic Party candidates were far behind.

Sharp, Gromyko Talks Centre On Terrorism

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canadian External Affairs Minister Sharp said Thursday the Soviet Union has expressed concern over the growing tide of terrorism in the world.

Sharp met late Thursday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in a two-hour meeting to discuss current issues.

He said much of the talk centred on the terrorism issue and "in principle, there didn't seem to be much of a difference in our positions, especially on hijacking."

Terrorism was the main subject of Sharp's speech to the General Assembly earlier in the day, when he said the UN must move firmly to curb international terrorism.

The Canadian minister also said he had discussed the matter of exit taxes for Jewish emigrants from the Soviet Union but Gromyko reiterated the Russian position that it was "purely a domestic matter."

Disarmament also was a major question between the Soviet and Canadian ministers.

The Soviet Union has proposed a resolution at the UN this year calling on all countries to renounce the use of force in international disputes.

Mine Official Lashes Critics

A top mining official has lashed out at critics of industry and said persons living in the Lower Mainland "want to keep the Interior as their great playground."

R. G. Duthie, president of Craigmont Mines Ltd., said forestry and mining produced $2 billion worth of products in 1971.

He said both industries have been severely criticized and the main criticism has come from the Lower Mainland "where 80 per cent of the population lives."

"They don't realize that 20 per cent produce the lifeblood there and they criticize the natural resource industry to the point where they want to curtail its effectiveness."

He added: "Some criticism is warranted but some criticism is based on facts and some is based on myth."

Duthie said the mining association anticipates cordial relations with British Columbia's new NDP government.

"We're sitting back to see what kind of legislation will be introduced," he said.

He added: "We would like to see unchanged the legislation currently in effect, or legislation brought in that would encourage instead of discourage mining."

Olson Farms Pledge

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP) — The Liberal government would "seriously look" at legislation giving the National Farmers' Union full bargaining power for all Canadian farmers if the union had the backing of 51 per cent of the farm community, Agriculture Minister H. A. (Bud) Olson said Thursday.

Although a resolution asking for such power has come from the NFU's Ontario region, with support from the Prairie provinces, the NFU has not yet approached the government seeking such a mandate, Mr. Olson said.

Nor has it provided membership figures to support its proposal.

Until this is done, he said while taping a television interview in this community 30 miles south of Owen Sound, "we would never transfer this kind of power to a minority against the wishes of a majority."

The NFU is seeking commitments from both federal and provincial governments to negotiate all social and economic policies affecting farmers.

CUT DOWN FATS— AND LIVE!

Cigarette smoking, tension, lack of exercise . . . all are heart killers. But there's one more, just as serious. Heart specialists show how we dig our own graves by including too much fat and cholesterol in our daily diets. Strong evidence indicates this is the reason North Americans have four times more heart disease than the Japanese. Be sure to read "The Role of Fats" . . . part of a compelling 3-part feature, "YOU AND YOUR HEART" in the October Reader's Digest. It could be the most important reading you do this year!

Moffat

Moffat Communications Ltd., a Winnipeg company with radio and television stations in the four western provinces, plans to make a public issue of shares, perhaps next month.

The company has filed a preliminary prospectus with securities commissions of B.C., Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and now is awaiting approval of the share issue plans.

The number and price of shares to be offered to the public has not yet been determined.

B.C. Tel

Directors of the B.C. Telephone Co. Thursday approved the issuing of two series of first-mortgage bonds which constitute the largest financing ever done by the company at one time.

The first, designated Series T, is for $40 million, bears an interest coupon of 8¾ per cent and is offered to Canadian investors at 99.25 to yield 8.70 per cent if held to maturity Oct. 15, 1993.

The second issue, Series U, is for U.S. $40 million, matures Nov. 1, 1996, and bears an interest coupon of 8⅛ per cent. It has been sold to a U.S. institutional investor for investment purposes at 100.50 to yield 8.077 per cent.

SECRET SURVEY ON RENT DENIED

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada Tuesday denied charges that it is conducting a secret survey of rents in Canada, or withholding the rent information that it collects.

A news release quoted Sylvia Ostry, chief statistician, as saying that while information on individual rents is collected for use in the monthly consumer price index, and that it is confidential, there is no secret about the survey.

She said the information is compiled and published not only in the price index, but to compare rents in 14 major cities across Canada.

Brycon Removed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The shares of Brycon Industries Ltd., suspended from trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Aug. 4, have been removed from the exchange listings, it was announced Wednesday.

Delisting was for "unauthorized expenditures and acquisitions against the wishes of the exchange," a VSE spokesman said. Earlier suspension had been announced "pending receipt of information" about the company.

Brycon, primarily interested in mining, entered the frozen food field through acquisition of Chateau Chef Inc., a company with headquarters in Seattle.

On the last day of its trading, Aug. 3, Brycon sold at between 19 and 24 cents, and closed at 20 cents, on the mining board.

Expansion-Aimed Policy Working; Bank of Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada Review says credit conditions have been relatively easy this year, facilitating a continuation of economic expansion.

"Monetary policy has continued to be directed towards encouraging a sustained economic expansion and a reduction in unemployment, bearing in mind the possible risks of inflation from an excessive build-up in liquidity," the Review for September says.

Monetary policy is the exercise of the central bank's influence over interest rates and the money supply. Its day-to-day responsibility rests with the Bank of Canada but the bank is subject to federal government direction when bank policy differs from government policy.

The Review, published by the bank under the direction of an editorial board composed of bank officials, says more than $6.8 billion raised through borrowing by provincial and municipal governments, business interests, consumers and the construction industry in the first half of the year.

HIGHER LEVEL

This compares with $5.2 billion in the first half of last year, and $6.5 billion in the last six months of 1971. In the first half of this year, the federal government redeemed earlier borrowings, so that the net increase in borrowings this year was $6.5 billion.

The Review says a surge in credit demand is normally a feature of periods of "quickening economic expansion."

The demand was met with relative ease, with interest rates — though higher than at the end of 1971 — remaining below the levels reached in late 1969 and early 1970.

About $2½ billion of this year's half-year borrowing was raised by non-financial business enterprises from credit markets in Canada and from direct investment from abroad. Financing on this scale had been realized previously in the first half of 1969.

"There was a further moderate rise in outlays on plant and equipment, and the underlying trend of inventory accumulation strengthened appreciably," the Review says.

HOUSING OUTLAYS UP

Outlays on new housing continued to rise strongly during the first half of 1972, and the market for existing houses remained buoyant.

Consumer demand has been strong, particularly for durable goods in the second quarter of 1972, and this has been associated with large flows of consumer credit, the Review says.

The Review is the monthly publication of the Bank of Canada which summarizes financial and economic statistics garnered from Statistics Canada, other government agencies, and its own research staff.

Among the new economic facts reported Thursday by the bank were these:

—While food prices in August this year were 7.2 per cent higher than a year ago, the seasonally adjusted index of consumer prices for goods and services other than food was up 3.5 per cent, about average for the last three years.

SELL-OFF GAME DEADLINE SET

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Canadian stock investors are rapidly approaching their first tax sell-off.

New federal capital gains tax legislation makes it advantageous for investors to sell off some of their big losers prior to year's end, buy them back in January and claim the loss on their 1972 income tax forms.

The game has been played for many years in the United States.

In Canada, some major accounting firms have set a deadline of Saturday for subscribing and getting a report back on October 31.

This enables investors to begin a sell-off during November and experience the tax-deductible temporary capital loss.

While some of the major national accounting plans are closing their lists on Saturday, local accountants will extend the deadline and do a similar service for a similar fee.

National plans start at $75 for two print-outs, the client's stock tradings to the end of October and his position at year's end.

The national services will continue to accept clients after Saturday but they will just offer a year's end statement and will not offer help with their tax sell-off.

While hundreds of investors are playing the sell-off game, others will be playing the reverse game of buying during the fall and selling in January.

They will be anticipating a price dip in November and December with an excess of sell orders over buy orders.

And in January when investors try to buy their stocks back at the same price, they find others will have thesame idea and pressures could push the price higher.

Under the old adage of buy low, sell high, some sharp traders may do very well by going against the flow of the tax sell-off.

Causeway Needs Order, $25M: Pollen

Faced with massive investment in the development of the Inner Harbor, Victoria must inject some order into the "chaos" that prevails on the Causeway, Mayor Peter Pollen said Thursday.

During a city council discussion on the problems of congestion and touting caused by sightseeing vehicles on the Causeway, Pollen said:

"In the next decade, if not in the next five years, it is proposed for the public and pirvate sectors to inject in excess of $25 million into this area.

"Therefore it seems to me very appropriate that we as the council should endeavor to establish some very fine standards, because essentially we are doing one thing — marketing this city.

"We are marketing it to the residents so that they can live in a wholesome environment, and marketing it also to the tourists."

Tourists who come to the city are being "crassly exploited" by many aspects of the tourist industry, Pollen charged.

Ald. Harold Olafson, declaring his own business connection with one of the sightseeing firms, said Canadian Pacific Railway is "the greatest exploiter of any."

Passengers on the boat from Seattle are bombarded with advertising for tourist attractions, and in Victoria only those concerns that pay a "rip-off" fee to the CPR are allowed enter the dock area and tout for custom from disembarking tourists, he said.

The public works committee had recommended that all sightseeing vehicle operators be banned from parking on the Causeway, but council referred this to a special meeting of its committee of the whole, at which the firms concerned will be invited to make representations.

However, as an interim step council decided to seek to remove licensing regulations from the city's private "charter" of 1919, and establish trade licence classifications and fees by a bylaw so that these can be amended when necessary.

At present sightseeing firms pay $140 per vehicle, which aldermen consider too little.

In other business, council approved a recommendation of the public works committee to carry out a $10,000 program of sidewalk washing on a trial basis next summer.

It was also agreed to call tenders for the exterior painting of Memorial Arena.

Council referred to the Advisory Planning Commission a planning committee proposal for establishing a new zoning category for commercial districts outside the downtown area.

The item had come up with a recommendation that the city solicitor be instructed to draw up the bylaw amendments but aldermen who were not members of the planning committee complained that this was the first they had heard of the proposal and it should be discussed further.

"It's too far-reaching a bylaw to move into without further discussion," Ald. Clyde Savage said.

Alouette Marks 10 Years With Scientific Record

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian-built Alouette, longest-living, hardest-working of all the man-made earth satellites, celebrates its 10th anniversary today.

Ever since it was launched by the United States Sept. 29, 1962, it has circled the earth every 105 minutes and on the day of its anniversary had made the trip nearly 50,000 times.

Aside from its longevity, Alouette also holds the record for the greatest number of scientific papers based on data from a single satellite. To date more than 300 papers have been written on the information it has gathered.

On its birthday, the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration hailed Alouette not only as a scientific and engineering success in its own right but also as an example of successful co-operation in international programs which NASA carries on with about 80 countries.

Alouette's mission was to take the first measurements of the ionosphere, or layer of ionized gas around the earth, from above. With information from Alouette, scientists have been able to map more precisely than ever before the polar, equatorial and mid-latitude ionesphere. The effort has not only provided a better understanding of fundamental sun-earth relationships but enabled scientists to predict more accurately the behavior of the ionosphere which plays such an important role in long-distance radio communications.

PROPOSED IN 1958

The idea for Alouette came up at an Oct. 13, 1958, meeting of a group of radio physicists at Ithaca, N.Y., NASA said in a statement observing the anniversary. Represented there was the Canadian Defence Research Telecommunications Establishment, whose scientists had long conducted ground-based ionospheric research and were particularly interested in the behavior of the polar ionosphere because of Canada's dependence on radio for communications to many remote settlements in the North.

The U.S.-Canada dialogue resulted in the joint project under which Canada would build the spacecraft, provide the swept frequency sounder and ground stations in Canada for controlling the spacecraft, and NASA would launch the craft on a U.S. rocket and receive satellite telemetry on ionograms outside Canada.

The initial success led to the 1963 U.S.-Canada agreement establishing the International Satellite for Ionospheric Studies and the program was so successful that it obviated the need for a separate NASA satellite program in this field.

Alouette II was launched in November, 1965, and still functions although at a reduced power level. ISIS I was launched in January, 1969, and ISIS II in March, 1971.

PROVIDES VEHICLES

In addition, NASA is also providing launch vehicles on a cost-reimbursable basis to Telesat Canada Corp., for the establishment of a Canadian domestic communications system.

In operation, Alouette sounds out the ionosphere from above by "sweeping" radio frequencies across the region. Sweeping is analogous to running up and down a musical scale, providing investigators with data on daily and seasonal fluctuations in electronic density in the upper ionosphere.

This is of particular interest in Canada as the Arctic ionosphere plagues radio communications in Canada's northernmost regions.

Public Discipline

EDMONTON (CP) — Disciplinary action against physicians should be made public, Dr. Gustave Gingras of Montreal told the annual meeting of the Alberta Medical Association Wednesday.

Dr. Gingras, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said the public has a right to know if a physician is ruled incompetent by his peers. He asked why narcotics addicts are considered a public menace, if they are ordinary citizens, "while certain physicians, known to be similarly addicted are . . . allowed to . . . continue to practice medicine."

Canada's Midnight in Moscow

By DAN PROUDFOOT
Special to the Times

When the Canadian fans, more than 2,500 of them finished their anthem, they started the chant, "We're number one." The final score was 6-5 for the Canadians, and series victory with four wins, three losses and a tie.

Inside the Team Canada dressing room, there was a feeling of frantic pride. Not a lot of noise, no victory champagne, just a team of proud men making assertive statements.

"It was the biggest thrill of my career to be named to this team," said Henderson, the left winger who has skated four years with Toronto Maple Leafs to modest reviews, "the next biggest thrill was to make the team.

"And now, three winning goals in a row. Who can believe it?"

Henderson was correct. Team Canada came to Moscow with a losing record of one win, two losses and a tie.

In the first game here, Team Canada blew a three-goal lead and lost 5-4. But the Canadians won the three final Moscow meetings to take the eight-game series, and each time Henderson scored the winner.

Thursday night, Team Canada never led until it went ahead 6-5 in the final minute. Four times the Russians were ahead, but the National Hockey League selects kept coming back. The Russians had the beautiful plays, the Canadians had the grim determination and the startling efforts of such individuals as Phil Esposito, who scored twice and figured in all three goals of the third-period comeback.

Henderson and Esposito completed the series as the top scorers with seven goals each.

At the end of the game, Henderson's lawyer, Alan Eagleson, was yelling again, as after the previous game, at Leaf owner Harold Ballard. "This has to be worth $25,000, Harold," shouted Eagleson, who is seeking bonuses for both Henderson and his Leaf linemate Ron Ellis on the basis of their play for Team Canada.

Henderson's arrival on the ice for the goal-front pass from Esposito that won the series remains at least partially mystical.

The Leaf winger was on the bench when he saw the final minute ticking off on the Palace timeclock. "I don't know what it was, maybe a feeling, but I yelled to Harry (manager-coach Sinden) and asked him who was on the next shift. I as much as asked him to go. He said Ratelle.

"And then he turned around and said, no you go on.

Henderson found himself in front of Russian goaltender Vladislav Tretiak and in a scramble he fell down. He got up, he got in front again, and Esposito's centring pass arraved. 6-5. Game over.

The emotion goalkeeper Ken Dryden felt was largely relief. He had been guarding a 5-5 tie, which would have meant a tie in the series. "In a situation like that, a goal against means much more than any other time, so I couldn't help but feel nervous."

"This has to be bigger than the year we (Montreal Canadiens) won the Stanley Cup and I won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable individual of the playoffs."

Dryden's teammates considered the win as big as he did.

The game was emotional, for players and fans, from the fifth minute when Jean Paul Parise was penalized two minutes for interference, 10 minutes misconduct for banging his stick on the ice, and a game misconduct for threatening referee Josef Kompalla with his stick.

Kompalla was one of two referees from West Germany whom Team Canada attempted to keep out of the final game, but was allowed to officiate when a compromise over game officials was reached a few hours before game time.

With the announcement of Parise's game misconduct, a small bench soared on the ice from behind Team Canada's boards, courtesy of coach Sinden. Trainer John Forrisstall then threw a chair. The fans, convinced Team Canada was in for a night of penalties, chanted "let's go home."

Twenty-one seconds into the second period it seemed Canada might be determined to lose. When Yakushev shot hard, and high, the puck bounced off the trampoline-like netting behind the goal, went by Dryden, and right to Vladimir Shadrin who rapped it home for a 3-2 Soviet edge. Bill White then tied the score on a pass from Rod Gilbert before tht Soviets went ahead 5-3, and set the stage for the third-period heroics.

Early in that final period, Esposito was in front of Tretiak for Peter Mahovlich's passout. He gloved it, a foot off the ice, took a whack at the puck and scored with the second shot.

"That was the goal we needed," said Dryden, "one in the first 10 minutes. It meant we didn't have to take chances, we would work with the knowldege we're capable of scoring at any time."

Tretiak was prone on the ice 10 minutes later when Yvan Cournoyer tied the score from a scramble.

Another six and a half minutes passed before Henderson shot the winner.

That gave the Canadians a special midnight in Moscow.

An Incredible Finish As Canada Stood Still

It was incredible, but oh, so beautiful, on a day on which all of Canada stood still.

Team Canada came all the glorious way back on Thursday; and let's face it, the refereeing wasn't all that bad either.

This was game eight, for everything, in the Team Canada-Team Soviet world series of hockey, and Canada won it with a brilliant third-period display. If the Canadians hadn't shown that much class, or character, in Canada, they certainly emerged as almost the "complete team" in the Lenin Palace of Sports this past week.

They beat the Russians three games out of four, and those were the last three crucial games of the series. That took some character as they then trailed the Soviets three games to one, with one tied.

As it was Canada should have won Game 1 in Moscow, which they lost 5-4. But then perhaps they were fortunate in Game 3, which they won 4-3. That might have belonged to Russia.

Thursday, it was a beaut.

Two goals down at 5-3 going into the last 20 minutes, seemingly there was little hope. But suddenly Pete Mahovlich, a tough competitor in this game, took the puck behind the Soviet goal and, while falling, passed out to Phil Esposito.

The big centre popped it home and Canada was back in the game. Then Espositio set up Cournoyer, twice, and the second time Cournoyer made no mistake. Finally, it was Esposito, once more, this time to Paul Henderson. Two chances, and Henderson didn't need another. It was goal No. 6 for Canada, and just 34 cautious seconds from ultimate victory.

The honor and glory of hockey in all of Canada had suddenly been salváged by a gritty display of guts and heart.

A fuss over officials almost saw the game blow up in the first four minutes, but frankly, Canada had no excuse for the actions of Jean-Paul Parisse who lost his cool, and was banished and properly so, for threatening a game official with his stick. And through the rest of the contest, it was fair enough for both clubs.

Besides, as expected, coach Harry Sinden of Team Canada said that no, Canada never did really plan to opt out of the final game. "We would never have pulled out of a game this size," he declared.

Henderson's dramatic goal, his third game winner in three successive games, put him in the extraordinary class, a step ahead of most of the others of Team Canada. Then what else? The visiting Canadian corps in Moscow literally erupted, and the ice was suddenly full of officials from Team Canada, and it was a heartwarming sight to see.

Still, if Henderson's emergence puts him as the instant hockey hero in Soviet eyes, Phil Esposito will never play a better hockey game, or a series. Throughout the eight games, he was a cut abové everybody else on the ice. His nationalism showed, and on him it looked good. It also looked great in Moscow Thursday night because finally, this was a team at work, and it was playing for Canada.

So now there is a new respect for Canadian hockey in Russia, and Europe, which wasn't the feeling when Team Canada left Sweden following their exhibition series there. Everything then was in bad taste, including many of the hockey players. The visit to Stockholm had been a lark, nothing more, but it didn't help the image of the team or the country it represented. Then there were the four defections, for whatever reasons; and many Canadians now are probably wondering what Vic Hadfield, Gil Perrault, Richard Martin and Jocelyn Gouvremont are thinking about today. They gave up on Team Canada, and the coaches, in one form or another, and shouldn't ever be allowed to forget it.

Now it's all hail the winner — the best team won, the hard way; by coming from behind, away from home; by beating the Soviets on their bigger ice surface, where it was mooted they would be skated out of the rink; and by spotting Team Russia a two-goal lead, with only one period left to play.

That's how they got it all back. And saved face.

That took some fancy doing, and a show of pride in their own ability, and accomplishment. So maybe our life style isn't so bad, or so tarnished after all.

And if some Canadians on the ice, and on the bench, or in the stands, used language that was loud, even uncouth, so what now?

For the Russians they might have deserved better. Honestly, they were unfortunate not to have won this very first confrontation with the NHL. Call it lack of experience or call it moral right to crow a little. They gave the Canadians all they could handle, and then some.

"Those bastards are darn good hockey players," said Henderson.

The Russians can play in the NHL, anytime, especially Alexander Yakushav. He was a perpetual danger, and Valeri Kharmalov was the pick of the Soviet team until he was injured. They were as good as any Team Canada player in any honest appraisal of hockey ability.

There will be other stories today, from Moscow, telling all, but wouldn't it have been great to have been there, and enjoyed it as it happened?

As it was, in living color, on the big screen, it was pretty fantastic as well; and just as easy to take.

Excited? Not much. In keeping a running score on the game, when Canada tied it up at 5-5, the figures that came out were 10-10.

Besides. I swallowed an olive stone. How about you?

Players Help Eagle Flee Cops' Grasp

Special to The Times

MOSCOW — Lawyer Alan Eagleson tussled with Soviet police again last night but with the help of Team Canada players he managed to escape across the ice like Little Liza.

"After Yvan Cournoyer scored in the third period they didn't put on the red light behind the Russian goal. I just wanted to go down to tell the referee.

"The next thing I knew I was on my way to Siberia."

A phalanx of Soviet police grabbed Eagleson and he was being bundled toward the exit when Team Canada players skated over to help him. Other players, including Bill Goldsworthy, jumped off the Canadian bench and raced across the ice too.

As some of the players poked their sticks over the boards, Eagleson suddenly emerged from the melee, scrambled on to the ice and crossed to the Canadian team's bench.

"All they know here is muscle," he said rubbing his arm. "I think there's something wrong with my arm the way they twisted it.

"They even bounced the Canadian Ambassader's wife, Mrs. Ford, when she was standing near the dressing room. The police don't care whether it's a man or woman."

As he talked, Eagleson alternated between anger at the police and joy with the team's victory. However, he was emphatic about any connection he might have with a future Team Canada.

"Never again! We took a lot of abuse during the series. I can think of only one Canadian sportswriter who stuck with us all the way, who always said we'd win the series. No, sir, I'd never do it again."

The goal light failed to shine for Cournoyer's score and Eagleson, the godfather of Team Canada in Moscow, strode from his seat in the direction of the official timers' bench, where a referee was reporting. Eagleson found himself surrounded by police or army officers, he knew not which. He called them goons. They were leading him along the boards to kick him out of the glorious sports palace when Peter Mahovlich noticed the proceedings.

"It was a break in play," said Mahovlich, "and I saw about 6,000 Commies with one guy. I figured he was a Canadian so it caught my eye. Then I saw it was Eagleson and I went a little crazy. 'Cause he's part of the team more than anyone.

Mahovlich jumped over the boards, stick flailing. Other Team Canada players, including several from the bench, followed to the side of the boards and Eagleson struggled free.

Eagleson slipped across the ice to the Team Canada bench, from where he watched the remainder of the game.

Somebody asked where Bobby Orr had been. The best player of the NHL not only missed the series with a sore knee, he missed the final game completely.

"I don't think B.O. was here," said Wayne Cashman, another Team Canada player reduced to spectating by an injury. "He got too emotional watching the earlier games and I think he stayed at the hotel to watch this one on television.

"Who can blame him? I would never watch another one in person. It's so tough on the nerves. I would be in jail seven times if I tried going through another without playing."

Toronto Fans Offer to Buy Car If Paul Doesn't Receive Award

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada will return to its training camp site Sunday night in a torchlight parade of cars from Toronto International Airport.

The players are expected to arrive from Prague, where they meet the Czechoslovakia team Saturday, aboard two flights Sunday afternoon.

The Air Canada planes are scheduled to land 35 minutes apart, the first at 5:35 p.m., and their route to Maple Leaf Gardens will be along streets where a maximum number of hockey fans can greet the returning players.

The public is being admitted to the Gardens on a first-come basis for the welcoming ceremony. The rink can accommodate 19,000 to 20,000 with use of seats on the ice surface.

A group of Toronto fans has already offered to purchase a car for Henderson if he doesn't receive the MVP award.

Meanwhile, the vanguard of nearly 3,000 Canadians who attended the four Russian games begins arriving here later today aboard the first charter flight out of Moscow.

In news of Team Canada from Moscow, a column by Ted Blackman in the Montreal Gazette says that coach Harry Sinden will return next week to Boston Bruins as general manager of the defending National Hockey League champions.

Blackman says that Bruins' president Weston Adams Jr. approached Sinden with the offer at the Team Canada camp in Toronto last month and Sinden accepted.

He is to rejoin the team which he coached to a Stanley Cup win in 1969-70 before quitting over a salary dispute, the report says.

The Gazette also says Pat Stapleton, all-star defenceman with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, plans to retire from hockey after Saturday's game aganist Czechoslovakia in Prague.

The newspaper says in a story from Moscow that Stapleton, a father of four, feels he's not spending enough time with his family, has grown tired of professional hockey and has enough other activities to assure him of a comfortable income.

Stapleton owns equity in two skating and hockey rinks in Chicago which produce an income in excess of $40,000 a year for him, the newspaper said.

Dowling Tops Squash Rankings

Victoria's John Dowling, who makes a bid for new honors in a tournament opening tonight at the Racquet Club of Victoria, turned in the best performance by a British Columbia player last season, according to rankings released by the Pacific Coast Squash Racquets Association.

Dowling, now a student at the University of British Columbia, was ranked first in B division and is thus required to compete in A section of all future tournaments. At 17, he is the youngest player in PCSRA history to earn this top tournament ranking.

Three Vancouver stars were listed in the A division ratings. Neil Desaulniers was placed fourth, George Morfitt sixth and Mike Jackson 10th.

Victoria's Doug Hawkes, who seldom misses a tournament, was ranked eighth in the veterans' B division and another Victorian, Guy Screech, was rated 10th in C class.

Morfitt will be defending his title when the annual Victoria invitational tourney begins tonight at the Racquets Club, with his toughest opposition expected to be provided by Dowling and Desaulniers.

Play in the tourney, which includes four men's divisions, two veterans' sections, a junior men's event and an open women's division, starts at 5:30 p.m.

Competition is scheduled Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and continues Sunday at 8:30 a.m., with finals expected to be concluded around 2:30 p.m.

Athletics Clinch a Pennant By Climbing Out of a Hole

By The Associated Press

The happy Oakland Athletics and desperate New York Yankees were at opposite ends of an emotional see-saw today as baseball's 1972 season headed into its final regular week of play.

The Athletics, wearing the American League's West Division crown, were happy that they hadn't backed into the title and the Yankees, still nursing an outside shot at the AL's East title, were grateful that they hadn't backed out of their chance for the other division championship.

Oakland wiped out a seven-run deficit and clinched the West with an 8-7 victory over Minnesota Twins while the Yankees, peering at the fate of instant elimination, fought back for a 3-2 victory over Detroit Tigers.

MICKEY LOLICH

The Tigers' loss, combined with Boston's 3-1 victory over Kansas City Royals, moved the Red Sox 1½ games ahead of Detroit in the AL East scramble. Each team has six to play including a season-ending three-game series against each other.

The Yankees are third, 3½ games behind with five to play and idle Baltimore Orioles slipped to fourth place, four behind with five to play.

In the only National League game played Thursday, Philadelphia Phillies topped Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 as Steve Carlton became the eighth pitcher in major league history to strike out 300 batters in a season.

Oakland, trailing by seven runs in the first 4⅓ innings, tied the score on Angel Mangual's two-run single in the eighth inning.

In the ninth, leadoff batter Sal Bando was hit by a pitch and then circled the bases on Dal Maxvill's double for the winning run.

New York beat Mickey Lolich, dealing the Tigers a tough blow. In order to catch Boston, Detroit will have to win two more games than the Red Sox of the six that both teams have left.

The loss left Lolich with a 21-14 record — 4-8 since the all-star game.

Canucks Strike Quickly

By The Canadian Press

Greg Boddy and Brian McSheffrey scored less than two minutes apart early in the third period Thursday night to break a 4-4 tie and send Vancouver Canucks to a 6-5 win over Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League exhibition game at Vancouver.

In the only other game, Mike Murphy snapped in his own rebound to give St. Louis Blues a 3-3 tie at Philadelphia against the Flyers.

Hornets Breeze; Invaders Tested

Saanich Hornets breezed to a victory Thursday at Royal Athletic Park to take over sole possession of second place in the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League, but the front-running Oak Bay Invaders had a rugged battle with Cowichan Chiefs before extending their undefeated streak.

Hornets romped to a 26-0 lead in the opening half and coasted to a 45-12 triumph over the winless Juan de Fuca Tigers. Ed Murray, booting two field goals and three conversions, and Chris Grew, who collected two touchdowns, paced the Hornet attack.

Invaders needed a spectacular scoring effort from split end Rob Parris to run their victory skein to five games with a 10-1 decision over the stubborn Chiefs.

Parris scored a touchdown on a 110-yard pass-and-run play and added the convert to give Invaders a 7-0 lead in the first half. Parris connected for a field goal in the second half while the Invader defence held the Chiefs to a single.

British Lead Race For Rich Golf Pot

TURNBERRY, Scotland (UPI) — Four British Ryder Cup stars moved clear of overseas challengers Thursday as Europe's richest golf tournament, the $150,000 John Player Classic, reached the half-way stage.

The 36-hole leader was Peter Townsend who carded a one-under-par 70 on the 7060-yards, par 71 Scottish links for a two-round total of 135, seven under par.

One stroke back was Welshman Brian Huggett, the first-day leader, who added a 72 to Wednesday's record 64.

Tony Jacklin had the day's best score of 68 to move into a tie on 137 with Peter Oosterhuis, who had a 69.

Bespectacled Tommy Aaron was the top-placed man from a strong American contingent after a 69 for 140.

Storm Hits First Round

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — Jack Lewis and Don Iverson matched four-under-par 67s for the first-round lead before a violent thunderstorm and a threat of a tornado forced suspension of play Thursday in the first round of the $100,000 Quad Cities open golf tournament.

Iverson and Lewis were just one stroke in front of Gibby Gilbert, who posted his 68 just moments before the storm swept over the 6501-yard Crow Valley Golf Club course.

Gilbert played in the same threesome with tournament favorite Lee Trevino, who had a 69.

City Players Dominate B.C. Hockey Side

Players from the Victoria area dominate the 12-member British Columbia second team that will be competing this weekend in the University of Alberta's invitational women's field hockey tournament at Edmonton.

Eight Victorians — Joan Peggs, Lis Dixon, Lesley Ker, Sue Moillet, Pam Temple, Sarah Angus, Maxine Harris and Kelly Shepard — are listed on the roster along with Vancouverites Linda Westlund, Barb Weston, Jean Sparling and Joan Corcoran.

Opening games Saturday in the two-day tourney will send the B.C. seconds against University of Calgary and University of Saskatchewan.

U.S. TIGHTENS ENTRY RULES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States began Wednesday to require nearly all foreign travellers entering the country to have visas, state department officials said Wednesday.

The tightening of entry regulations is to meet the increasing possibility of terrorist acts in the United States and during the current United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York, the officials said.

The regulations will be in effect until Jan. 1.

This means, with the exception of travellers from Canada, that anyone entering the United States even for a temporary stay of less than 10 days will need a visa. In the past, travellers from Western Hemisphere nations or those staying in the United States for less than 10 days generally did not need visas.

The officials said the new regulations even apply to persons crossing the border from Mexico.

A 10-YEAR REPRIEVE FOR BREMER

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (Reuter) — Ten years have been dropped from the 63-year sentence of Arthur Herman Bremer, convicted of shooting Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and three other persons at a political rally in Maryland May 15.

In proceedings before a three-judge appeals court, Bremer, 22, pleaded that the sentence given him was "disturbingly severe."

Bremer still faces federal charges resulting from the shooting.

ACTORS' GUILD SEEKS TAX AID

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Screen Actors Guild asked the U.S. government Tuesday to cut down on the amount of reruns television networks are allowed to present, and urged White House support for tax relief for a financially troubled film industry.

The union outlined problems it said faced the movie industry, in a memorandum submitted to the White House and in a petition for presidential assistance.

John Gavin, guild president, noted that the production of movies in the U.S. has declined and along with it the income it provides actors and others in the business.

Gavin said 75 per cent of the 25,000 members of the guild made less than $3,500 last year and unemployment in the craft and technical unions is 55 per cent.

BUM PLANE FOR LEWIS

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — A week before it is scheduled to take to the air, the chartered aircraft hired to ferry NDP leader David Lewis through the campaign skies has been christened by the group of reporters who will ride it.

Searching for a name appropriate to the corporate welfare bum theme of the New Democrat campaign, they named the plane Bum Air.

MPs Are Intelligent: Anderson

VANCOUVER — British Columbia Liberal leader David Anderson says federal politicians are generally average people — but more intelligent than most.

Anderson, a former Liberal MP, told a meeting of the Chartered Institute of Secretaries that federal politicians also are reluctant to take positions that diverge from the party line or that magnify the differences between themselves and party colleagues.

TORONTO — Gen. George Grobicki, 83, who survived the Russian Katyn massacre of 12,000 officers during the Second World War, has died in Toronto. Grobicki commanded a cavalry brigade in Poland in 1939 and was wounded and taken to Russia. His train car with a few other wounded officers aboard was pushed to a side track while other officers taken prisoner were sent to their deaths at Katyn. In 1942, after Polish prisoners were released, he served the Polish army in Italy and after the war was made Polish military attache in Formosa. Later, he travelled to England and then to Canada, where he became a citizen.

TAMPA, Fla. — The father of an infant boy alleged to have been swapped for a used car last week in Immokalee, Fla., has been arrested by sheriff's deputies and charged with rape, a spokesman said.

Deputies said Eugene Fire Sims, 24, was arrested near Tampa as he hitch-hiked toward Immokalee where his wife, Jennifer, was arraigned earlier in the day for selling a child for payment or something of value."

Police said Sims was indicted Tuesday in Tampa under the name of Ira Champman on a charge of raping an 18-year-old girl in Hillsborough County Sept. 8.

TRAIL — The Crown has withdrawn a charge of theft under $200 against Maurice R. Drake of Trail after he apologized for removing a New Democratic Party campaign sign from his property.

An NDP sign erected by a person renting a home from Drake was removed from the property and replaced with a sign urging re-election of the Social Credit candidate during the campaign for the Aug. 30 provincial election.

ALGIERS — The Black Panthers in Algiers has announced that William Roger Holder, an American army deserter who hijacked a U.S. plane here last June with his girl friend, has been appointed their new leader.

He takes over from Pete O'Neal, who had headed the small group of black American militants here since last January.

Tommy Douglas says Prime Minister Trudeau should apologize to the Canadian unemployed for Liberal incompetence.

"Instead he blames the unemployed for the condition he has put them in," Douglas, former national NDP leader said in Nanaimo.

"Trudeau has thrown thousands out of work and instead of apologizing, he blames them for not having jobs." said Douglas, who is seeking re-election in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands

MORTGAGE MADE HIM MORBID

DIEBURG, West Germany — A 48-year-old precision instrument mechanic who believed he could not meet mortgage repayments killed himself in the cellar of his new house with a home-made guillotine.

The man constructed the guillotine from a paper cutter, a wood beam, an anvil, a U-shaped iron bar and a complicated system of pulleys and ropes.

Then he strapped himself to a bench in the cellar and decapitated timself.

TIME, LADIES, PLEASE

LEICESTER, England — Police officers braced for trouble when they raced through this Midlands city today to handle a reported street brawl.

Instead of rival gangs of thugs they found two spinster sisters — aged 93 and 84.

meet Louis Lindholm . . .

LOUIS LINDHOLM IS A BRITISH COLUMBIAN

Louis was born in British Columbia and has lived on southern Vancouver Island since 1953. He values our natural resources and our way of living.

LOUIS LINDHOLM HAS REACHED HIS GOALS BY WORKING HARD

Louis has worked in the logging industry on rigging crews, as a faller and as a scaler supervisor. He has been a stevedore, a shipyard worker, a foundry worker and a member of the Boilermaker's union and the I.W.A. Years of study at the University of British Columbia have earned him a scholarship and a law degree in 1953.

Louis Lindholm has built a successful legal practice in Victoria over the last eighteen years. He understands the responsibilities of the working man.

LOUIS LINDHOLM IS RESPECTED BY LABOUR AND MANAGEMENT

He was one of the two named Chairmen of Arbitration Boards for the settlement of all grievances and disputes between the Provincial Council of Carpenters and the Construction Labour Relations Association for B.C. during the years 1964-70. Since 1970 he is the single agreed Arbitrator.

He is often called upon by trade unions and management to solve industrial disputes. He is a realistic person with practical experience.

Assassins Gun Down Belfast Protestant

BELFAST (AP) — Assassins riddled a Protestant man with bullets late Thursday night, their third victim in 24 hours, as Protestant vigilantes warned they will go gunning for Irish Republican Army guerrillas in a revenge campaign.

That threat, plus a growing rash of bombings that security chiefs believe is being waged by Protestant extremists, kindled fears of a new surge of violence in Northern Ireland two days after a conference on Ulster's future ended inconclusively.

Edward Parvis, 32, was shot dead when he answered a knock on his door. Earlier, a Protestant and a Roman Catholic had been gunned down.

Parvis' slaying took Ulster's three-year death toll to 579. Seventy unsolved murders were blamed on assassination squads in the last three months.

The militant Protestant Ulster Defence Association warned that it plans to intensify its campaign against the IRA.

The threat followed the killing of several Protestants and came amid an increasing number of bombings attributed to Protestant extremists.

MAN BEATEN IN BUS CROWD

ATLANTA (UPI) — An Atlanta engineer told today how he was set upon by some youths, beaten, robbed and had his arm broken while waiting for a bus on a downtown street.

He said the 25 other persons who were waiting at the same stop refused to help him.

"They were very nice and very distant, but they said they couldn't get mixed up in it," Charles Neal said.

"They said they might have to spend three hours at the police station if they tried to help."

Neal said the crowd even refused to hail him a taxi or call police or an ambulance. Another group across the street also ignored his plight.

Finally, his bus arrived and, near collapse, he made it home. His brother took him to a hospital.

Mrs. Kurth Heads Arts Council

Mrs. Erika Kurth was elected president of the Community Arts Council of Greater Victoria on Thursday.

Mrs. Kurth was last year's vice president and is organizer of the Channel 10 arts show and editor of the bimonthly arts calendar.

The well attended annual meeting held at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria was urged by retiring president Allan M. Purdy to stimulate more communication among groups and to foster open discussion events such as the congress held at UVic last winter.

Membership of the CAC now stands at 63 affiliate groups and 327 individuals, membership chairman Anne Adamson reported.

There are 53 arts councils in British Columbia of which Victoria's has the greatest representation — 10,000 people in the Greater Victoria area.

During the year the CAC had disbursed some $5,000 to member groups and in the form of student scholarships and bursaries.

The bulk of this amount comes from the B.C. Cultural Fund but some music bursaries were made available through Mrs. Gertrude Stocker.

Others elected to the board were James McVie, vice president; John Wade, second vice president; John Drean, treasurer; Tess O'Connor, secretary, and directors, Peter Gazley, Allen Clarke, Lincoln Painter, Anne Adamson, John Steele and Gene Miller.

Aides Appointed

The NDP government has appointed three more executive assistants to the staffs of its ministers, cabinet orders from Thursday's cabinet meeting revealed today.

Appointed executive assistant to Labor Minister William King is Dale L. Compton.

Hart Horn is the new Executive assistant to Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Leo Nimsick and Raymond F. Wargo is executive assistant to Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi.

All three appointments carry salaries of $1,335 per month.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears — how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Power Farming Won't Blow Fuses

Increased use of electricity on farms won't contribute towards power shortages, B.C. Hydro agriculturalist Alex Hall said Thursday at a rural electricfication field day held at Saanichton Hall.

Farmers use electrically operated machinery during the summer months when power demand is low, he explained.

"High peak loads occur during the winter months when most farm machinery is not being used," he said.

The field day sponsored by B.C. Hydro was attended by about 75 growers.

Stan Tallman, a Hydro engineer said electricity is the greatest labor-saving device.

"Not so long ago, it took one man to milk 12 cows," he said. "Today 100 milking cows can be looked after by one man."

The main object of the field day was to demonstrate to growers an electric motor which delivers high horsepower with low starting current for use on single-phase utility lines.

Normal motors require three-phase power lines and pose a problem to growers as few rural power lines are three phase.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Addict Pleads for Education, Gets Two Years

A man who said he was depressed from losing his job and his common-law wife, was sentenced to a total of six months' imprisonment by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Thursday.

Russel Roland Schutz, 29, of 2100 Fernwood, was sentenced to six months after pleading guilty to a charge of arson and given a concurrent 10-day sentence for being unlawfully at large.

Schutz's wife had her furniture packed when she called Victoria police Aug. 19 requesting assistance in keeping the peace while she moved her belongings.

When police arrived a wall-to-wall carpet and a hallway were on fire. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said the offence is one of the most serious of the criminal law.

A 25-year-old man was sentenced to nine months after pleading guilty to possession of a narcotic Sept. 27.

Robert H. English, of 774 Sayward, was stopped by police near Burnside Road while driving on Douglas Street Sept. 27. He was searched and found to be in possession of a small tin containing one capsule of heroin and three syringes which he said he had bought at a hotel.

Joan Smale, 20, of 128 Maddock, was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation for possession of a narcotic.

She was a passenger in a car that was stopped by Victoria police Sept. 28 when she was searched and a small quantity of hashish was found in her purse.

A man who went to Victoria police station Sept. 13 to inquire about his missing motorcycle was sentenced to a total of three months and placed on six months' probation for possession of stolen property over $200 and possession of stolen property under $200.

A motorcycle belonging to Laverne S. Dryborough, 23, of 3420 Quadra, was seized by Victoria police Sept. 12 after they had received a report on a stolen motorcycle engine, worth $1,000, and a stolen motorcycle seat, valued at $35.

Dryborough was arrested when he made the inquiry.

Andre Alfred Daouse, 43, of 723 Yates, was fined $250 for stealing three bottles of aftershave, worth a total value of $9.14, from a downtown store.

MacIntyre said Daouse's previous record included one conviction of armed robbery and a sentence of five years for manslaughter.

"With your background it seems to me extraordinary you'd stoop to theft," said Ostler.

A man who complained of the inadequate treatment for "junkies" at the Wilkinson Road jail was sentenced to a total of two years in the federal B.C. Penitentiary at New Westminster by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Thursday.

Jay Donald Small, 22, of 534 Fargo, pleaded guilty to a total of 14 counts of uttering, eight counts of false pretences under $200, two counts of breach of probation, attempted uttering, escaping lawful custody and possession of a narcotic.

Small told the judge he was a heroin addict and escaped from Wilkinson Road, where he was being held in custody, because he couldn't get the treatment he required.

"You don't get any treatment at all at Wilkinson Road if you're a drug addict," said Small.

"It's to be hoped that in due course better arrangements will be made," said Ostler.

Cheques passed by Small between Aug. 24 and 28 totalled $502 and he attempted to pass a cheque worth $83.50. He was ordered to pay restitution in the amount of $112 to a local bank.

On Sept. 1 he was taken to Victoria police station on another matter, was searched and found to be in possession of one cap of heroin.

On June 23, 1971 Small was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and placed on two years' probation for possession of heroin. On April 25, 1972 he was given a two-year probationary term for false pretences in Parksville provincial court. On Sept. 21, 1972 Small pleaded guilty to several charges while the two probation orders were in effect.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre described Small's crimes as a "multitude of charges" pointing out "the tremendous disruption to the merchants of the city."

Ostler said he sympathized with Small and said only a small percentage of Victoria's heroin addicts appear before the judge.

"You've just been ruined by this wretched, vicious drug," he said.

Small asked the judge if he could be incarcerated in an institution with facilities to up-grade his education but Ostler said, because of his age, he could only be sentenced to the federal penitentiary or the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre, neither of which have schooling facilities.

He first sentenced Small to two years less a day but Small said he'd prefer a two-year sentence at the penitentiary because he believed there was a better chance of being transferred to a prison with an education program after being screened by the correctional authorities.

The two-year sentence was imposed for the possession of heroin charge and he was sentenced to two years for all of the other charges with the exception of the two counts of breach of probation for which he was sentenced to six months on each count. All sentences are to be served concurrently.

Camosun Council Nod For Courses on TV

In the face of strong criticism from Councillor Peter Bunn, Camosun College council Thursday gave a tentative go-ahead to two college-sponsored education television programs.

Dr. Grant Fisher, college principal, said some programs had been "identified" but "we don't have a firm proposal." One progtam would be non-credit, the other, to begin in January, would be a credit program with correspondence course.

"Perhaps we're motivated by the fact that free program time has been offered by Channel 10 (operated by Victoria Cablevision) to others and they have refused and now it's been offered to us," he said.

Bunn called Cablevision's offer of program time a "loss leader."

"This outfit has a licence to print money," he said, "and now they seem to want to move into bigger denominations."

"I'm very leery when organizations wallowing in money come out and say they'll do something for nothing. I'm extremely leery of their motives."

Bunn said the college council was being "suckered" into the offer.

"It's pretty naive. Cablevision costs $54 a year — it's not just a free thing for everybody."

"And don't let's be footsy about this," Bunn said, "it's Cablevision that's offering the time, and it's a cablevision program we're talking about."

Councillor Walter Donald said the college should first develop a course which fulfilled a community need, then decide if television was suitable.

"It's 'bass-ackwards' to plan a television series first then try to fit a course into it," he said.

He said Cablevision only served subscribers, and recommended that the college should investigate whether Channel Six was going to get involved in community broadcasting.

Councillor Lavinia Greenwood asked Fisher if the council's decision would make any difference in what the administration did. Fisher replied that placing a priority on the programs would mean "attempting to meet the deadlines we've set for ourselves."

Council chairman Dr. C. B. Jameson said the programs resembled the University of the Air created in England.

"This seems to me a proper use of television."

"It's state-owned," interjected Bunn.

Donald said he did not suspect the motives of Channel 10 because it was effectively a public serfice channel under Canadian Radio Telvision Commission authority.

"What we should be doing is finding out the needs of the community and serving those needs — not ours," he said.

Council, with the exception of Bann, finally agreed the college should give priority to developing a TV series which would fill a demonstrated need of the community and which could best be fulfilled through television.

...And Looks Askance On $81,000 Rent to UVic

Camosun College, a tax-financed body, wants to stop paying rent to the University of Victoria, another tax-supported body, for its Lansdowne Building.

"It seems rather ridiculous to transfer tax money from one institution to another," chairman Dr. C. B. Jameson told a college council meeting Thursday.

He said a new agreement raised the Lansdowne Building rent from $69,000 to $80,000. He proposed indicating to the department of education that Camosun would accept the building "as a grant."

Councillor Peter Bunn suggested the building could be bought for a dollar. He moved, and it was approved, that the college should approach the board of governors of UVic directly, "to keep it in the educational family."

In other business, college principal Dr. Grant Fisher said it "looked as though" full-time student enrolment at the college was down by about 100 from last year's total of 772, meaning a reduction of about $25,000 in college income.

Enrolment fluctuates with the continual enrolment process, Fisher said, making it hard to quote exact figures. He said the administration had been able to absorb the loss through adjustment of part-time employment.

He said the drop in enrolment for university transfer courses "seemed to" compare with the current drop in university enrollment.

Describing new programs being studied for 1974, Fisher said preliminary investigation had revealed an "almost overwhelming need for personnel well versed in the art of salesmanship."

The vacuum could be filled by a short but intensive course divided into theory and practical, he said. The "academic" section could be generally identical, while specialization could be applied to a variety of fields.

Increasing student demand, with some indication of co-operation from the business, could lead to a hotel-motel management training course, Fisher said.

He added that "tremendous demand" indicated expansions of the nursing orderly and child-care programs.

"Road Test" magazine named it the Sports Car of the Year.

Civil Servants Turn Down Union

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of government employees from seven provinces turned down a proposal Thursday night for a national union of provincial civil servants.

The proposal was put before a special convention of the Canadian Federation of Government Employee Organizations, a loosely-knit body which embraces seven provincial civil service organizations.

But the 80 delegates at the convention rejected most of the key provisions for a proposed constitution for a new organization and the conference decided to drop the matter.

Sid Oxenham, president of the federation, had proposed the organization, saying a new national union is needed to represent provincial employees with "backbone and authority."

In another speech before the proposed constitution was discussed, Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, appealed for greater militancy.

He warned delegates that unless provincial employees get together soon in a strong national union, they will be "chopped up in pieces" by anti-labor legislation passed by provincial governments riding the crest of anti-union sentiment in Canada.

Stanley Little, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said he "would like to see a union of provincial government employees with enough militancy to threaten to use the ultimate weapon (strike), and, on rare occasions, to use it."

The convention, which continues today, has representatives from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta. There also are observers from British Columbia and Manitoba.

Frost Writes Farewell To Tomatoes, Peppers

Not all gardens felt the touch of frost this week, though the cooler nights are having the effect of writing the final paragraph to the story of tender plants in the garden.

Those bearing edible fruits such as squash, tomatoes, sweet peppers, eggplant and okra cannot be expected to continue developing fruits unless temperatures have climbed once again to the 50s and high 60s. Since this is unlikely (though certainly not impossible) we must take whatever profits are available and consider ourselves lucky in having produced anything of value.

Small squash fruits of the dozens of varieties grown are useable at any stage. The tiny ones are steamed whole for five minutes; more mature sizes will keep for a week or so to be cooked in various baked casseroles; while those obviously nearing maturity will remain in good condition if kept in a dry, warm place at 50 to 60 degs. F.

Pull up the vines at once. You may find a few more unexpected fruits lurking on hidden portions. These would be lost if the vines are left for further frosting.

Gardeners who used fencing for training their squash and cucumber vines benefit from the warmer air at that level. Ground frost always precedes air frost.

You will notice that tomato foliage shows frost damage less early than squash and cucumbtr leaves in the same garden. They must be just a shade more resistant. We do know that the squash family only really gets moving after temperatures reach 75 degs. F. From there into the low 100s the plants are in their element.

Tomatoes grow well between 65 and 75 while 80 degs. F. is considered high for fruit setting but will ripen the developed fruits. However, tomato fruits are not likely to do much more ripening outdoors now. Those which have reached the pale green shade (for red varieties) or the pale yellow (on orange kinds) have a chance to fully color indoors if picked before frost damage.

Dry the fruits carefully, lay loosely in thin cardboard box with cover, keeping the box in a house-warm place. Greener fruits may ripen over a longer period by wrapping in brown paper.

Young sweet peppers keep only a week, eggplant and okra pods a few days. Use all these delicious tidbits a few each day in either pan-cooked Chinese dishes, or in baked oven casseroles.

Your culinary successes will be a guideline for planting and sowing next year. And next year you will start your tender vegetables early indoors to have more advanced plants for setting outdoors at the end of May.

SOLUTION MONDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The deal presented today has been accepted as one of bridgedom's classic hands. In it, our West defender got off to the only opening lead that gave the defenders a chance to defeat South's slam contract. But South parried West's thrust by making an excellent psychological play from dummy on the opening lead. In so doing, he put East into a guessing position — and East guessed wrong.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

♠ Q 9 5
♡ 10 8 6 3
◇ 9 7 4 2

WEST
♡ K 7 2
◇ Q J 8 5
♣ K J 9 2

EAST
♠ A K 10 8 3
◇ A K 6

SOUTH
♡ A Q J
◇ 10 3
♣ A Q 10 8 7

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♠	2♣	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

Had West opened either a spade, a heart, or a diamond declarer would have romped in with all thirteen tricks, since he would have been able to discard his two clubs on North's ace and king of hearts.

But with West's low opening lead, declarer found himself with an immediate problem, the resolution of which could not be deferred: was West leading away from the ace or from the queen? If from the ace, then the play of dummy's king of clubs would be the winning one; if from the queen, then a low club off dummy would make a winner out of dummy's king. Of course, if East possessed both the ace and queen, then declarer's cause was lost.

Most players, had they been sitting in the South seat, would have followed suit with the three of clubs from dummy, on the assumption that West's lead was away from the queen rather than from the ace. After all, how many players are there who would underlead an ace at trick one against a slam contract?

Had the three-spot been played from dummy, East would probably have put up the queen automatically, based on the principle of "third hand high." With the queen winning the trick, East would then have hastened to return a club to West's ace, for the setting trick.

But declarer, after only a moment's thought, came up with a play that created a problem for East: he put up the board's eight of clubs instead of the three! Why, East asked himself, did declarer play the board's eight?

From East position, it was unlikely that West was underleading the club ace; and, hence, South rated to have that key card. If East played the queen, South's ace would win, and West's (presumed) jack would be finessed against later, with dummy's K-10 surrounding that card (assuming that declarer had the A-x of clubs). So East decided to play the club nine on dummy's eight. Declarer now scampered home with thirteen tricks.

Frostbiters Ahoy!

The nip in the early morning air this week is a reminder that the time has come for frostbiters to check their sails and other gear in readiness for a new season.

Frostbiters of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will meet at 8 p.m. in the clubhouse tonight to elect their new executive and decide what goes on the program for racing at Cadboro Bay this season.

Also resuming activities this week are members of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club.

Their first race of the season will be a six-miler in waters off Sidney on Saturday. The start gun goes 1:30 p.m. at the government wharf, bottom of Beacon.

The Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, has two races scheduled for Sunday with activities getting under way at noon.

In the 18-miler sailed last Sunday, Lou Boulanger's Bebelle came first over-all, winning the new Chaplain Leá Gillard Memorial Trophy.

Second over-all and first Sailerette home was Jack Stacey's Golden Gull. This gave Jack the Lou Seddon Memorial Trophy and the honor of retaining the sailerettes' Top Dog Challenge Trophy, challenger in the race being Dave Gasser's Red Start.

Jane and Doug Bond came first in their Shark 24 Runaway. In second place was Pauline and Doug Turnham.

Fifty boats were on the start line for the first Turkey Head Sailing Association race of the winter season Sunday morning.

AROUND OUR SHORES

By Pat Dufour

THSA campaigner, Gordie Vickery's Valhalla was first over-all. After her came Steve Merriman's Vandal, Greg Oliver's Sea Fax III, Frank Rhodes' Ouzo, John Booth's Umpka, Jan Huibers' Sea Spell, Jack Woodward's new Cal 29 Puff, John Watson's Pahquee, Hugh Porter's Errigal and Ian Duncanson's Kim.

Divisiin winners were: Cruising A, Valhalla; Cruising B, Cecil Miles' Ixta; Thurderbirds, Umpka; Haidas, Bob van den Driessche's Noosa; Cal 29s, Sea Fax III; Cal 20s, Jack Paterson's Menehuene and Crown 23s, Errigal.

Winds for the 7.2-mile race were light and had dwindled even more by the time the second sailout started but all 45 boats managed to complete the five-mile course.

This time the winner was Ouzo. Behind her were Errigal, Vandal, Sea Fax III, Puff, Kim, Nigel Scott-Moncrieff's Tatoosh, Umpka, Pahquee and Noosa.

Division winners were: Cruising A, Ouzo; Cruising B, Tatoosh; Thunderbirds, Umpka, Haidas, Noosa; Cal 29s, Sea Fax III; Cal 20s, Menehuene and Crown 23s, Errigal.

There'll be two more races this Sunday, the first at 10 a.m. and another at 1:30 p.m. with the start line located off Oak Bay Marina.

Tonight at 8 p.m. boats competing in the half-ton championships at Eagle Harbor Yacht Club in West Vancouver will begin the last of four races in the series, started last week.

This could be a toughie if the Gulf of Georgia decides to dish up some of the conditions she's capable of producing. The course is about 90 miles and expiry time is 6 p.m. Sunday.

It's no great surprise to those who've seen her in action to learn that Vladimir Plavsik's Oroa is leading so far.

She won two and came second in the other of the three races sailed last week, stacking up a total of 26.25 points.

Not too far behind her is Gerry Kidd's Hullabaloo. With a first, second and third place she has 22.375 points to her credit.

Tuna Catch Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officials say commercial fishermen are taking the largest tuna catches in 20 years off the west coast of Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlotte Islands.

A fisheries department spokesman said Thursday that albacore tuna are being brought north by unusually high water temperatures resulting from hot weather in July and August.

He said the fishermen are receiving record prices — with tuna bringing $680 a ton at B.C. fish packing plants.

The heavy tuna run has resulted in hundreds of United States fishermen operating in international waters off the B.C. coast along with numerous Canadian vessels that would normally be trolling for salmon.

To reach the tuna fishing, boats must go about 50 miles offshore along the West Coast.

Appeal Adjourned

VANCOUVER (CP) — An appeal against a B.C. Supreme Court decision that upheld the provincial government's liquor and tobacco advertising ban was adjourned Thursday to Nov. 28.

It was put over pending possible repeal of the advertising prohibition by the New Democratic Party government that came into power after the Aug. 30 election. The ban was an act of the Social Credit government which Premier Barrett said he would ask the legislature to repeal.

Postal Boycott

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The New Westminster and District Labor Council has urged its affiliated 25,000 workers not to use postal codes on their mail in connection with the protracted postal workers' dispute.

The council adopted a boycott on the use of the new code numbers, designed to speed up mail through the post office's new automatic letter sorting machines.

Deal Reached

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — Agreement was reached Thursday between the Cariboo Lumbermen's Association and negotiators for the Central Interior International Woodworkers of America, giving 500 millworkers an hourly increase of 87 cents.

The 22-month contract goes into effect Sunday, covering four mills here, whose owners are members of the association. With a current base rate of $3.58 an hour, the millworkers will achieve parity with coast IWA members by 1974, which was the main union demand during talks.

Housing Stalled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister William King was asked Thursday to mediate a strike by elevator installers that has stalled completion of housing for 400 pensioners. Norman Jones, chairman of the society that is building the centre, said some of the people who are to move in have already given notice to their former landlords, and they are under some hardship.

The Sullen Louts Won —And the Nation Lost

Back on May 15 of this year when the Soviet-Canada hockey series was confirmed I made the following comment:

"As I make this entry (in my diary) the Yankee planes are aswarm over North Vietnam. The great powers are looking down each other's throats. Once more, the chances for a peaceful world seem perilous.

"As if all that weren't feverish enough it now seems a certainty that Canada will be playing Russia in a hockey tournament this autumn. Me, I'm heading for that secret cave in the Sooke hills until it all blows up or blows over.

"Just why anyone in his right mind should see anything to be gained by pitting our muscle-men on skates against their muscle-men on skates is something that totally eludes me. Hockey, at this professional level, has become the most savage of games. It is far and away the most idiotic, pointless expression of cretinous nationalism that has been invented short of war. Win or lose, the recriminations are inevitable.

"You need merely to have watched the final games of the Stanley Cup play-offs to see how passions are aroused, in the holy name of box office receipts, by a contest that seems a microcosm of human violence and brutality, an extension of all the dumb things that divide nations and ideologies.

"If athletes are to be good-will ambassadors, if sports are to be a means of bringing nations closer together, let's stick to ping pong players."

Today, five months later, the Soviet-Canadian hockey series has gone into history and I make this comment:

One jubilant remark was common to each of the players, coaches and spectators who came to the television cameras in Moscow after the game was over: "I'm proud to be a Canadian." It was made by people to whom the game is more of a crusade than a sport. Even so, it was a sentiment that seemed to me the ultimate hypocrisy to end a sordid affair.

I was not proud to be a Canadian in that moment of triumph brought about by someone shoving a rubber disc in the netting. I was deeply ashamed of being a Canadian, win, lose or draw. It was exactly as I had anticipated it: Far and away the most idiotic, pointless expression of cretinous nationalism short of war.

If there's anything worse than a bad loser it is a bad winner. Which ever way the final game had gone we were destined to be one or the other.

In a lifetime of watching games, professional and amateur, I have never seen sportsmanship at a lower level than it was throughout this series by the Canadian players. It will be years, if ever, before we can live down the image and the shame. If there's a Soviet citizen today who sees us as anything but a mindless, vicious, cry-baby people he can't have been watching that little screen.

Winning may make it all seem right to some Canadians, I think that to the majority it will remain in the memory as a disgrace. The gentlemen ambassadors we sent abroad in the holy name of sports were thugs and hooligans. They won, as Canada's team, but every Canadian has lost in the eyes of the world.

Some will remember only the moment of triumph. More, I think, will be remembering those sullen louts protesting their well-deserved penalties, pantomiming the throat-cutting gesture to their opponents, one threatening to decapitate a referee with his stick, almost without exception so furiously, feverishly concerned with winning that there was no room for even a gesture of decency.

Some will remember the roar of the Canadian crowd. More will remember the ancient voice of Foster Hewitt, happily informing his listeners back home, that "Gilbert got in a real good one there" — the reference being to a punch in the mouth.

Let's not rationalize that "after all, they are professional hockey players." They were representing us as Canadians. They represented us badly.

Airbus Service Proposed on V.I.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Vancouver Island's first airbus service has been proposed by Harrison Airlines of Vancouver.

The service would permit passengers to walk directly on to a plane at Victoria International Airport and buy a ticket during the flight, arriving in Nanaimo about 12 minutes later.

The idea is to end waits at airports and lining up to buy tickets in advance.

Harrison Airlines, a Vancouver-based charter firm, has applied to the federal Air Transport Committee for permission to fly a daily airbus service starting from Abbotsford.

From Abbotsford the plane would fly to Victoria and then make stops at Nanaimo, Courtenay, Campbell River and Port Hardy.

Only brief stops would be made in each city.

From Port Hardy the plane would make the return journey along the same route to Courtenay, Nanaimo, Victoria and Abbotsford.

Flying time from Victoria to Port Hardy, including stops at airports, will be about 90 minutes.

Rate schedule has yet to be determined but the cost of the trip from Victoria to Nanaimo might be about $10.

The airbus is based on the concept that air travel takes too long due to delays at airports. All services are handled inside the aircraft and late-arriving passengers can buy tickets during flight.

The company will begin the service as soon as approval is obtained.

Harrison Airways started 13 years ago with a single plane and has expanded to 18 airplanes for charter work. It has wheel and float craft and twin-engine planes for executive charter.

The two biggest planes are DC-3s.

One month ago, the company was granted permission to begin flights from Vancouver to Burns Lake and from Vancouver to Deas Lake, the terminal point of the B.C. Railway.

The airbus concept is a new development in air service. Pacific Western Airlines has started a similar service between Edmonton and Calgary.

The airbus proposal will not compete with existing routes between Victoria and Vancouver as the morning flight will be from the mainland to Victoria.

However, Fraser Valley passengers who wish to go to Victoria would be able to take off from Abbotsford instead of driving in to Vancouver.

The proposal was unveiled in Victoria at a meeting of the transport committee of Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber board of directors was meeting today and was expected to vote support for the proposal.

Chamber manager Brian Small said the transport committee fully supported the proposed service on the basis of backing all business expansion that seemed to be for the good of the district.

MASSIVE PATCH-UP is carried out on freighter Aegean Sea, victim of collision in Juan de Fuca Strait Sept. 4. Yarrow's, conducting $500,000 repair job, is replacing steel hull plates from the bottom up, and will refloat ship over the weekend. Upper plates and inside work will be finished while the crippled freighter rides at anchor. The 11,300-ton Aegean Sea was badly mauled when she was rammed by the American freighter C. E. Dant. The collision left the two ships locked together 67 hours.

Blind Eye Claimed Over Bike Dealer

City police have been accused of turning a blind eye to the fact that a motorcycle dealer is using the public boulevard as an extension of his business premises — because police bikes are serviced there.

Commercial photographer John Barnard said today that the firm, Brooklands Motorcycle Sales and Service, 937 Fort, "laughs with impunity" when residents of the area complain about the nuisance caused.

"This is probably the worst example in Victoria of misuse of public property but the city police, who are the firm's main clients, never do anything about it," Barnard said.

By parking motorcycles on the Meares Street boulevard at the rear of its premises, the firm is enjoying the use of "20 or 30 square feet of untaxed city property," he charged.

Barnard noted that city council has expressed concern in recent months about the problem of commercial intrusion on to sidewalks by tourist-oriented businesses in the downtown area, but said problems on less busy streets are apparently ignored.

Because the boulevard outside the site was becoming churned up by the firm's activities, he said the city cemented over that portion "in sheer desperation," and it was now used regularly to park machines waiting to be serviced.

It's one of those slow erosions of what used to be a pleasant street and is now becoming a dirty, nasty little area," he said.

(Shortly after 9 a.m. today, an employee of the firm was seen wheeling eight motorcycles on to the cemented section of the boulevard. Among them was police bike.

Colin Crisp, assistant to the city manager, said as far a he was aware no formal complaints about the matter had come to city hall.

However, a spokesman for the city engineer's department said the parking of machines at that spot was technically infringing the city's street traffic bylaw.

If the matter was drawn to the attention of the department it would probably be investigated. he said, adding that the police also have "power to act" in such situations.

Deputy police chief Ray Maitland said there was no substance to Barnard's claim that the police ignored the alleged infraction because department machines were serviced there.

"I have seen it on our reports where we have gone after the firm pretty strongly," Maitland said. "It's a matter of record that he has been warned and told he will be summonsed if the practice continues."

However, he said he was unaware of any recent complaints.

Reg Shanks, proprietor of Brooklands, was unavailable for comment today but an employee of the firm said he had not heard of any complaints from neighboring residents.

He said motorcycles were parked on "a concrete pad at the back of the shop." He admitted this formed part of the boulevard, but said the firm had paid for the cementing to be done.

EIGHT HERE DRAWN IN IRISH

Eight Victorians had tickets drawn Thursday on horses running in Saturday's Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket, England.

A ticket on the winning horse is worth about $120,000. Second prize is $47,000, third $24,000. Tickets on non-starters or horses which finish out of the money are worth about $1,000 each.

With horse's name, followed by ticket number and nom-de-plume, the local winners are:

Hockey's Finest Hour: Sweet and Sour

Euphoria from Team Canada's hockey triumph in Moscow interrupted and enlivened what was an unusually dull afternoon of debate on civic affairs at city hall on Thursday.

But not everyone had that uplifted feeling.

Both Ald. Mike Young and Mayor Peter Pollen had some harsh things to say about the general conduct of the Canadian team, Young calling it "deplorable" and Pollen "disgraceful."

It all started when Ald. Tom Christie rose to move that "Whereas the city of Victoria is a former holder of the Stanley Cup and has always been a keen hockey city," the mayor should send a telegram of congratulation to the team on their "brilliant and courageous come-from-behind victory" in Thursday's hockey game.

Christie said both the Russian and Canadian teams should also be congratulated on their "outstanding and exciting play" in the eight-game series.

When it came to voting on the motion, though, Young was a very obvious dissenter.

"I don't think our city ever held any championship for pugilism," he explained.

That prompted Pollen to remark that he would gladly entertain a motion questioning whether the team's "rough-house behavior" was really necessary.

"I think the behavior of our team was disgraceful," he said. "I know it's not good for votes, but to have our children watching people hitting each other on the ice is deleterious . . .

When Ald. Alf Hood pointed out that the Russian players were hardly blameless in the pugilistic sense, Young said he was not suggesting the fault lay only with the Canadians.

He cheered and jumped along with reporters as Paul Henderson scored the winning goal in the final minute.

After the game was over and the series won, Barrett exclaimed:

"The French couldn't do it, the Germans couldn't do it; now Canada has done it and they had better get out of town before it starts snowing."

Elevator Strike Shuts Down Jobs

A three-week strike by elevator constructors in most parts of Canada is preventing completion of some building projects in Greater Victoria.

C. S. Dumaresq, vice-president of Montgomery Elevators, said today his company has several jobs shut down in apartments.

"It is not the total project which is shut down, but we can't complete the elevator installation," he said.

He said several apartments in Esquimalt, a motel on Gorge Road, Spencer Castle in Victoria and an apartment in Ladysmith are affected in this way.

"As far as maintenance is concerned, we are at a standstill on preventative maintenance. But we are answering all emergency calls," he said.

The strike is against the Big Five elevator companies in Canada — Montgomery, Otis, Westinghouse, Armour and Turnbull Dover. Montgomery employs 17 of the 23 union members in Victoria.

The men belong to the International Union of Elevator Constructors and are on strike in every province except Alberta and Quebec. The walkout is expected to extend to these provinces when requirements of the separate acts regarding negotiations have been met.

Main issue is prefabrication of elevators, which the union fears would lead to a reduction of half the on-site work force. Other issues have not been disclosed.

New Charge Coming At Mayfair Barber

Beleauguered barber Carlos Almeida's Mayfair Barber Shop Ltd. will face a new charge in provincial court for remaining open Wednesdays.

Almeida's firm was found not guilty Thursday of contravening a municipal bylaw by remaining open Monday, July 10.

The company was originally charged by Victoria Barber's Union Secretary Len Stephenson under a 1958 bylaw which stipulates barber shops must close on Wednesdays.

Stephenson plans to lay the new charge under a 1964 bylaw which allows barbershop proprietors the option of choosing their own weekday closing date.

The judge ruled that unless formal application is made to operate under the 1964 optional closing day bylaw, the proprietors of a barber shop are automatically subject to the 1958 bylaw.

Alder said the former owners of the shop in 1964, exercised that option and chose Monday. He said since Almeida took over the shop there had been no formal application to continue to close Mondays so Mayfair Barber Shop Ltd. should be closing Wednesdays.

Since July 10 the shop has been open Mondays and Wednesdays.

During the trial defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood made numerous objections to prosecutor Peter Birkett's attempts to introduce various pieces of evidence saying his attempts were "an abuse of the procedure of the court."

Owen-Flood rose so often to object such evidence was hearsay and inadmissable that Birkett called him a "jack-in-the-box."

Stephenson said today he plans to lay a charge against Mayfair Barber Shop Ltd. under the 1958 bylaw if the shop is open next Wednesday.

"I have no choice," said Stephenson, "the judge said he has to close Wednesdays and the bylaw has to stand or it doesn't. I've spent a lot of time on this bylaw."

Ask the Times

Q. Where would I write to get a duplicate copy of my parents' marriage certificate? They were married in the province of Manitoba. Also how much would it cost? — M.G.

A. You have to write to the division of vital statistics, No. 104, 401 York Ave., Winnipeg 1, Manitoba. You must provide your parents' full names, including your mother's maiden surname, the date and place of the marriage. It will cost you $2.

SMOOTH SAILING FOR NIGHT RUNS

A spokesman for ferry workers said Thursday he could see no barriers to the proposed night ferries.

"We would have no objections," said Norman Thornber, business agent for the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

"We would co-operate in setting up a night sailing. However, we would want complete negotiations to determine conditions and this would have to be ratified by the membership."

Highways Minister Robert Strachan said Monday the government is studying costs of night ferries and asking crews if they want to man the extra schedules.

Boulevard an Extension of Business Premises?

Aspirin Tests Show Sex Bias

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scientists believe they have discovered a hitherto unsuspected difference between men and women. On the average, blood serum from 54 women attacked aspirin with less vigor than serum from 50 men.

The experiment was made by a scientific team led by Dr. Rene Menguy of the University of Rochester (N.Y.). The scientists were reluctant in classifying the difference as "sex-linked."

How it could be was far from apparent. The long-term trend in biochemical research has been to lessen rather than add to fundamental differences between men and women. Yet the scientists had their experimental result. The final answer will come from more research.

Common Drug

Anyway, science should look more thoroughly into how body chemistry handles aspirin, since it is by far the most used of all drugs, the scientists said.

Once in the body, aspirin is broken down into salicylic acid and acetic acid but the former is the principal metabolite. It is done mainly by an enzyme system built around the enzyme aspirin-esterase operating both from the blood serum and the liver.

The occasional stomach ulceration in aspirin takers is caused by the intact aspirin molecule rather than by its metabolites. But the scientific suspicion—not yet backed by solid experimental evidence — is that aspirin's pain-relieving power also comes from the intact molecules.

The Rochester scientists were launched into experimentation by findings in Australia and New Zealand that female aspirin takers had a higher incidence of gastric ulceration than male takers.

They bled 54 healthy women and 50 healthy men, being careful to exclude anyone who took aspirin regularly. These serums, they incubated in laboratory dishes with aspirin to arrive at estimates of their contents of the breaking-down enzyme, aspirin-esterase.

Less Enzyme

There were considerable differences among individuals but female serum consistently had less of the enzyme than male. About 20 per cent of the total enzymatic activity is believed to come from the serum, the remainder from the liver.

For that reason the scientists analyzed enzyme content in rat livers and found that female livers had less than male.

Newly Married Ugandan Couple View Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Zul and Yasmin Rupani were married in Uganda 14 months ago — on the same day that President Idi Amin ordered all Asians out of the East Africa country.

Thursday, the young Asian couple, both accountants, were among 138 refugees in the first major group to arrive in Canada.

Two hours after their daybreak arrival, they were sipping coffee and eating cream cakes in a military gymnasium in east end Montreal, waiting to be assigned temporary accommodations and thinking about their future in Canada.

"We like this country, you see," Mr. Rupani said, "a country that really wanted to help us."

They hope to go to Toronto where they have friends and will look for jobs.

They said they had heard "quite a bit" about Toronto. As for the country they left, Yasmin said the political climate "was not really bad," but "people are trying to get out as fast as possible."

Both the Rupanis and another Ugandan couple had already made plans to leave their country before the expulsion order came.

The second couple asked not to be identified because they still have relatives in Uganda and the husband had left his post as a senior agricultural officer without informing the government.

"We had foresight," the husband said, adding that they had already applied to Australia and Canada by the time the expulsion was announced. He was studying in Australia when the order came.

The two couples are typical of the Asian refugees encountered at the Longue Pointe military barracks where the immigration and manpower department has set up a reception centre for the Asians. Counsellors will help them decide on their final destination.

Medical Group Marks 50 Years

The Victoria Medical Society celebrated the 50th anniversary of the opening of its library with an open house today.

The library was recently relocated in the basement of the Eric Martin Institute on Trent Street after being in the basement of the Richmond Pavilion alongside Royal Jubilee Hospital for about 27 years.

'Wonderful Junk'

When do old things become sought-after junk? I've been tossing that question around in my mind since reading an article about a couple who have a "thing" for old houses and what they label as "wonderful junk".

The article, in an August issue of the Christian Science Monitor, told of a young man named Peter and his wife Tari, who have the knack of making old things assume new importance and new usefulness.

'Brown Shingle'

In their home, described as "1906 brown shingle", they have yellow chrysanthemums growing out of a weathered wooden ice cream freezer.

Over a mantle in the living room there's a child's hobby horse, made in 1850. An old flour bin holds a piggy-back plant on its lid. The table in the dining room was once a butcher's block. It was planed down by Peter and set in a heavy iron frame to make it "dineable".

As far as collecting is concerned, this couple started from scratch. They were not "willed" anything in the way of "wonderful junk" by parents or grandparents. Nor did they receive gifts from aunts, uncles or cousins.

Their old crocks, old clocks, old baskets and old signs, were gathered in ways devised by themselves.

They made friends with wrecking and demolition companies and sought out the shops that not only specialized in a few antiques but also in a lot of fascinating second-hand stuff.

Friends who knew of their interest also acted as scouts for them and they came up with some worthwhile stuff.

This over-all plan is still used but the young couple say "good junk is getting harder and harder to find."

New Favored

Which brings me back to my original question—when do old things become wonderful junk? And, to that let me add—why do people toss out the old things or bundle them off to second-hand stores—even burn them—in favor of the modern and the new?

I wonder how many wooden ice cream freezers, right here in Victoria, have been broken up, burned or tossed out as ordinary (not wonderful) junk? How many old-time sofas have been pushed aside for a modern chesterfield and chair?

Think of the colorful tea caddies, the brass jardinieres, the pottery vases, the old time beds with high wooded backs scrolled with fruits and flower designs. (What wonderful panelling those backs would make in a home today.)

From Japan

Go back to the marble-topped tables and the fine cloissonne and damasceine pieces that, at one time, came in from Japan. Many another "old thing" has, over the years, just disappeared to make a place for the new.

Those same pieces today are being picked up by young couples and instead of being shrugged off as being of little value they are lovingly handled and renamed "wonderful junk".

I'm certain there are people in this city who, like Peter and Tari, appreciate old artifacts, especially when they are from this province's colorful past.

If so, I'd be interested in hearing from some of them. I'd like to know something about the "wonderful junk" they have discovered and how they are approaching the business of making it assume new usefulness.

Good News

BULLETIN — Because you have expressed sympathetic interest in me during the past 11 weeks while I have been sidelined with broken bones, I'd like you to share some really good news.

The casts were removed from both my legs earlier in the week. The bones are healing. I can move my knees, my toes and with some effort, my ankles.

Gradually, I'm being allowed to place a little weight on my feet. And, very hopefully now, I'll be seein' you . . . soon.

Brief Seeks Women For Police Forces

The Status of Women Action Group (SWAG) has appealed to the Victoria police force to hire and train more policewomen for regular police work.

The appeal was made in a brief presented by the group to the Victoria Board of Police Commissioners this week.

"There are some instances where policewomen serve a unique role, and any police force which does not utilize the talents of women is less effective than it ought to be," the brief stated.

"However ... there is no reason why trained policewomen should not carry out all normal police duties such as patrol duties, traffic control and all other investigations of criminal activity," it continued.

SWAG pointed out that only two of 257 police officers serving Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are women.

"We feel that the current policy of the Victoria police department which sets an arbitrary limitation of hiring only one policewoman is irrational and shortsighted," SWAG said.

No Promise Made

Mayor Peter Pollen, chairman of the Victoria Board of Police Commissioners, made no promise to increase the number of policewomen on the force.

"The most difficult area for women's rights would be in the police area," said Pollen Thursday.

Men qualifying to become police officers must be 5'10½" and weigh at least 165 pounds, Pollen said.

"If we could get women with that qualification that would be great," he added.

Pollen said the police department was considering replacing four policemen who work as courtroom staff with uniformed non-police officers. Women would be considered for these positions, he said.

"I think the brief was good," said Pollen, "(but) I did question the rather glib sloganeering and the intrusion of American sociological jargon into the brief."

The SWAG brief asked that separate job classifications for men and women be abolished, and that women on the force be given equal opportunities for promotions with men.

"The current policy of the Victoria police department of maintaining segregated ranks and limiting promotions of policewomen to no higher than 'first-class policewoman' is a classic example of an artificially contrived classification," SWAG said.

Dead-End Category

"Under such a policy policewomen, no matter how qualified or how promising, are automatically relegated to a dead-end category as soon as they reach the first-class policewoman rank. . . . In addition to this, by the device of these separate rankings, policewomen are subject to further discrimination through inferior wages."

SWAG's interest in policewomen was sparked by the resignation of Janet Holmes, only policewoman on the Victoria police force, this summer. Miss Holmes felt that she wasn't given enough opportunity for advancement.

"She didn't ask us to take it up, but she did publicly state her grievances," said Kathleen Ruff, president of SWAG. SWAG began gathering information about the hiring practices of local police departments.

The group doesn't expect to achieve spectacular results with its brief, said Mrs. Ruff.

"They weren't overwhelmingly in support . . ." she said, "but they seemed to recognize that there were fairly reasonable arguments to support the brief."

Worm farmer Ray Mayo packs his wrigglers

BAD BACK CRAMPS WORM STYLE

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Raymond Mayo has about 50 million head of stock on his farm, but he says he's going to sell out because of an ailment that's ruination for a man in his business.

Mayo is a worm farmer with a bad back, and a man who can't bend to tend the critters hasn't got much future in the worm-raising game.

Raymond, 38, and his wife Sue run the Shannon Worm Farm — one of the world's largest — on four acres of rich soil just outside this Florida east coast city.

Mayo says that in a good week he'll sell more than 2,400 cups of worms to retailers from California to Maine. The retailers sell the wrigglers — about 60 to a cup — to fishermen for 55 to 75 cents.

Modern Family Life 'A Nightmare'

QUEBEC (CP) — Modern family life is a "nightmare" which has "nothing to do with the traditional family," anthropologist Margaret Mead said Thursday.

Dr. Mead told the annual meeting of the Vanier Institute of the Family that pre-industrial societies "never thought of putting a young husband and wife together, separating them from their relatives in little suburban boxes and moving them around."

A return to an "extended-family" pattern is needed to permit wider relationships between young and old people and children and to provide greater support for individuals within the family.

"I think we have to build communities again," she said.

This would require new forms of housing to permit families to include three generations and in some cases unmarried uncles or aunts.

Dr. Mead said that in the extended family a grandmother or aunt could help out a mother, while a wage-earner who lost his job could fall back on others in the family.

"The nuclear family places a terrible burden on a young father who is terrified of losing his job and therefore becomes a cog in the system," Dr. Mead said.

"And it produces a mother who doesn't dare take time off if she's sick."

The result was a perfect fit with a "manipulative" society because the father worrying about his job would agree to anything in order to keep it.

Dr. Mead, a renowned scholar and author of numerous books, was speaking after being awarded the Wilder Penfield plaque "in recognition of her contribution in the service of humanity."

It was the first time the plaque, named in honor of the Montreal neurosurgeon Dr. Wilder Penfield, has been awarded. For Dr. Mead, an American, it was the first such honor from Canada.

Dr. Mead said the family will survive as an institution, because "children need to be brought up in families."

"But not in isolated nuclear families."

She said that while no society has yet abolished the family, up to now the family has raised boys to kill in war and girls to egg them on.

MEAD
. . . Canuck 'stuck'

At a news conference, the anthropologist suggested Canada's bicultural problem stems from the reluctance or refusal of both French- and English-speaking peoples to learn a second language.

"You're stuck in Canada with two of the most obstreperous non-language-learners in the world," she said.

She suggested the two groups agree on a common third language for communication, so that neither English nor French would have their language favored in inter-group communication.

World Hunger Cure Lies in Technology

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A noted Canadian food scientist says fabricated foods and better regulation of food labelling and processing can eliminate world hunger and improve food quality.

Dr. Ross Chapman, director-general of international health services in the Canadian Health and Welfare Department, said Thursday that poor nutrition and hunger could end if food science technology is given more emphasis and there is better regulation of the food industry.

Dr. Chapman said much of the know-how is available now to fabricate foods from natural components such as soybeans and peanuts, and from synthetic components made in the laboratory.

"If we are to feed the world's population during the next three decades," Dr. Chapman said, fabricated foods are needed.

Dr. Chapman made his remarks upon receiving the 1972 Underwood Prescott Memorial Award at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Oak Lake, Man., native and graduate of McGill University in Montreal was selected for the award by the MIT department of nutrition and food science and cited for "his contributions to the field of food science and technology in laying a sound foundation for the development and establishment of regulatory procedures for the food and drug industries. . . ."

Dr. Chapman said that, considering only protein content and not other nutrients, soybean protein costs 15 cents a pound compared with $11.40 a pound for meat protein in a T-bone steak.

"These data clearly indicate that from the economic point of view it is just plain silly to put our vegetable protein through the cow, pig or steer for conversion into animal protein," he said.

Dr. Chapman said that as the use of fabricated foods spreads, governments and industry will have to develop new methods of evaluating nutritional values and safety to develop new standards not applicable to natural foods.

Dr. Chapman said food poisoning continues to be a worldwide problem and said there must be better government standards to guard against microbial and other forms of contamination.

"It has been estimated that there may be 200,000 cases of food poisoning each year in Canada," he said. "I have seen corresponding figures for the United States which range from several hundred thousand to a few million cases per year."

Dr. Chapman puts part of the blame on food processors.

"It would appear that some food processors have become just a little too complacent about the importance of the appropriate times and temperatures of the processing of their products."

Woman Heads Force

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Law enforcement agencies — from the FBI to local police — are finding out something Mrs. Anne Michalek learned the hard way seven years ago.

The something? When it comes to fighting crime, woman can do as good a job as men.

The FBI is now training women agents and New York and other cities are assigning policewomen to regular street patrols on a routine basis.

Mrs. Michalek, 40, is the lone woman among 107 branch managers of Burns International Security Services Inc. She heads the 175-man Burns force in Western Massachusetts.

TRANSPLANT NEED SEEN

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Pierre Grondin, who performed Canada's first heart transplant, said this week "there will always be a need for heart transplant surgery" although the number of such operations has decreased.

Dr. Grondin, chief surgeon at the Montreal Institute of Cardiology, told a news conference that greater progress is being made in the development of mechanical heart devices than in research to end rejection of transplanted hearts.

Dr. Grondin, who has performed nine heart transplant operations, said "no significant advance" has been made in the field of immunology in recent years.

He and two associates were here to conduct a one-day clinic on cardiovascular diseases.

His Snobbish Attitude Would Probably Show

DEAR ABBY: I do volunteer work with two wonderful women one day a week. It's not very glamorous work, and they are very dedicated and I admire them tremendously.

One of the women invited my husband and me to her home for dinner. My husband wasn't too thrilled about going, but I got him there, and thank goodness, he was cordial. It was a small party, just the two volunteer workers, their husbands and us.

After we got home my husband told me to never subject him to another evening like that! He said he'd never spent such a boring evening — the women came on strong, like a couple of women's libbers, and he felt sorry for their poor henpecked husbands. (That wasn't my impression. I thought the women were fun and entertaining, and the husbands seemed very proud of them.)

Abby, I know I should invite these nice people to my home, but I'm afraid my husband wouldn't hear of it. My problem is, I can't face them every week knowing I should reciprocate. We are quite socially prominent, and they know we entertain a lot, and I'm sure they wonder why I haven't invited them back. Should I beg my husband to please let me have them? It's terribly embarrassing. How should I handle it? — In A Quandary

DEAR IN: Reciprocate by inviting the women over some afternoon, sans husbands. DON'T "beg" your husband to be a host to these nice people. His snobbish attitude would probably show, which would be more humiliating to your guests than not being invited at all.

DEAR ABBY: I just attended a bridal shower where one woman brought her seven-year-old daughter. (The only child there.) The mother planted the little girl at the guest of honor's feet while she opened her gifts. There were lots of pictures taken while the shower gifts were opened, so of course this child got in every one of them

The mother of the child has relatives all over town so there was no excuse of taking her along. What's with these pushy mothers? Or am I the oddball? — Another Mother

DEAR MOTHER: Pushy mothers have been with us since Eve gave Adam the rib. Just try not to hold it against the kids. They're the victims.

DEAR ABBY: Occasionally someone corrects my pronunciation of a word. This makes me very angry. Everyone mispronounces a word occasionally. I think anyone who corrects a person is rude and ignorant. What do you think? — Mimi

DEAR MIMI: It depends upon the circumstances. To correct someone publicly is rude and unkind. But a private correction is a courtesy.

If your property has not been re-appraised for the past couple of years, you are very likely underinsured. Adequate insurance for you means the replacement cost of your home plus the depreciated value of its contents.

The 4-page folder Have You Outgrown Your Home Insurance? underlines that in addition to sufficient insurance for the building, its interior should be properly covered. This may be worth more than you think.

The booklet therefore suggests that you go from room to room, including attic, basement and garage, to make a complete inventory. List everything from furniture, carpets and drapes to books, hobby equipment and everybody's clothing. Then estimate the present value of each item.

The folder also points out that frequently a fire causes only minor damage to a building, but water damage may ruin most of the contents. If you carry adequate insurance, the damage can be repaired without hardship to your purse.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Our deepest appreciation to the Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh, officers and members of Temple Lodge No. 33 A.F. and A.M. for the impressive service and tribute paid to their late brother and our loved one. The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed but we want our many friends on the Island, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind werds and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow. —Mrs. J. Stanley Dyke and family.

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbours to know how much their kind words, letters, floral offerings and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our only son Danny Noble. — Jim, Margie, Lorraine, Leslie and Margo Noble.

9 IN MEMORIAM

PHIPPS—William H., who passed away September 29, 1965.
Quietly remembered every day,
Sadly missed along life's way;
Just as you were, you'll always be,
Treasured in our memory.
—Missed by loving wife Charlotte, Annie and Bill.

WATTS — In loving memory of our dear grandparents, Charlie and Jean, who passed away suddenly Sept. 29, 1967.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today;
For the ones we loved so dearly
Have forever been called away.
We think of them in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Are North Americans Pill Takers?

One of the common criticisms of North Americans is that we are a nation of "pill-takers," overusing sedatives and stimulants to an extreme. But findings of recent national surveys made by the National Institute of Mental Health do not support the view that the prescribing habits of American physicians are contributing to a rising incidence of drug abuse. The rate of prescriptions filed in the U.S. is similar to rates found in several European countries, that is, slightly more than five prescriptions per person per year.

The NIMH research project included the gathering of data on prescriptions filled in U.S. drugstores, on the prescribing behavior of private physicians, and on patterns of drug acquisition and drug usuage among adults.

The researchers found that an estimated 1.3 billion prescriptions were filled in 1970, and the consumers paid $5.6 billion for these drugs. Of these, 17 per cent were for psychotherapeutic drugs — that is, antianxiety agents, antidepressants, antipsychotics, stimulants, hypnotics (sleep-makers), and sedatives.

Interestingly, the most frequently prescribed phychotherapeutic drug was the antianxiety type, which accounted for 39 per cent. It is a rather sad commentary on this world of ours that it produces that much anxiety.

Actually, Americans are conservative in their attitudes toward tranquilizers. People surveyed felt that doctors prescribe such drugs more than they should, and thought it would be better to use willpower to solve problems, which tranquilizers may cover up.

It was found that most psychotherapeutic drug prescribing is done by nonpsychiatrists — mainly general practitioners and internists. They contribute most heavily to the prescribing of sedatives and stimulants.

The researchers talked with some 2552 persons about what drugs they had in their medicine cabinets and where they had acquired them, and of the persons interviewed, 30.9 per cent reported that they had taken a psychotherapeutic drug in the course of a year; 22 per cent had taken prescription drugs, and 11.7 per cent had purchased over-the-counter (non-prescription) drugs.

By sex, 29 per cent of the women and 13 per cent of the men had obtained prescriptions for psychotherapeutic drugs during the year. The number of men and women buying over-the-counter drugs during the same period was nearly equal. The antianxiety drugs were the most popular, and a larger number of women than men used stimulants, primarily for losing weight. Interestingly, more men than women had bought stimulants without a prescription.

ANOTHER DUTCH AUCTION DANDY???
NEW (practically) 18' fibreglass displacement sport fisherman, flotation, self bailing, a traditional design and well equipped. A most unusual craft owned and lovingly cared for by a little old man who has taken up farming. This week $3200 — next week $3,150 and so forth until sold or given away!
POWER BOATS!!
31' steel nedan cruiser, twin diesels, built in the famous Akerboom yard, Holland in 1960. Displacement hull, cruising speed 8 knots, sleeps 4, 60 gal. fuel, 60 gal. water, dinghy in davits, R.T. Many extras and completely equipped. This is an excellent seaboat and truly outstanding at $16,500
36' displacement sedan cruiser, cedar on oak, 110 HP Nordberg, 100 gal. fuel, 60 gal. water, well laid-out galley with oil range, propane fridge and stove, radio telephone, sounder, RDF, snifter, electric anchor winch, dinghy etc. Reduced for quick sale. A fine live-aboard boat. $9,000
QUESTION???
What is the boat for today's skiper who lives aboard his boat; sails with his family; races with his wife; wants to win races and requires comfort below deck and efficiency on deck???
ANSWER — C and C 35!!!
Our C and C 35 is available for your inspection daily 8 a.m. to sunset.
DINGHY SPECIAL!!

MARINE DIVISION
Remember — our policy is to serve your needs — and do it to the best of our ability. Browse around, take a good look at the row upon row of boats — inboard and outboard — trailers — outboards (new and used) — even dinghies, brand new and otherwise.
Certainly we deal in motorcycles — and golf cars — and trailers — and brokerage etc., but we're just a dept. store trying to meet all your requirements in the recreational, leisure field — and we expect to expand further! In the last little while we have even added two wholesale distribution divisions!
We're not as perfect as we'd like to be, but we do try each and every day to be a bit better — and a nicer place for you to do business with.
Our staff is ever expanding and if we do find that an employee isn't doing his job — (which is just making you happy) whether it's service or sales, we make the necessary adjustments.
Pearson World of Pleasure Ltd. is probably the largest small boat dealer on the island. There are literally dozens of boats, trailers and outboards — we think you'll be happy with the deal, the personnel and the service.
WE DO TRY HARDER!

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.
2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.
3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.
4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.
5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.
7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.
8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call.

COUTURE PATTERN

By VIOLET WEBER

At this time of year, a woman's thoughts inevitably turn to her wardrobe. As a starter, consider this lightweight jersey designed by Luis Estevez in two tones of gray.

Estevez' reputation is that of a designer who believes in flattering the feminine figure no matter what the size. He has achieved this by using a contrasting panel from the bustline down to the bottom of the dress. The papel is topped by pocket flaps.

The shirt look of the dress is carried through in a pointed collar opening to a V and the contrasting opening is snapped shut under buttons allowing easy access without pulling it on over a fresh coiffure. Long sleeves have a cuff and slight fullness. This is a perfect dress for the busy civic-minded woman as well as the careerist.

TO ORDER LUIS ESTEVEZ COUTURE PATTERN NO. E-5301 in sizes 10 to 16 send $1.51 in U.S. funds in cash, cheque or money order (no stamps) to Couture Pattern, Victoria Times, Box 2740, G.P.O., New York, N.Y. 10001. Add 25 cents for first-class mailing. Print plainly your name, address, pattern number and size. Please allow at least 14 days for delivery.

'Unethical' Pros Beat Sportsmen

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians lost their hockey tournament against Canada's professionals, but Soviet sports writers insisted today the "myth of the Canadian pros' invincibility has been destroyed."

The eight-game series ended Thursday night when Team Canada defeated the Russians 6-5 in the decisive match, giving the professionals four wins, three losses and one tie.

The series was to have been a battle of giants: professionals vs. Soviet "amateurs." And with a defeat on its hands, the government-controlled press screamed "Foul play," "Hooliganism" and "Unethical playing."

The Canadians were repeatedly labelled "professionals," while the Russians came off as "Soviet sportsmen."

The labor union newspaper Trud found consolation in the Soviet squad's playing which "confirmed our greater mas-collective attack."

"But, it said, the Canadians "won the last match only with great difficulty, using both prohibited and permitted methods."

The national sports paper, Soviet Sport, said the Canadians' "crudity" was probably due to the Russians "high velocity on the ice."

The "Soviet team began the final game with unusually high speed," the paper said, "and this was probably not expected by the Canadians, who therefore began to violate the rules."

Today's papers failed to note that there were seven Russian penalties to the Canadians' eight in the final game.

The defence ministry paper said the professionals "demonstrated their full set of hooliganistic acts and unethical attitude toward their opponents and tried too use their fists on the referees."

The government news agency Tass complained that "it was indeed difficult to explain by temperament the Canadians' methodical persecution of the leading Soviet players."

COULD BE FINIS FOR HENRI

HALIFAX (CP) — Henri Richard, captain of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, says he is seriously considering retiring from professional hockey at the end of this season.

The 36-year-old centre is playing his 18th season with the Canadiens. This is the last year of his current contract.

Bruins Tie Jets

WINNIPEG (CP) — New Westminster Bruins and Winnipet Jets battled to a 2-2 Western Canada Hockey League exhibition tie before about 200 fans Thursday night.

Exemption Is Name of Game

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — Pro golf's long season is winding down. Many of the game's stars are on extended breaks. Some are through for the season. Others are playing abroad.

But for a nervous handful of golfers, the season is entering its most important phase.

They're the players fighting for a spot among the top 60 money winners for the year, the list that determines the exempt players for next year.

"Being an exempt player is the name of the game out here," said rookie Allen Miller before teeing off today in the first round of the $100,000 Quad-Cities Open.

Exempt players can enter any regular tour event they want and be assured of a spot in the field. Non-exempt players must survive Monday 6,-501-yard, par 71 Crow Valley Golf Club course, there are only six more events this season.

Among those in a fight for exempt spots are veterans Ken Still, Bob Goalby, Art Wall, Charles Sifford and Dan Sikes.

Knudson is in Tokyo this week where he rates as a favorite in the Japan Open.

Tom Shaw and Dale Douglass, both exempt this year, are faced with the need to double their earnings in the remainder of the season.

Most are on hand for this event, which offers a $20,000 first prize.

Pounders Leads

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Leon Pounders led the way with a four under par 67 Thursday in the first round of the $75,000 U.S. National Senior Open golf championship. Pounders, 55, held a one-stroke lead over Eric Monti of Los Angeles, Andy Anderson, Oklahoma City and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va.

Schoendienst Signs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals announced Thursday the signing of Red Schoendienst to a record ninth season as manager of the National League baseball club. The signing of the 49-year-old Schoendienst was for one year at undisclosed terms.

Communication Called Prelude to Progress

duncan cowichan

DUNCAN — Communication confusion in Cowichan Valley was blamed for hindering the area's growth at a meeting here Thursday sponsored by the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

A panel headed by Duncan lawyer Dick Bird drew 45 persons in the attempt to set goals and priorities for the region.

Bird said the Cowichan Valley public seems to respond only when it doesn't want something.

"It could be due to a lack of communication in the Cowichan Valley," he said.

"We have poor government structure," Bird said. "In this area we have the city, municipality, regional district, school board, provincial and federal governments as well as improvement districts. This is common in Canada but we seem to have more than is beneficial to the community."

People are in favor of secondary industry if it will not damage the area in a physical sense. It will create jobs for young people who are generally forced to leave the area when looking for employment, he said.

"After taking inventory we must decide what we have to offer, what people want of us and see about establishing it," Bird said.

Although most people do not want to see any more big industry move into the area, they agreed that the ones here must stay.

The workshop panel consisted of Deputy Minister of Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce L. C. Hempsall, who spoke on economic development; Chamber secretary Tom Oldfield who spoke on ecological concern and Roy Mason, director of regulatory matters for B.C. telephone company, who talked about the social amenities.

Duncan Ald. Hamish Mutter discussed the history of the Cowichan area.

Hempsall described economic development as "the name of the game."

"All communities, large or small, see economic development as the magic formula which will bring opportunity and prosperity to the community — creating jobs, sharing the tax load, providing opportunities for our children and assuring standards of living that have consistently risen," he said.

Hempsall pointed out that accompanying this growth are increasing problems of pollution, loss of privacy, traffic density and changing moral values.

'All of these now making people wonder if the effort is worth the candle," he said.

Hempsall said the main question in any community is "Do we or do we not want economic development?"

"The answer lies in a strange place — not in our schools, or our governments or our churches — but in ourselves."

Hempsall said if we do not want economic development we must realize the consequences.

"If we do, we must state clearly the conditions under which we will accept this development."

He urged controlled development "which reflects the desires and aspirations of the people as well as the developer. It includes the forward planning that isolates industrial development from residential development, insists on standards of appearance by laying down these ground rules to the developer before he starts his development. Not after, when expensive changes can destroy the viability of his project."

Hempsall said every community must decide what kind of development it wants, bearing in mind the basic requirement of each industry.

Hempsall said some clean industries need the support of a not-so-clean industry — a relationship which, if disturbed, prevents the establishment of either. Some industries need a pool of highly skilled technicians while others need to be near large markets or in a harbor city. A few called "footloose industries," can settle anywhere, within reason.

Mason urged the group to work on the lack of communication within the community, governments and industry.

"Leadership is important," he said. "Don't look back, but forward. The future is the only thing we can do anything about."

He urged the group to set goals and priorities.

Oldfield stressed that the area, although it has all the beauty, climate and comforts anyone can desire, needs new industry mainly because of the younger generation who will soon require jobs.

"But we need new industry satisfactory to all. We must retain old industries but we must be sure that every effort and continuing effort is made to make it environmentally sound."

BERRY ALERT SOUNDED

MESACHIE LAKE — Parents have been told to warn their children against eating laurel berries, which are now ripening.

At Mesachie Lake, about five miles west of Lake Cowichan, the poisonous fruit of the laurel bush almost claimed the lives of two young children recently. A two-year-old boy and a girl of the same age sampled the berries from a bush in his parents' yard.

The bush has now been removed.

Although the parents were not aware of the danger of the laurel berries, a visiting friend recognized the danger and telephoned the Duncan Poison Control Centre.

Officials say the poison in the berries attacks the nervous system and the heart. It could be fatal if not treated promptly.

The two children have now recovered from the poisoning and are suffering no effects after being rushed for treatment to the Cowichan and District Hospital and transferred to Victoria.

Maurice Humber Dies at 71

Private funeral services were held in Vancouver Wednesday for Maurice Humber, a former Victoria funiture store owner.

Humber died Monday in Vancouver at the age of 71 after spending all his life in the Victoria area.

He and his two brothers, Bruce and Barley, were owners of Humber Brothers Furniture which became well known for its zany advertising campaigns.

For many years, Maurice Humber wrote a popular humorous column of verse in the store's newspaper advertisements.

He is survived by his daughters Sandra and Gertrude; his mother Gertrude in Washington State; brothers and sisters in Victoria and a sister in Toronto.

NEW CBC ADVENTURE SERIES FILMED IN B.C.

In British Columbia there's a unique breed of men — the licensed beachcombers. They're the only men with the special right to retrieve the logging industry's logs and booms set adrift in storms and accidents along the north Pacific Coast.

It's a rugged, sometimes precarious existence eking out a living this way, supplemented by trolling for salmon, clamdigging and oyster fishing, and scouring the coastal waters of floatsam. To survive, the licensed beachcomber has to be not only a good sailor but a tough, resourceful, independent kind of guy who's able to turn his hand to almost anything. Such a man is Nick Adonidas.

Nick is the protagonist of The Beachcombers, a new half-hour drama series from Vancouver that makes its debut on the CBC television network Sunday, Oct. 1 at 7:00 p.m. And Nick is played by an actor who might have been born for the role — Bruno Gerussi.

Nick Adonidas has a salvage license, an old scow called the Persephone — not much more than 350 h.p. diesel engine surrounded by enough wood to keep it afloat — and a great passion for life. A mid-40s bachelor, he rents a room in a truck-stop diner, Molly's Reach, run by the widow Molly Carmody whose two grand-children, Hughie and Margaret, adore happy-go-lucky Nick.

The Carmody family and an Indian lad named Jesse Jim are continuing characters who will be seen in most episodes of The Beachcombers. Molly Carmody is played by Rae Brown, Hughie and Margaret by 14-year-old Bob Park (From Richmond, B.C.) and 11-year-old Nancy Chapple (From New Westminster, B.C.) Jessie Jim is played by 17-year-old Pat John, an Indian youth from Sechelt.

Partners

In the opening story of the series — sub-titled Partners — Nick goes after a millionaire's yacht that's been set adrift in a storm, hoping to make a small forutne out of the salvage. But when he finds the yacht and boards it to claim the prize who should be sitting in the cabin but the Indian lad Jesse Jim, who says he saw her first and it's a case of "finders keepers."

Partners was written by Gary Dunford and directed by Ken Jubenvill. Besides Pat John, Rae Brown, Bob Park and Nancy Chapple, the first episode also features in the cast Robert Clothier as Ol' Relic, Tom Senelgrove as Old Timer, and John Austin as a limberjack. Ol' Relic is a character who will appear in other stories in the series.

The Beachcombers was created by the star of a previous Vancouver series, The Manipulators, actor Marc Strange and his wife Susan. Canadian writers contributing to the series include Merv Campone (who also wrote for The Manipulators), Alan Oman, Dennis Donovan, Graham McMullin, and Bill Meilen, a faculty member of the University of British Columbia who wrote for the BBC series Z Cars. Directors besides Ken Jubenvill, include Elie Savoie, Don Williams, Kris Paterson, and Don Eccleston.

Executive producer of the 26-week series is Philip Keatley, who produced The Manipulators and such dramas as the award-winning Education of Phyllistine and How to Break a Quarter Horse.

Television Questions and Answers

Q: I watch This Is Your Life. I saw the one on Ken Curtis who plays Festus on "Gunsmoke." Why wasn't James Arness a guest on the show?—I.R.

A: Ralph Edwards is having difficulty getting any big name celebrities on the show, and among the big names, Arness is one of the most camera-shy of all. "This Is Your Life" is something akin to a service club which gives a man-of-the year award as a device for getting a big name speaker free. Arness demurred.

Q: I have three questions: Lynda Day George was expecting a baby. Can you tell me what she had? Also, Wes Montgomery was a brilliant guitarist? I know he is deceased. Can you tell me the cause of death? And has Rock Hudson ever been married?—D.Z.A.

A: In order: Lynda had a daughter on July 24. Montgomery died of a heart attack at age 46. Hudson was married to his agent's secretary for a brief period.

Q: Did Paul Newman ever star in a TV serial called The Long, Hot Summer?—R.J.G.

A: Nope. Newman did the movie. Roy Thinnes, who was groomed to look like Newman, did the TV series.

Q: Some years ago Susan Hayward played a part of a woman who died in the gas chamber. What was that movie named?—H.L.R.

A: I Want to Live, a fictionalized version of the Barbara Graham case.

Q: What has become of Donna Reed of The Donna Reed Show? She was the sweetest girl on TV.—A.I.D.

A: She's virtually out of acting these days, keeping herself busy managing her investments and in causes. Among other things, she's an executive of the Another Mother for Peace movement.

Q: Last spring there was a movie on TV with Susan Hayward and James Stacy as lawyers. I thought it was very good and I thought it was supposed to be a series. I want to know what happened and why it won't be on. It was a lot better than some of the stuff that is on.—B.H.D.

A: You're speaking of Fitzgerald and Pride, which was a pilot film for a series commissioned by CBC. That network decided not to go with it. Now, the ABC network has bought up the rights and is planning to use it as a series starting next fall. Patience.

Vietnam: Beyond the Fury, on 9 at 6:30. Vietnam at peace—an essay on the people, their customs and country. (60 mins.)

Fashion Showcase, on 8 at 7. The second half of an annual fashion show held at the Bayshore Inn with commentator Jean Cannem. (30 mins.)

Saturday

International Hockey, on 8 at 10 a.m. Team Canada meets Czechoslovakia, the World Amateur Hockey Champions, in an exhibition game in Prague.

This fall season has brought some excellent TV viewing for children. For example, on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 4, there's a cartoon movie called, NANNY AND THE PROFESSOR. Don't forget FAT ALBERT AND THE COSBY KIDS on Channel 7 and 12 at 12:30. And at 1 o'clock on the same two channels, be sure to watch CBS CHILDREN'S FILM FESTIVAL. It's all about a young Russian boy who has a wolf-cub as a pet. On Sunday at 7 o'clock on Channel 9, the program ZOOM is back. It's sort of like a grown-up Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood, with songs and dances and funny movies. A new series for kids called ABC AFTERSCHOOL SPECIAL starts this week on Wednesday afternoons, at 4:30 on Channel 4. The first program will be all about ecology with a cartoon lesson about wildlife.

LOVE STORY starring Ali MacGraw and Ryan O'Neal has its television premiere tonight at 9 p.m. on Channel 4. This 1970 film is highlighted by an Oscar-winning score.

SPECIALS

Sunday

Breeders' Stakes, on 8 at 3:30. The 82nd running of the last and longest of Canada's Triple Crown races. Canadian-bred 3-year-olds run a mile and one-half on turf for an estimated 40,000 dollars.

Young People's Concert, on 7 and 12 at 5. Michael Tilson Thomas leads the New York Philharmonic in tracing the history of the popular rhythm — the three-quarter time. Highlights includes selections from Haydn and Strauss.

Masterpiece Theatre, on 9 at 9. Susan Hampshire who became an American TV star in Forsyte Saga, has the lead in Vanity Fair, a five part BBC satire that opens this acclaimed series' new season. Alistair Cooke is the series host. (60 mins.)

NEW FALL PROGRAMS

Sunday

Dollars and Sense, on 2 and 6 at 4. A program of discussion on business and labor — issues of vital importance to Canadians, including foreign trade, industrial expansion, foreign control and private enterprise.

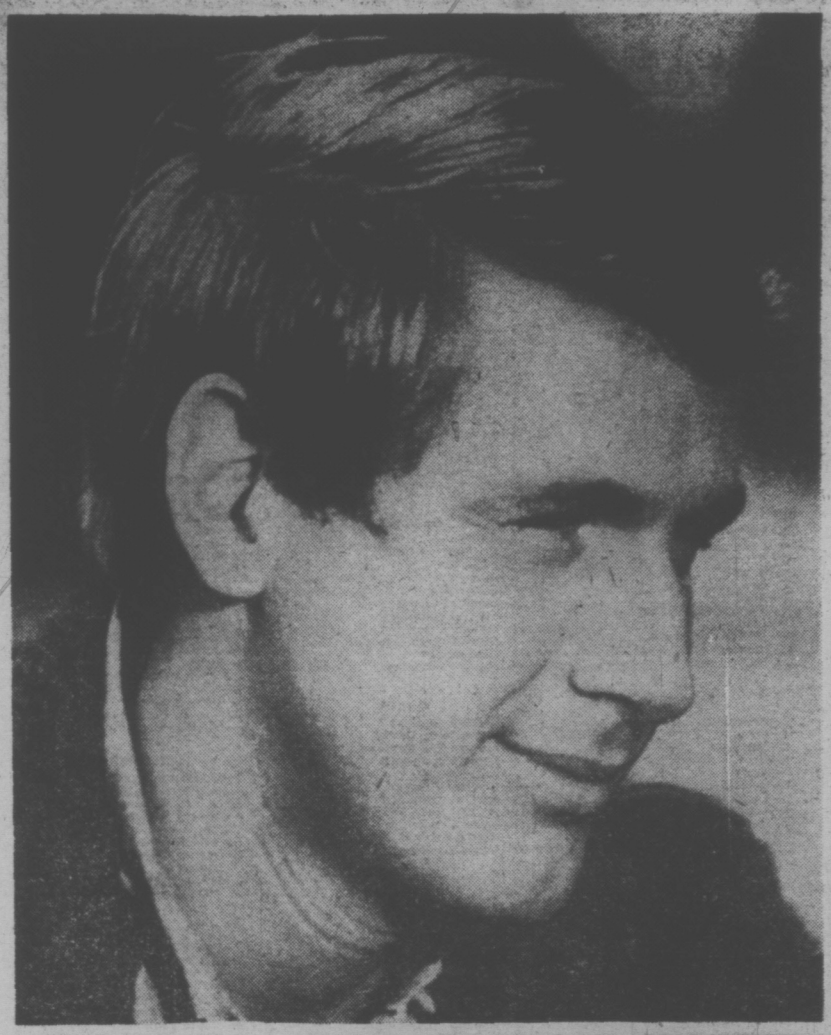
60 Minutes, on 7 and 12 at 6. Return of this very successful public affairs series of lively and timely film essays with hosts Morley Safer and Mike Wallace.

British Empire, on 8 at 7:30. Debut of a 13-part history of the British Empire. This absorbing BBC series blends rich dramatizations, paintings of the period and location footage to show how the British took the light of English homes to the uncivilized" — and in the process made Britain wealthy. (60 mins.)

Just Generation, on 9 at 7:30. Learn about the law in this 13-week series combining talk sessions, satirical sketches and original dramas.

Family Game, on 9 at 8. Drugs, premarital sex, black militancy and other issues widening the generation gap are explored using the technique of psychodrama talk sessions between adults and young people.

French Chef, on 9 at 8:30. Julia Childs returns for her 10th season concentrating this session on everyday cooking.



COUNTRY RECORDING ARTIST WALTER FORBES plays an itinerant songwriter who teams up with a misplaced California coyote named Chico to seek fame and fortune in country music's capital city, Nashville, when The Wonderful World of Disney presents, The Nashville Coyote, on Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 2. The narration is talking-blues by country songwriter Mayf Nutter.

CBC Weekend Returns

There'll be a new look to CBCTV's flagship information program Weekend when the one-hour current affairs magazine returns for its fourth season on the network Sunday, Oct. 1 at 10 p.m.

The 1972-73 edition of Weekend will have a new executive producer, George Robertson, succeeding Richard Nielsen; new hosts, including Charlotte Gobeil of Ottawa; occasional appearances by that satirical observer of the Canadian scene, Fred Dobbs (Mike Magee); several new members of the production staff; and a new, more functional set.

Here's how executive producer Robertson sees his mandate, and Weekend, for this season:

"Whatever else Weekend and its predecessors have been, at best they have been a kind of theatre, a national stage on which the events of the week — and the actors in those events — were brought into focus before millions of viewers. On that stage Canadians have seen a parade of the follies and the sober judgments of men — statesmen, clowns and ordinary people; through their wise and foolish acts, viewers have observed Canadian society evolving, and have been moved to compassion, scorn, tears, laughter, and—on at least one occasion — to a sudden fear for the survival of the country.

"Sunday night at 10 on CBC television has always been that stage, and if I have any single aim for Weekend it is to make it an essential experience in the way we Canadians understand ourselves.

"This season Charlotte Gobeil will join the program as one of its hosts. Nothing could give me more pleasure than to have this singularly vital, intelligent and attractive woman as one of the faces and voices of Weekend. She is a woman who exhausts all the adjectives . . . She can be charming and (when she wants to be) abrasive; elegant and (when she needs to be) vulgar. As a performer she is a paradox of high seriousness and mischief. She has above all an ability to communicate her vast enjoyment of life and of people."

Lo-Cost Automatic 17 point free written diagnosis puts your mind at ease

How Lo-Cost Automatic, a locally owned company, has designed this free check-up to save you money.

1. Road test
a qualified technician takes your car on a test run to verify the shift points at different speeds and the progressive action of your transmission in forward and reverse.

2. Oil test
the Oil is examined carefully for level and discolouration: pink-red for normal, yellowish for overheating, brownish or black for burnt. Do not be surprised to see him place some oil on his fingers, rubbing them together or even smelling it.

3. Visual inspection the inspection pan of your automatic transmission is removed for a visual inspection. We check the type and amount of residue either in the pan or on the filter.

4. Recommendation
30% do not require transmission work. 50% we recommend a service as outlined by the manufacturer of the vehicle. 20% we recommend repairs (a written estimate as to cost is supplied).

5. Time the time it takes for a cup of coffee or a bottle of pop or browsing through a magazine — approximately 15-20 minutes.

6. Cost
It is free. We hope to be of service when you or your friend or neighbor require servicing or repairs. We welcome the careful who take advantage of our free 17 point diagnosis offer prior to purchasing a used car.

In her classic, The Little Foxes (1939), Miss Hellman introduced the Hubbard family, faded Southern artistocrats at the turn of the century. This play presents the Hubbards 20 years later and the cast includes Barry Sullivan, Dorothy McGuire and Robert Foxworth. (2½ hours.)

Campaign Report, on 2 and 6 at 10. The view from the Atlantic provinces on the upcoming Federal election. (30 mins).

Ghost Story Host Began as Wrestler

The Washington Post

Sebastian Cabot, host of the new Ghost Story (NBC), weighed 250 pounds when he was 18 years old, and he has been haunted by a dream ever since.

"I dream," said Cabot, "that I have got my weight down to 199 pounds. And I die happy."

Cabot acquired his taste for good food while he was a teen-ager in London. He'd gone to work at the age of 14 as a garage helper and discovered that the pay forced him to put a long time between meals. He quit the garage and became a chef's helper, "one with very good tastes."

Cabot weighed 18 stone at the age of 18 and quit the kitchen to become a professional wrestler. (A stone is 14 pounds, meaning Cabot weighed 252 pounds.)

Wrestling was his first experience at acting and led, quite naturally, to the theatre. Cabot spent 10 years in stock companies before moving to the theatre in London's West End.

Radio work for the BBC made him an expert in dialects, and by 1947 he was in New York in John Gielgud's production of Love For Love. He made feature films in London and went to Italy in 1955 for his first TV series. He played Portho in 26 episodes of The Three Musketeers.

SEBASTIAN CABOT

He was back in the United States ("more or less permanently") for work on the film Kismet. He grew a beard for the role of the Wazir, and the beard stayed through his first successful TV series, the three-year run of Checkmate.

The beard remained after he took the role of French in A Family Affair, which ran for 6 years and 114 episodes. It is still with him in Ghost Story.

Cabot began dieting during Family Affair. He succeeded, at one point, in getting down to 208, just 9 pounds from that dream of 199 pounds. He takes off weight by his grapefruit diet, and one of the strange sights in plush restaurants is Sebastian Cabot's artful peeling of a grapefruit.

"Why do people stare?" he jokes. "It's just like peeling an orange."

Trouble is, Cabot adds weight more easily than he takes it off. He has a retreat in British Columbia, and he loves Canadian beer. He also yields to the appetite it gives him. After having been down to 208 at the end of Family Affair, Cabot is back to 230 pounds and back on his diet.

"I suspect," said Cabot, "that I've lost and gained several hundred pounds in my life. The same pounds, of course."

On Monday at 7:30 on 7

Young Actor Fifth To Portray Role Of Doctor Kildare

By RICHARD K. SHULL

HOLLYWOOD — With his wild-looking, kinky, sand-colored hair, and wearing a faded denim shirt and jeans, Mark Jenkins seemed the most improbable in the long line of Hollywood's Dr. Kildares.

But the low-key, 27-year-old ex-ranch hand from Wyoming claims there's nothing inconsistent about it in his mind. If Joel McCrea, Lew Ayres, Van Johnson and Richard Chamberlain could do the role, why not Mark Jenkins?

The new syndicated TV series, Young Dr. Kildare, is slated for prime time access at 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. on stations across the country.

Jenkins started life in Butte, Mont., but when he was 6 his family split up and he was reared in Denver. He left home at 16 and became a Wyoming ranch hand.

"I wanted to study ranching as a career," Jenkins said, "so I enrolled at the University of Wyoming. As a freshman, I tried out for a play and that was it. But I still have an ambition to own a ranch someday."

After college, he headed for New York and did his first major work in the New York Shakespeare Festival. This led to some off-Broadway parts, but more important, he came to the attention of writer-director John Korty who was preparing a small independent film, "Riverrun."

Jenkins played one of the three roles in the picture which had a limited theatrical release, but now is enjoying a new popularity on college campuses as a virtual underground film.

The film, made in San Francisco, led to a couple of small Hollywood film roles, some TV guest shots, but, more important, his new series role as Kildare.

As for his handling of the Kildare role, a staple of entertainment for nearly four decades, Jenkins said, "It's a whole new ball game as far as I'm concerned. I won't relate to any of the others who have played it. I have some subjective thoughts on the others, but I won't voice them.

"I'm just an intern named Jim Kildare.

"Gary Merrill (as Dr. Gillespie) and I are the only regulars. I think the stories sound quite good," he added, "and I'm no fan of TV stories."

He said he was particularly fond of one episode in which Cloris Leachman portrays a man-hungry woman in competition with her own daughter.

Talking with Jenkins, the big curiosity was how a man who looks and dresses like a ranch hand, who was reared in the open spaces, can tolerate the polluted, congested environment of Hollywood, spending his days growing pale in the musty confines of a stage.

"My wife and I are backpack freaks," he said by way of explanation. "And we do as much as we can."

Backpacking? In the world's greatest maze of freeways?

"There are a lot of hiking trails in the Sierras," he continued. "It's an eight-hour drive from here, then hike a day or day-and-a-half to get away from people. There's an area 200 miles long and maybe 20 or 25 miles wide we escape to. It's dramatically different from the insanity of Los Angeles," he added.

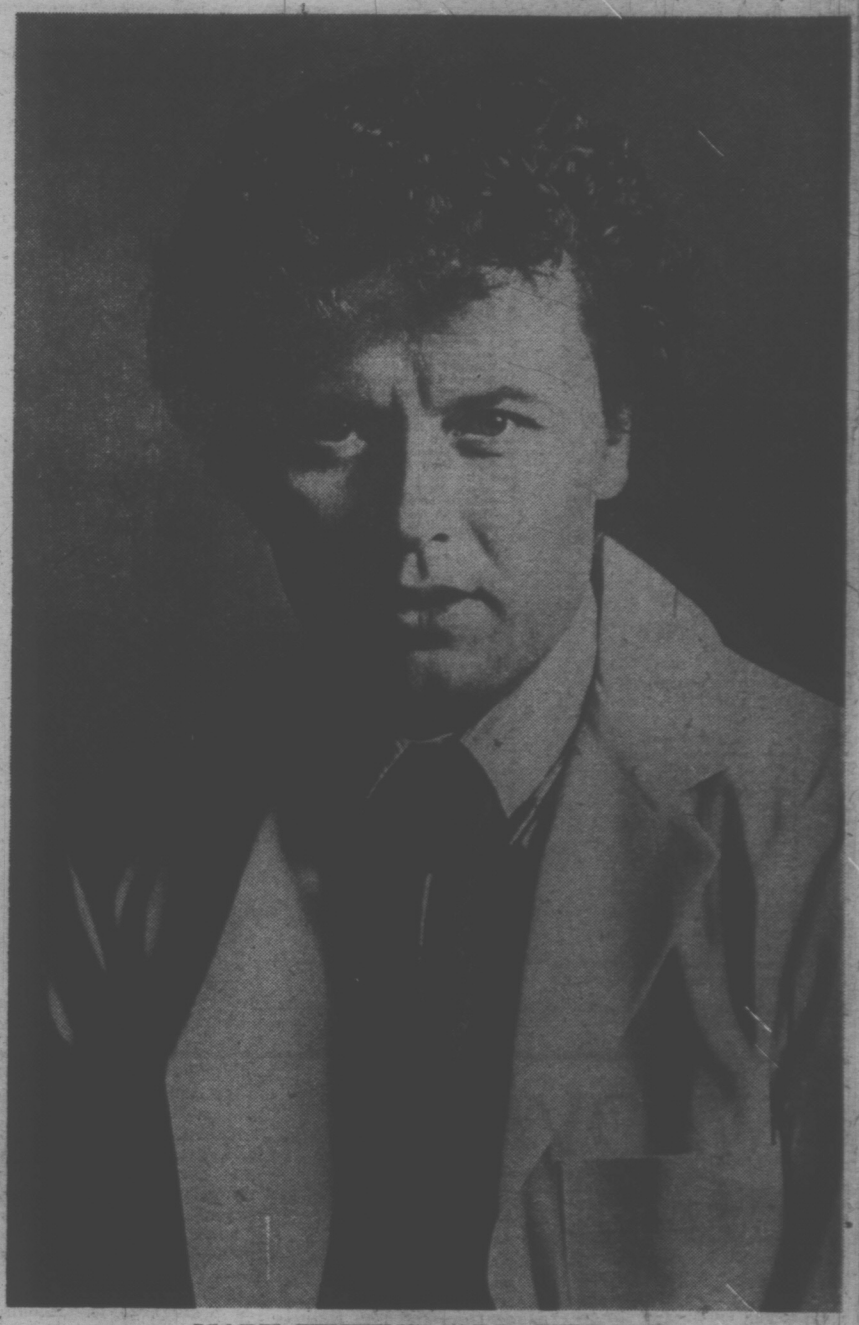
He said he married his wife, Vicki, seven years ago when both were living in Wyoming. She was transplanted there from Massachusetts.

They also escape from urban life by using their hands making furniture from natural materials, losing themselves in the craft.

He said until now, children were out of the question during their uncertain, itinerant lives dependent on his acting. But with the series role and a firm commitment for 24 episodes, "I'm ready for some."

Even though he has established himself as an actor, that's only a step for what he really has in mind. He's part of the new breed who yen to produce, write and perform their own personal statements on film.

"That's my overriding ambition," he said, adding of course, he'd like to be back in the wide-oper spaces between films.



MARK JENKINS as DR. KILDARE

Asian Movies—Blood by the Gallon

By STEPHEN H. Y. SIU

HONG KONG — The bloodiest — and possibly the most popular — movies in the world come these days not from Hollywood, London, Rome's Cinecitta or the plains of Spain. They emanate from Hong Kong's movie town, a sprawling, half-real world governed by Asian film magnate Run Run Shaw.

The $6 million spread, built 10 years ago on a hillside near Clearwater Bay in Hong Kong's new territories, is Asia's largest movie complex. From its 10 studios and 16 permanent outdoor sets — including a plastic and plaster reproduction of China's Great Wall — come 40 films a year, most of them drenched with enough blood for an army of Genghis Khans.

Movie town, which permanently employs 200 actors and actresses plus a staff of 1,400, has its own industrial plant for manufacturing sets and props — anything from an imitation Korean telephone booth to the fake bronze flower pot in Run Run Shaw's private office. Besides a dormitory for performers, technicians and laborers there are film processing laboratories (for color and black and white), dubbing studios — and stables for the horses that gallop through Shaw's own visions of the wild east.

Costumes

Visitors are barred from movie town's air-conditioned warhouses with racks for 80,000 Chinese costumes, each designed for color and effect as well as for historical accuracy.

A hundred yards from movie town's main gate stands the four-storey buildings from which Run Run Shaw, seated behind a massive teakwood desk, oversees the Mandarin movie world he has dominated for nearly half a century.

Shaw estimates that half a million moviegoers, most of them in Hong Kong, Taiwan and Southeast Asia, see films from the movie town studios every day.

Prudish

Chinese audiences don't question the invincibility of the hero, even when he slashes 20 enemies in a single stroke, any more than western movie-goers object when a cowboy handily fires seven shots from his trusty six-shooter.

The Chinese are more prudish about sex so there is scarcely any of that in Shaw's films. But times are changing.

"We are very good at action films," Shaw said in an interview. "We do intend to reduce the bloodshed. As to sex, we can't do more or worse than the films made in Europe or Hollywood."

Heroes of the Chinese film world don't always rely on swords. The biggest box office hit of the year, The Boxer From Shantung, starring former professional boxer Chen Kuan-Tai, has earned nearly half a million dollars. It depicts the adventures of a notorious ruffian in Shanghai during the Japanese occupation of the Second World War.

Mogul

Run Run Shaw, a polite, shrewd man of 66, lives up to his movie mogul reputation. His three cars all are air-conditioned Rolls-Royces — one gold and grey, the two others black. All have specially built-up back seats tailored to his short stature. Besides a pair of private mansions and scores of bungalows used as guest houses throughout Southeast Asia, he's now building a new home atop a hill on his movie town lot. It has only two bedrooms but its other features include a huge living room for public functions, a swimming pool and a private cinema.

Shaw's partner is his elder brother, Runme, who operates the Shaw film distribution network from Singapore. The brothers now own eight movie houses in Hong Kong and some 200 others scattered throughout South Asia. In addition, the Shaw brothers own cinemas in New York, San Francisco, Honolulu, Rio de Janeiro and Cape Town.

SPECIALS

Tuesday

First Tuesday, on 5 at 10. The October edition of NBC's newsmagazine. Scheduled topics include: a look at what ails the morale of the U.S. Army; a report on the tragedy at Munich and bombs through the mail; and, postponed from last month, Arab tourism in Israel. (60 mins.)

NEW JET LINEUP! New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath catches football from his co-ed defensive line during taping of the children's television show, Sesame Street, in New York. Namath had a bit more beef before him Sunday when he threw 497 yards against the Baltimore Colts, helping the Jets to a 44-34 victory.

Louise Lasser

By DAN LEWIS

She watched and joked a bit with the camera and sound crew while Jimmy Caan and Peter Boyle did the scene on busy Fifth Street and Broadway in downtown Los Angeles. The picture they're all making is Slither for MGM and for Louise Lasser it's only the second time she's made a picture without her ex-husband, whose name is Woody Allen.

Louise seems to have weathered the Allen years in good shape. She was his second wife and, unlike his first wife, remains on good terms with him. In fact, two of the four Woody Allen pictures she made came after they were divorced. Those were Bananas and the most recent, Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Sex, But Were Afraid to Ask.

Now she wants a different image. She was also seen recently in Such Good Friends which was directed by Otto Preminger. Her role in that picture, she complained, was no different than those Woody cast her in.

"But Slither is something different from anything I've ever done. This time my character is a sort of shy, vulnerable, plain gentle girl. All of which I've never done on the screen. In Woody's last picture, Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Sex, etc., I did play a Catholic girl."

She pondered for a moment, then added as a footnote: "But that's not gentile — that's Catholic."

The comment struck her funnybone, and she laughed hard. The Woody Allen outrageous sense of humor has rubbed off a bit on her. It is a throwback to her association with improvisational theatre in New York. The point is to react outrageously to truisms.

But she now is very serious about her career. She may return to the theatre after finishing Slither. She did do a play in summer tryout for a week at the Tappan Zee Playhouse in Nyack N.Y. The play is The Opening, and co-starred were Alan Arkin, Renee Taylor and Sandy Baron.

Louise says there is some talk of doing a TV series for a new production company in which the principals are long-time partners Jack Rollins and Charles Jaffe, now teamed with a third partner, Ted Bissell (of That Girl and, unfortunately, Me and The Chimp).

Her philosophy about television, however, is unusual. She has managed to keep working by doing commercials. "I'd rather do a commercial than television I don't like" she explained.

She's had successful commercials, like the goody, goody housewife for Niquil, and in another for the same product, in which she plays both mother and daughter.

As for TV series, Louise expresses concern about getting "caught in something where its dependent on one's personality and not acting ability. TV does that."

"That scares me away," she declared, then smiled, and added, "I'll probably get a TV offer and accept it, now that I've said all of this."

Television commercials, on the other hand, are great training for actors, Louise said.

BANYON STAR HAS THE BOGART LOOK

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — He resembles John Garfield somewhat, but then again he's got Bogart's presence, and perhaps that is why Robert Forster is the star of a new television series set in the 1930s.

After viewing such classic crime pictures as Angles with Dirty Faces, Scarface, Public Enemy and Petrified Forest, Forster concluded he couldn't play his Banyon character in the tough-guy style of the day.

"I can't perform 1930s style where everybody talked fast and loud," he explained. "It wouldn't be believable.

"People don't behave that way anymore. Maybe they never did. But it was a genre that flourished 40 years ago.

Acting today is more honest and maybe less interesting. Audiences used to buy the conventions and the dialogue of private eyes, cops and criminals.

Forster realized he could be laughed off the screen if he came on with a sneer, talking out of the side of his mouth and chomping on a cigar during a love scene.

While Forster has high hopes for the NBC series, he's not selling his home in Rochester, New York, unless and until the show is renewed for another eight shows in November.

"Those 11 shows can be rigidly divided into straight TV detective formula dramas in the first five segments," Forster said. "During that time I kept asking myself questions about what I was doing.

Forster said the format of the show is more like The Maltese Falcon in feeling than any of the other great movies of a quarter century ago. He believes it has its own flavor.

If so, Forster has imparted some of his own personality. After co-starring with Marlon Brando and Elizabeth Taylor in Reflections in a Golden Eye, he turned to high-steel construction work until he found a script he liked. He found several: The Stalking Moon, Medium Cool and Justine and now Banyon.

The bottom line, however, is that home viewers must accept Forster as they did Bogart, Garfield, Cagney and the rest.

Black Actor Loses Million Dollar Suit

By HORTENSE MYERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Stepin Fetchit, 80, Hollywood's first black screen star famous for his slow-moving, gangly character portrayals, stood on federal courthouse steps and tearfully appealed for help in a $3 million defamation suit against CBS and three other corporations.

Fetchit's public plea came 10 days after U.S. district court judge William E. Steckler dismissed his suit against CBS, Xerox Corp., 20th Century Fox Film Corp., and Indiana Broadcast Corp. his attorney said he plans to file an appeal.

The suit was filed July 20, 1970, almost two years after CBS presented Fetchit in film clips — provided by 20th Century Fox — in a black history series entitled Black History: Lost, Stolen or Forgotten. The series was narrated by comedian Bill Cosby.

Fetchit claimed that CBS portrayed him as "the symbol of the white man's negro: the traditional lazy, stupid, crapshooting, chicken stealing idiot."

"These people hired by CBS and Xerox called the character I created the epitome of the black man who sold out his people, and in a single program I was judged and found guilty in front of millions and millions of people," Fetchit said, standing in front of the Federal Building.

STEPIN FETCHIT

He added: "Inform Judge Steckler, in the Federal Building here and tell him to give me a trial by jury and set it for trial while I am still alive. I am an old man, one of the oldest living actors today."

Fetchit's case was originally set for trial by a jury but CBS and Xerox filed a motion for a summary judgment. Steckler after hearing two hours of arguments on the motion, then dismissed the suit.

Fetchit appeared in numerous movies during the 1920s and 1930s. Some of his co-stars included Shirley Temple, Janet Gaynor and Will Rogers. Pictures included Miracle in Harlem, His Exciting Night, The County Gentleman, The Virginia Judge, and Stand Up and Cheer.

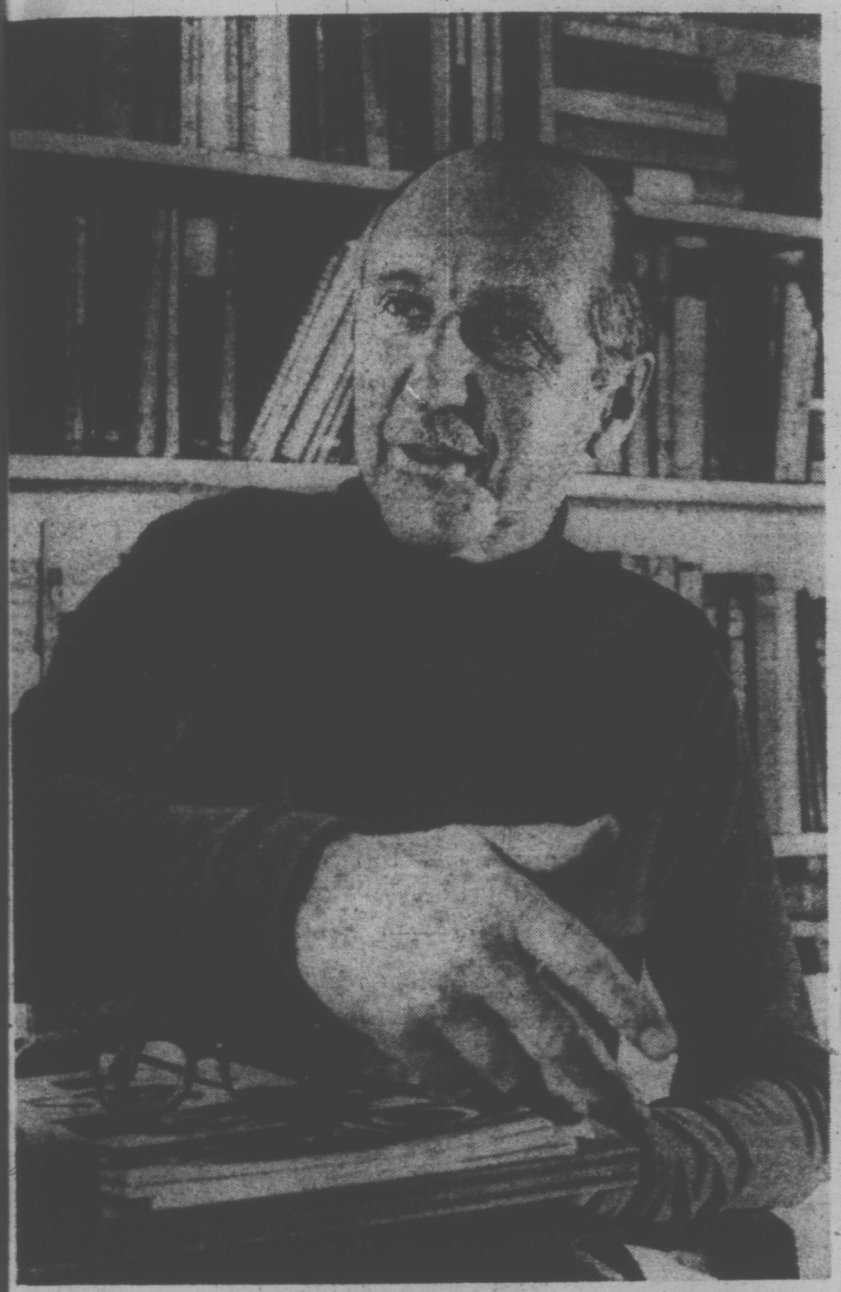
Fetchit reportedly made more than a million dollars between 1927 and 1938, and at one time, had 12 cars, including a pink Cadillac with his name in neon lights on the side, and 16 Chinese servants.

He left Hollywood in 1937 and within 10 years was broke.. He filed a five million dollar bankruptcy suit in Chicago in the early 1940s.

"I had assets of $146 dollars when I filed that five million dollar bankruptcy suit." Fetchit said recently.

Fetchit, whose real name is Lincoln T. Perry, now resides on Chicago's south side.

He has been criticized by many younger, militant blacks for the roles he portrayed during his film career. However, other blacks say if Fetchit had not paved the way, black stars of today such as Cosby, named a co-conspirator in Fetchit's suit, Dick Gregory and others would not be as successful.



Dr. Pierre Dansereau

Canadian Author Talks Ecology on CBC Radio

Dr. Pierre Dansereau, noted Canadian ecologist, teacher and author, writes: "The world of man is expanding. This generation has set foot on the moon. We are still in the grasp of the adolescent stupor that accompanies the discovery of our own power. And yet, it is wisdom that is the essence if we are to redress the course that now leads the human species to suicide. This can only be done if we develop a new consciousness of our enlarged environment, a comprehension of ecological harmony and an apprehension of ecological disaster."

Dr. Dansereau explores the subject of environment on this year's Massey Lecture Series on CBC Radio's Ideas. This six-week series runs Wednesdays at 10:03 p.m. on CBC-FM beginning October 4, and Mondays on CBC-AM at 10:30 p.m. EDT beginning October 9.

The present environmental disorder is the result of the discrepancy between man's intentions and his achievements in the management of earth, according to Dr. Dansereau. His concern, therefore; is as much with the inscape, human perception of environment, as with the landscape, man's impact on nature.

Programs explore perception of man on earth, knowledge and training, research and measurement of environment, the application of knowledge to the patterning of environment, and the planning and implementation of inscape-landscape patterns.

Dr. Pierre Dansereau is well-qualified to lecture in this area. His present position is professor of ecology at the Universitie du Quebec a Montreal, and a former scientific director of the Centre de Researches Ecologiques de Montreal. His is also vice-chairman of the Canadian Environmental Advisory Council, a member of the Science Council of Canada, president of the Quebec division of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Dr. Dansereau has written many books on the environment, the best-known being: Dimensions of Environmental Quality; Bio-Geography — An Ecological Perspective; and Contradictions and Biculture. He has also received a doctorate in Environmental Sciences at the University of Waterloo, where he will be teaching this year. In addition to lecturing in Canada, he has taught in Brazil, France, New Zealand, and Puerto Rico.

Tighter Controls Are Forecast for TV Advertising

By BOB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA — The advertising and broadcasting industries are sharpening new tools designed to cut unethical commercials on television.

The industry associations are getting a helping hand from the Consumers Association of Canada in spotting what they regard as violations of the new children's advertising code for radio and TV.

Both the consumers and indusry groups seem to feel that these efforts at self-regulation place Canada ahead of the U.S.

The Canadian Advertising Advisory Board long has had a general code of ethics for all advertisements. The more specific chidren's code was announced last fall but will become fully effective this autumn.

It also is understood that the Canadian Association of Broadcasters intends to introduce a good taste code for food and drug advertising.

While the industry codes can be criticized for lacking teeth since violators can't be fined or jailed, considerable embarrassment can result if the advertising standards council informs all broadcasting stations that a certain commercial breaks the rules.

DEAL WITH OWN

So far the consumer affairs department has been content to let the broadcasters and advertisers deal with unethical advertising themselves. But the department continues its work checking false and misleading advertising under the Combines Investigation Act.

A consumer affairs department source said recently that some advertisers have been prosecuted by the department, but advertisers appeared sensitive to public concern about taste and ethics in broadcast commercials.

He said there are fewer complaints about radio and television advertisements than about ads in newspapers and magazines.

Some advertisers ask the consumer affairs department whether their advertising would violate the Combines Investigation Act. The department gives an opinion and then sometimes refers advertisers to the advertising advisory board for matters of ethics in advertising.

RAPS UNDUE PRESSURE

The children's advertising code, announced last October, deals with undue pressure on parents, personal endorsements, price, comparisons, safety and social values.

For example, the code warns against exaggerating size, speed or durability of a toy.

It also says that children should not be urged to buy or asked to press their parents to buy and that children are not competent to make comparative buying decisions.

Another item advises against allowing characters on children's programs to advertise products on their own programs.

A number of organizations have agreed to abide by the code. They include the Association of Canadian Advertisers Inc., the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, Canadian Toy Manufactuerers Association, CTV Television Network Ltd., Institute of Canadian Advertising, Radio Sales Bureau and Television Bureau of Canada.

It has also been endorsed in principle by the CBC.

UNOFFICIAL COURT

The advertising advisory board has assigned administration of the children's code to the advertising standards council, a sort of unofficial court which keeps watch on the ethical standards of the advertising industry.

The advertising standards council has set up a children's secion to handle the children's code alone.

The real work begins later this autumn when the Christmas advertising schedule is launched.

Then the consumers association will begin monitoring television programs for possible violations of the code.

Mrs. Helen Anderson of Toronto, co-ordinator of the association effort, said the consumers group has undertaken the task at the request of the advertising advisory board.

It will have 50 groups leaders across the country organizing round - the - clock checks of local televison stations during one-week periods in September, December, March and possibly June.

Results will be sent to the advertising standards council.

When the council receives a complaint about a breach of the code it will act as it has with complaints about violations of the general ethical code.

ASKS IF REASONABLE

Mr. Collett said his staff looks at the complaint to see if it is reasonable, and, if so, the advertiser is asked to give his side of the story.

Then, if the advertiser refused to correct an offending advertisement, the case is reviewed by members of the standards council.

If the council decides the advertisement should be changed, the advertiser usually agrees, Mr. Collett said. If the advertiser continues to refuse, the council notifies broadcasters that the advertisement is a breach of the code, but "this occurs very infrequently."

The board sent out such a warning about four times to radio and television stations and newspapers in 1971.

How effective are the codes?

Well, Mrs. Anderson said her group in the Toronto area gathers more complaints about U.S. advertisements on Buffalo, N.Y., television stations than local Canadian outlets.

Mr. Collett said that U.S. advertising groups are studying the Canadian example in self-regulation.

"We are quite far ahead of them," he said.

HOPE NABS SPITZ

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Hope nabbed Olympic swim phenomenon Mark Spitz for his first television special of the year saying, "This kid will keep his clothes on during my show."

Hope was on the putting green at his estate, happily tapping golf balls from hole to hole.

"It was my idea to get Spitz even before he won the last few medals," said Bob. "I called my agent and told him to get Mark for the show. He called the Sacramento (Calif.) newspapers and reached Mark's coach who searched all the pools in the area.

"We put the deal together a couple of weeks ago. When I talked to Mark on the phone he said, 'Don't you remember me? We talked once when you stopped by the University of Indiana.'"

Hope, who provides a scholarship fund for the Hoosier University, had no recollection of Spitz.

The whole world knows Mark Spitz now, and that is why he will appear on Bob's show Oct. 5 along with David Cassidy and the Carpenters. The comedian has long remained in the top-ten ratings because of his ability to sign newsworthy, controversial guests.

So far as is known, Spitz is not a singer. His acting ability doubtless is insufficient for a comedy sketch. What, then, will he do?

"Well, he won't swim," said Hope, sinking a 30-foot putt.

"I think maybe he'll giv me wading lessons. Tickets t our show are already gone The secretaries at NBC hav stolen them all. I've aske them why they aren't just a happy with me in wate wings.

"But Mark seems like nice kid. As soon as I got hin on the telephone I asked if could shine his medals.

"Mark has more medal than George Jessel, an George makes General West moreland look like a draft dodger. Imagine, seve medals — Spitz has got to b half-man, half-fish."

Hope rimmed another lon putt and straightened up "There may not be room o that stage for me. The studi will be mobbed with fans. can't even put up a moat Most of Mark's fans are goo swimmers."

Hope signed Spitz to hi show shortly before the swim mer engaged a theatrica agent, proving once mor than Rapid Robert is a shrewd as he is funny.

"I'm doing eight special this year," Hope said. "An I've got a new movie (Cance My Reservation) opening u around the country. And I've been making all kinds of personal appearances."

Hope is constantly on the move, always working. Why? "Because those laughs are therapy for me, baby," he said.

"But my real ambition is to buy a white cane and become an official at the next Olympic Games."

Conrad Launches New Season 'Gratefully'

By RICHARD K. SHULL

HOLLYWOOD — "I find it juicy at this point in life to have been handed the ball," William Conrad chortled.

At age 51, after 35 years in show business, he is television's most improbable action hero as the star of Cannon.

"The other day someone asked me how it feels to be a star. I laughed at him," Conrad continued. "Hell, just to get up in the morning and kiss the ground and be grateful. In this age, to have work is a miracle.

"A lot of it was in the timing. The show hit just right when the audience was willing to accept a fat (his weight ranges from 230 to 275, although he aims for 250 pounds) old man as a lead," he said, patting his considerable abdomen.

We were in the parlor of his office-dressing suite at Samuel Goldwyn Studio during Conrad's lunch break. For him, lunch was a glass of ice water. He slopped vodka over ice cubes in a tumbler for me.

Around him were the signs of his affluence, his stardom a secretary in the outer office, framed magazine covers featuring him on the walls, plaques, testimonials, cushy furniture, but maybe most important, a sales brochure for an Italian-made glider which has its own little get engine for self-take-off.

"I'm thinking about getting one," he said. The price of the toy — $21,000 to $22,000 — was no object. Conrad's concern was where to conveniently hanger it.

He explained he took up gliding in Hawaii during two of the three months hiatus which he enjoyed early this year. Now, he considers it even superior to sailing as an escape.

"The great thing about soaring a glider or sailing a boat is, if you have the time to do it, you can't afford it," he said attempting to get confidential and philosophical with that fine stentorian voice which is his fortune.

"But this time, it was ideal. I knew the series was renewed. I knew my return date for work. I knew if I got fatter I had time to take it off. There's nothing worse than a vacation when you don't know if you have a job. But this time, ah!

"I live it up, baby. You only go around once. And I'm an advocate of the let-it-all-hangout routine," he snorted.

There seems to be a limit to the good fortune which has fallen on Conrad since he resumed acting last year after 15 years in which he worked behind the cameras as a director.

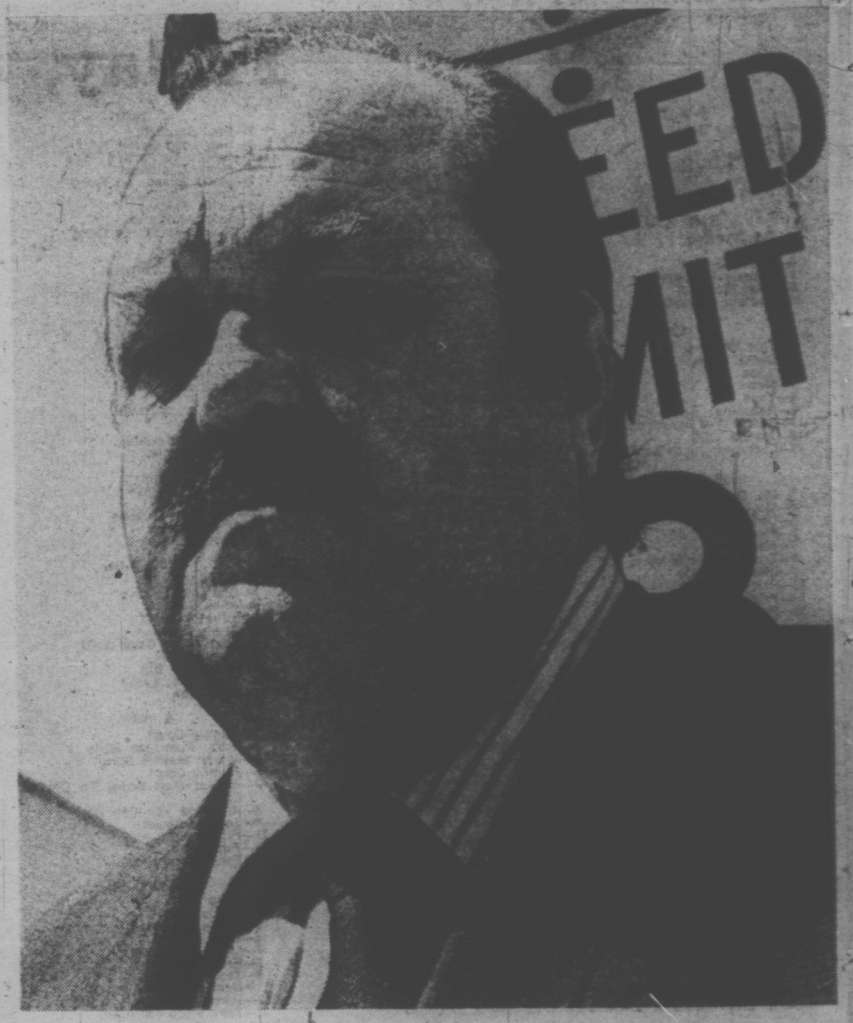
For instance, back in January he went fishing off Mexico's Yucatan for an episode of ABC network's American Sportsman series. He set the world record with a 62¼-pound sailfish which he landed with a six-pound test fresh water line and reel.

As for his new stardom with Cannon, Conrad offers no particular reason or any claims to superior insights into what makes a TV show succeed.

"The ridiculous thing was we got to be a hit in spite of those early shows which were pretty bad. The formula is simple — laughing at one's self," he said.

"I've always been a mild cynic. That's self-protective. I never got too caught up in the importance of this all. The only way to exist is to be totally aware of your own unimportance.

"And I don't think that keeps you from doing the best you can do," he said. "But I can't hide a smile when I hear people talk about their dramaturgy.



William Conrad as Cannon

MEL TORME known in past years as "The Velvet Fog," because of the unusual quality of his voice, was in Toronto recently and taped a show for Bandwagon, CBC TV's big band variety program. Bandwagon, with Mel Torme as special guest, on Thursday, October 5 at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

Canadian Consumer Series on CBC-TV

It's goodbye to bad buys at The Marketplace, CBC-TV's new weekly series designed to inform and protect the harassed Canadian consumer in this age of spiralling prices, questionable sales practices and insidious small print on iron-clad contracts.

"Caveat emptor," cautions the old legal motto — "Let the buyer beware." CBC's Marketplace prefers to paraphrase this ancient principle— "Let the buyer be aware!" The program will attempt to warn the prospective purchaser about unscrupulous sales practices in advance. Of course by far the majority of merchants in the modern marketplace are honest, and here the CBC series will simply try to make the consumer aware of the best buys available in today's highly competitive market.

Consumer affairs specialist Joan Watson and CBC announcer George Finstad will be regulars on the weekly half-hour series which will be colorcast Thursdays at 10 p.m. on CBC-TV starting Oct. 5. Consumer satirist-commentator Marshall Efron will be a frequent guest on The Marketplace.

In addition, the series will include The Market Report, with feature reports from consumer specialists and journalists across Canada; and actual cases in which consumers have been "had" will be examined in a regular feature called Consumer Complaints.

Jock Ferguson, producer of The Marketplace, says the series will "deal with matters of public concern and explore alternatives to create a new awareness for the Canadian consumer. It will treat consumerism as hard news ... Consumer journalism probably touches more people than 'traditional' news since it directly concerns most people, and they can relate to it easily."

Among the topics of consumer concern to be scrutinized on the CBC series: food prices and supermarket profits; hazardous products; auto safety; chemical additives in food; planned obsolescence; mass product duplication; modern meat processing methods; misleading advertising. And, promises producer Ferguson, The Marketplace will name names!

The series premiere, Oct. 5, will include the following highlights: a backgrounder on the rapid rise of food prices across Canada (one supermarket executive told The Marketplace that food prices may well rise 30 per cent during the year 1972), including a look at profits of food processors and retailers, and reasons advanced by the food industry for spiralling prices. Also, The Year of the Mixed Blessing, in which consumer commentator Marshall Efron satirically reminds today's consumer of things he or she should be thankful for.

The Market Report will look at Malpractice in the Marketplace, with Neil Copeland reporting from Halifax on the pitfalls of buying encyclopedias from door-to-door pitchmen in the Maritimes, and Diane Cohen examining magazine subscription soliciting by telephone in Quebec Province.

On the Oct. 12 telecast The Marketplace will include an investigative report on school bus safety. The program will be pre-empted Oct. 19 but will return Oct. 26.

Jock Ferguson will be producer of the 12 scheduled editions of The Marketplace, with Barry McLean as director and Dodi Robb as executive producer.

JIGSAW STAR CHOOSES TV

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — uppose you are a young tor looking for that big eak and have the choice of arring as Father Damian arras in The Exorcist or as cop in a television series.

Would you choose a picture at is almost certain to be a nash hit following the novel hich spent a year on the st-seller list?

Or would you put your chips the tube?

James Wainwrigt, a usky, broken-nosed newcom- , weighed the advantage of th and opted for Jigsaw, the levision series.

It began with an ABC movie the week. Wainwright's rformance was seen by au- or William Blatty (The Ex- cist) and William Friedkin, rector of the movie version. oth decided Wainwright was eir man.

But ABC discovered Jig- w's ratings were among its st and decided the newcom- was star material.

"I tested for that TV movie ith eight other actors," said m. "Two of whom had had eries of their own in the past. o me it was my first oppor- nity to solo star in a televi- on movie.

"I've done more than 40 levision shows, but the ma- rity were small roles when I rst started out. I usually had wo-day's stubble of beard nd a cowboy hat pulled down ver my eyes.

"When I was called to test r the role of Frank Dane — e's a lieutenant in the Cali- rnia State Missing Persons ureau — I was doing a ovie, Joe Kid.

"I was happy with the way Jigsaw turned out. And I was really flattered when they wanted me for The Exorcist.

"It was a tough decision. But I decided on the television show and it had nothing to do with financial considerations."

James Wainwright is an interesting man with an interesting face. He was born out of wedlock and spent his early years in a foundling home, later being passed around among foster parents until he was adopted at age 5.

Wainwright doesn't say so but it's possible his decision in favor of television is based on the reverse trend of films and video. There was a day when it was virtually impossible for a television star to move on up to movies — with a few exceptions: Steve McQueen and Richard Boone.

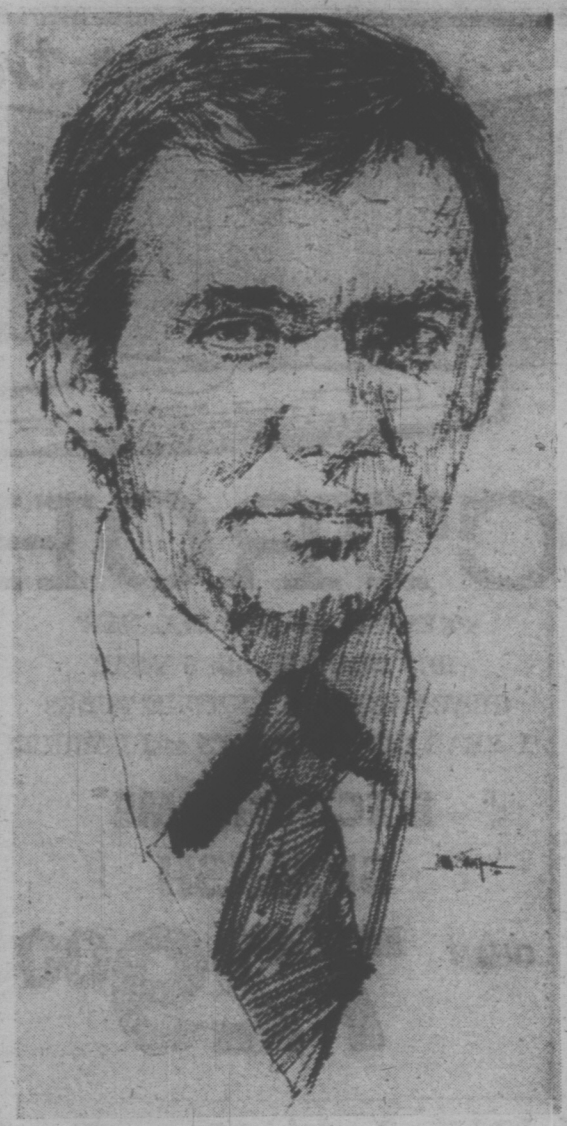
Now it's difficult to go from movies to TV: Shirley MacLaine, Jimmy Stewart, Anthony Quinn, Glenn Ford et al.

"The television audience makes its own stars," Wainwright said. "It more readily accepts an actor it is seeing for the first time because he hasn't played a variety of roles in motion pictures.

"I think that will work in my favor. The audience lets you know what they want to see."

Wainwright, too, is fully aware that more persons will see him in a single segment of Jigsaw than will ever see The Exorcist no matter how popular the movie may prove to be.

Then, of course, if Jigsaw is a bomb, Wainwright will have gambled and lost.



James Wainwright

Success of TV Belies Forecast

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — The date was May 20, 1935. The speaker was Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, past-president of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

He told a convention of his organization:

"If we examine the capabilities of television and of the motion picture, we find no conflict. The greatest need for television is to bring sight to American radio so that it may become a complete medium of expression, as was accomplished in motion pictures in bringing sound to the silent screen."

Hindsight translation: "Don't worry, boys, television won't hurt the boxoffice."

On May 18, 1936, motion picture producers were further assured that television was no threat to the studios and theatres.

The research council of the academy of motion picture arts and sciences — which had given Oscars that year to The Great Ziegfeld, Paul Muni and Luise Rainer — submitted a report to the membership.

After months of studying television developments, the research team concluded that sound video wasn't likely to kill off movies.

"Both picture people and the public have been waiting for television for five years," the report stated.

"Besides psychological preparedness, the preventive factors keeping television from coming unexpectedly upon our industry are the great technical and commercial complexity of the new medium, and the existence in the picture business of technically-trained personnel capable of following the progress of television and giving notice of impending developments."

In other words, Hollywood technicians could sound the alarm when and if television began to grow muscles.

The report continued: "Television has reached a point in its laboratory development where a small picture (about 6 by 8 inches) with moderate entertainment value, can be transmitted, but with far more complicated equipment than motion picture recording and sound broadcasting required.

". . . There appears to be no danger that television will burst unexpectedly on an unprepared motion picture industry."

So much for the scientific committee of the movie research council.

Less than 20 years later television hit movies in the solar plexus with the impact of a freight train.

Before the great television explosion, however, Stanton Griffis, chairman of the Studios' Executive Committee, said, "studios seem to feel television will hurt the theatre business. We feel just the opposite . . .

"People, we know, are gregarious. They like to be in crowds. We believe they always will attend picture theatres."

So the movies chose to ignore television when Milton Berle and the wrestling matches began selling video sets by the millions. Studios not only missed the boat, they missed the entire shipyard.

Now they make movies for television. But the profits are miniscule compared to pre-television days.

Griffis was right.

Huge Welcome for Team Canada

Times News Services

As Canadians from coast-to-coast rejoiced Thursday over Canada's final-game win and ultimate series victory in the unofficial world series of hockey Prime Minister Trudeau announced in Ottawa that the country will lay on a welcome-home reception for Team Canada to rival VE-Day celebrations.

He wired Team Canada coach Harry Sinden that the country "is now in a state of enthusiastic revelry," and extended "congratulations from a proud and happy Canada."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said in his telegram: "Congratulations. Magnifique. Your great team effort is an inspiring example to your country. Canadians are proud of you — the best hockey team in the world."

Outside the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, about 35 boisterous hockey fans waved Canadian flags and shouted "Esposito for Pope" and "Esposito for prime minister," then shook hands with embassy staff who ventured out into the crowd.

In St. John's, Nfld., one elementary school had pupils watching the game as part of their lesson.

Nurses reported in one hospital that radios were at a premium as all but the most seriously ill tuned in.

Most of the students in Toronto schools chose to watch the game after Ontario Education Minister Thomas Wells told school administrators Wednesday they were free to cancel classes if students wanted to watch the game.

Work even stopped on the Soviet freighter Almetyevsk in Toronto harbor. Captain Alexander Lokrovnikov gave his 41-man crew time off to watch the game on the ship's television.

"Yes, two hours off today," he said. "Very special."

JAIL BREAK SQUAD SET

OTTAWA (CP) — The solicitor-general's department is moving ahead with plans to set up a new security system that will include special squads inside Canada's 10 federal prisons to "smoke out and analyse" escape rumors.

The move follows a rash of prison breakouts in the last several months and a special study on security made by the RCMP and penitentiary officials.

Central to the plan are the "special security squads" that will work inside jails attempting to uncover and prevent break-outs.

NEWS BRIEFS

Hijacker Given Life Sentence

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Frederick William Hahneman was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday for hijacking a jetliner and bailing out over Honduras with $303,000 in ransom. U.S. District Court Judge Oren Lewis said he gave Hahneman the maximum sentence under the federal air piracy law to present an example to would-be hijackers.

Pickets Stop Work

MACKENZIE (CP) — Construction of a new British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. pulp mill was halted today when construction workers refused to cross picket lines set up by the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

$100,000 Robbery

MONTREAL (CP) — Two men, one of whom posed as a replacement for a sick employee, made off with more than $100,000 Thursday from a north-end branch of the Montreal City and District Savings Bank.

Meet Likely Here

TORONTO (UPI) — The next Commonwealth conference will likely take place in Canada in 1973, the first time the conference has ever been held here, Prime Minister Trudeau announced today.

World Bank 'Tool'

WASHINGTON (WP) — In the strongest possible terms, the government of Chile denounced the World Bank Thursday as a tool of the United States, charging that loans have been suspended because of Chile's nationalization of U.S. copper interests.

Taiwan Severs Ties With Japan

Times News Services

Taiwan broke off diplomatic relations with Japan tonight as Japan and China formally announced they had established diplomatic ties after 35 years of hostilities.

A foreign ministry spokesman in Taipei labelled Japan's recognition of Peking a "perfidious action" and other sources said the Taiwan government plans to boycott Japanese imports for three months in retaliation.

The foreign ministry statement said Japan must assume full responsibility for the rupture of the ties and any consequences which may arise.

In a six-point joint communique, issued by Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, Japan recognized Peking as "the sole, legal government of China."

The Chinese reaffirmed that Taiwan is an "inalienable part" of their territory. Japan said it "fully understands and respects this stand of the government of China."

It also was decided they would hold negotiations for other agreements on trade, navigation, aviation, fishery and other areas.

Sources close to the foreign ministry said Taiwan authorities had expected Japan to not go any further than Canada and other countries who had merely stated that they "take note" of China's claim of sovereignty over the Nationalist Chinese-held island bastion.

The communique said "the abnormal state of affairs which has hitherto existed between the People's Republic of China and Japan is declared terminated on the date of publication of this statement."

The two governments also agreed to establish "durable relations of peace and friendship."

Beefed-Up Bus Service Announced

Early expansion of the bus systems in both Victoria and Vancouver will be the first stage of a long-term effort by the government to handle transportation needs, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said today.

Lorimer told a press conference the cabinet has agreed, following a preliminary report from him, "that the time has come to make a choice between the automobile and transit."

Lorimer said the government has decided against building a third crossing of Burrard Inlet in Vancouver, to help prevent the lower mainland urban centre from being overrun with freeways and cars.

A "beefing up" of the bus system will be followed by "planning for the long-term transportation needs of the modern, growing urban centres."

He gave no details of what the short-term expansion of bus systems would entail, or the study of transit systems.

But he said he is open to discussions with local and regional governments, and agreed it might be feasible to make regional governments the owners of the bus system.

Lorimer's statement was welcomed by Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, which suggested to the Social Credit government some months ago that the region take over the B.C. Hydro with the help of government subsidies.

The offer never received any formal acknowledgment, and Curtis said today: "Now I'm hopeful that we have only one way to go — and that's ahead."

"I know there will be municipal and regional people ready, willing and quite able to discuss transit in a constructive, positive sense with the new minister."

However, Curtis said he fully appreciated the minister had a great deal on his plate and would be able to produce no quick solutions.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young said the decision sounded as though the city could now move into rapid transit.

MARCOS FIRES CIVIL SERVICE

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos today ordered the entire civil service corps of about half a million, including his cabinet, to submit their resignations no later than Oct. 15 in a sweeping effort to reform Philippine bureaucracy.

Marcos, who imposed martial law last Friday, said the only exceptions to his order were members of the Supreme Court, the auditor-general's office, the Court of Appeals and other constitutional officers.

The president moved first on the bureau of customs and bureau of internal revenue, both considered to be among the most graft-ridden in the government. Among those already fired, the president said, were 2000 officers and men from the bureau of customs and 192 from the bureau of internal revenue, including a regional director.

Lewis Seeks Probe on CDC 'Family Ties'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judicial inquiry into alleged conflicts of interest within the government's Canada Development Corp. was demanded here Thursday by New Democratic Party leader David Lewis.

His call for an investigation followed a news report that one of the CDC directors, Douglas N. Kendall, is father of the president of a company in which the government corporation has invested $4.5 million.

Until last March — before the CDC purchase was made — Kendall was also a director of the company, Venturetek International Ltd., of Toronto. His son, Jeremy Kendall, is president of the holding company which specializes in high-risk investments.

The CDC was created two years ago by Parliament under a board of directors, mostly businessmen, who were to supervise the investment of both private and public money into Canadian enterprises. The $4.5 million purchase of Venturetek stock gives the CDC 35 per cent ownership.

The senior Kendall is still president of one of Venturetek's major holdings, Hermes Electronics of Halifax.

NDP researchers armed with an arsenal of statistical ammunition went to work soon after the report of the Venturetek deal appeared in a Toronto newspaper.

"With this development, the time has come to take a very close look at the links, or should I say chains, that bind government and big business together," said Lewis.

Besides Kendall, the New Democrat leader called a roll of five CDC directors, who Mr. Lewis alleges, are examples of "specific cases of conflict of interest."

Lewis also charged two members of the industrial incentive advisory board with conflict-of-interest for having senior positions with firms receiving grants.

They are:

—E. Kendall Cork, vice-president of Noranda Mines Ltd., which has been offered $3,522,000 in DREE grants and whose subsidiary, Gaspe Copper Mines, got $3,267,000.

—J. B. Estey, executive vice-president of National Sea Products Ltd., recipient of DREE grants worth $3,689,331.

Lewis also said M. W. MacKenzie, president of the government-owned Multiplex Corp. of New Brunswick, is in a conflict situation because he

DEATH KISS BRINGS JAIL

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man was convicted Thursday of assault causing bodily harm in the death of a woman he struck when she bit his lip during a kiss.

Herman Fries was sentenced to nine months.

The woman, Leone Gail Merry, suffered a broken jaw when she was struck, but the court was told she died as a result of a rupture of a faulty vein in her brain.

Pathologist Dr. Thomas R. Harmon said an autopsy showed she had an aneurism, or weak spot, in the vein, a condition she had had since birth. He said the aneurism could have ruptured at any time in her life.

Bomb Explodes In Jerusalem

Times News Services

JERUSALEM — A time bomb police said was planted by Arab guerrillas exploded in a crowded Jerusalem supermarket today and wounded three persons, one of them the wife of a Venezuelan diplomat.

It was the first bombing in the Holy City in two years and police said they suspected Arab guerrillas were behind the incident. A number of Arabs in the neighborhood were immediately detained for questioning.

All three women — Margarita de Ochoa, wife of the second secretary of the Venezuelan embassy, Rina Schwartz of the United States and Israeli student Dina Cohen — were released from hospital after receiving treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

The supermarket was crowded at the time of the explosion, with the normal pre-Sabbath crowds swelled by people buying for the last day of the Jewish festival of Tabernacles.

It was the scene of a previous guerrilla attack three days ago when two persons were killed.

Meanwhile, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat urged Palestinian leaders to form a government in exile and promised Egypt's immediate recogntition for it.

Speaking to a Cairo rally marking the second anniversary of the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser, Sadat also reiterated his rejection of an interim peace settlement and direct negotiations with Israel. He indicated that Egypt's strained relations with the Soviet Union may be improving.

PoWs 'Recaptured' on Return

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three prisoners of war released by North Vietnam returned to the U.S. Thursday night and were whisked away to military hospitals, angering the anti-war activists who escorted them to freedom.

"What you just witnessed is a recapture scene, replacing one incarceration with another," Mrs. Cora Weiss, one of those who helped arrange the release of the three pilots, told newsmen. The anti-war group accused the Pentagon of jeopardizing future PoW releases by assuming immediate control of the men. The Pentagon declined to comment on the charges.

Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, 34, of Valdosta, Ga., was flown by medical evacuation jet to the U.S. air force hospital at Maxwell air force base in Montgomery, Ala.

Navy Lieut. Norris A. Charles, 27, of San Diego, Calif., was taken to a hotel near John F. Kennedy Airport for a family reunion, then flown to the Balboa naval hospital in San Diego.

The three men, wearing new uniforms they had donned on the flight from Copenhagen, descended from the rear door of the giant Scandinavian Air System (SAS) Boeing 747 looking fit but showing signs of stress.

Waiting relatives rushed to them, hugging and kissing them in an emotional reunion.

Elias, the only one of the three who spoke into a bank of microphones, said: "I would like to say I am happy to be home again and I am thinking about other people not yet home." His wife said, "I couldn't be happier."

Charles did not make any formal statement but told a reporter for a network of black radio stations that he was furious over the military's handling of their arrival. Charles, who was shot down over North Vietnam last December, was quoted as saying he had to "fight" before he was able to see his relatives awaiting him outside the plane.

The anti-war activists said Elias had asked to go to a hospital for a checkup, but Charles and Gartley had objected, maintaining they were in excellent health and did not require hospital care.

The Sullen Louts Won —And the Nation Lost

Back on May 15 of this year when the Soviet-Canada hockey series was confirmed I made the following comment:

"As I make this entry (in my diary) the Yankee planes are aswarm over North Vietnam. The great powers are looking down each other's throats. Once more, the chances for a peaceful world seem perilous.

"As if all that weren't feverish enough it now seems a certainty that Canada will be playing Russia in a hockey tournament this autumn. Me, I'm heading for that secret cave in the Sooke hills until it all blows up or blows over.

"Just why anyone in his right mind should see anything to be gained by pitting our muscle-men on skates against their muscle-men on skates is something that totally eludes me. Hockey, at this professional level, has become the most savage of games. It is far and away the most idiotic, pointless expression of cretinous nationalism that has been invented short of war. Win or lose, the recriminations are inevitable.

"You need merely to have watched the final games of the Stanley Cup play-offs to see how passions are aroused, in the holy name of box office receipts, by a contest that seems a microcosm of human violence and brutality, an extension of all the dumb things that divide nations and ideologies.

"If athletes are to be good-will ambassadors, if sports are to be a means of bringing nations closer together, let's stick to ping pong players."

Today, five months later, the Soviet-Canadian hockey series has gone into history and I make this comment:

One jubilant remark was common to each of the players, coaches and spectators who came to the television cameras in Moscow after the game was over: "I'm proud to be a Canadian." It was made by people to whom the game is more of a crusade than a sport. Even so, it was a sentiment that seemed to me the ultimate hypocrisy to end a sordid affair.

I was not proud to be a Canadian in that moment of triumph brought about by someone shoving a rubber disc in the netting. I was deeply ashamed of being a Canadian, win, lose or draw. It was exactly as I had anticipated it: Far and away the most idiotic, pointless expression of cretinous nationalism short of war.

If there's anything worse than a bad loser it is a bad winner. Which ever way the final game had gone we were destined to be one or the other.

In a lifetime of watching games, professional and amateur, I have never seen sportsmanship at a lower level than it was throughout this series by the Canadian players. It will be years, if ever, before we can live down the image and the shame. If there's a Soviet citizen today who sees us as anything but a mindless, vicious, cry-baby people he can't have been watching that little screen.

Winning may make it all seem right to some Canadians, I think that to the majority it will remain in the memory as a disgrace. The gentlemen ambassadors we sent abroad in the holy name of sports were thugs and hooligans. They won, as Canada's team, but every Canadian has lost in the eyes of the world.

Some will remember only the moment of triumph. More, I think, will be remembering those sullen louts protesting their well-deserved penalties, pantomiming the throat-cutting gesture to their opponents, one threatening to decapitate a referee with his stick, almost without exception so furiously, feverishly concerned with winning that there was no room for even a gesture of decency.

Some will remember the roar of the Canadian crowd. More will remember the ancient voice of Foster Hewitt, happily informing his listeners back home, that "Gilbert got in a real good one there" — the reference being to a punch in the mouth.

Let's not rationalize that "after all, they are professional hockey players." They were representing us as Canadians. They represented us badly.

Airbus Service Proposed on V.I.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Vancouver Island's first airbus service has been proposed by Harrison Airlines of Vancouver.

The service would permit passengers to walk directly on to a plane at Victoria International Airport and buy a ticket during the flight, arriving in Nanaimo about 12 minutes later.

The idea is to end waits at airports and lining up to buy tickets in advance.

Harrison Airlines, a Vancouver-based charter firm, has applied to the federal Air Transport Committee for permission to fly a daily airbus service starting from Abbotsford.

From Abbotsford the plane would fly to Victoria and then make stops at Nanaimo, Courtenay, Campbell River and Port Hardy.

Only brief stops would be made in each city.

From Port Hardy the plane would make the return journey along the same route to Courtenay, Nanaimo, Victoria and Abbotsford.

Flying time from Victoria to Port Hardy, including stops at airports, will be about 90 minutes.

Rate schedule has yet to be determined but the cost of the trip from Victoria to Nanaimo might be about $10.

The airvus is based upon the concept that air travel takes too long due to delays at airports. All services are handled inside the aircraft and late-arriving passengers can buy tickets during flight.

The company will begin the service as soon as approval is obtained.

Harrison Airways started 13 years ago with a single plane and has expanded to 18 airplanes for charter work. It has wheel and float craft and twin engine planes for executive charter.

The two biggest planes are DC-3s.

One month ago, the company was granted permission to begin flights from Vancouver to Burns Lake and from Vancouver to Deas Lake, the terminal point of the B.C. Railway.

The airbus concept is a new development in air service. Pacific Western Airlines has started a similar service between Edmonton and Calgary.

The airbus proposal will not compete with existing routes between Victoria and Vancouver as the morning flight will be from the mainland to Victoria.

However, Fraser Valley passengers who wish to go to Victoria would be able to take off from Abbotsford instead of driving in to Vancouver.

The proposal was unveiled in Victoria this week at a meeting of the transport committee of Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber board of directors was meeting today and was expected to vote support for the proposal.

Chamber manager Brian Small said the transport committee fully supported the proposed service on the basis of backing all business expansion that seemed to be for the good of the district.

MASSIVE PATCH-UP is carried out on freighter Aegean Sea, victim of collision in Juan de Fuca Strait Sept. 4. Yarrow's, conducting $500,000 repair job, is replacing steel hull plates from the bottom up, and will refloat ship over the weekend. Upper plates and inside work will be finished while the crippled freighter rides at anchor. The 11,300-ton Aegean Sea was badly mauled when she was rammed by the American freighter C. E. Dant. The collision left the two ships locked together 67 hours.

Blind Eye Claimed Over Bike Dealer

City police have been accused of turning a blind eye to the fact that a motorcycle dealer is using the public boulevard as an extension of his business premises — because police bikes are serviced there.

Commercial photographer John Barnard said today that the firm, Brooklands Motorcycle Sales and Service, 937 Fort, "laughs with impunity" when residents of the area complain about the nuisance caused.

"This is probably the worst example in Victoria of misuse of public property but the city police, who are the firm's main clients, never do anything about it," Barnard said.

By parking motorcycles on the Meares Street boulevard at the rear of its premises, the firm is enjoying the use of "20 or 30 square feet of untaxed city property," he charged.

Barnard noted that city council has expressed concern in recent months about the problem of commercial intrusion on to sidewalks by tourist-oriented businesses in the downtown area, but said problems on less busy streets are apparently ignored.

Because the boulevard outside the site was becoming churned up by the firm's activities, he said the city cemented over that portion "in sheer desperation," and it was now used regularly to park machines waiting to be serviced.

"It's one of those slow erosions of what used to be a pleasant street and is now becoming a dirty, nasty little area," he said.

(Shortly after 9 a.m. today, an employee of the firm was seen wheeling eight motorcycles on to the cemented section of the boulevard. Among them was police bike.

Colin Crisp, assistant to the city manager, said as far a he was aware no formal complaints about the matter had come to city hall.

However, a spokesman for the city engineer's department said the parking of machines at that spot was technically infringing the city's street traffic bylaw.

If the matter was drawn to the attention of the department it would probably be investigated. he said, adding that the police also have "power to act" in such situations.

Deputy police chief Ray Maitland said there was no substance to Barnard's claim that the police ignored the alleged infraction because department machines were serviced there.

"I have seen it on our reports where we have gone after the firm pretty strongly," Maitland said. "It's a matter of record that he has been warned and told he will be summonsed if the practice continues."

However, he said he was unaware of any recent complaints.

Reg Shanks, proprietor of Brooklands, was unavailable for comment today but an employee of the firm said he had not heard of any complaints from neighboring residents.

He said motorcycles were parked on "a concrete pad at the back of the shop." He admitted this formed part of the boulevard, but said the firm had paid for the cementing to be done.

EIGHT HERE DRAWN IN IRISH

Eight Victorians had tickets drawn Thursday on horses running in Saturday's Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket, England.

A ticket on the winning horse is worth about $120,000. Second prize is $47,000, third $24,000. Tickets on non-starters or horses which finish out of the money are worth about $1,000 each.

With horse's name, followed by ticket number and nom-de-plume, the local winner are:

None of the tickets is on Meadow Mint, an early 4-1 favorite to win the race.

Hockey's Finest Hour: Sweet and Sour

Euphoria from Team Canada's hockey triumph in Moscow interrupted and enlivened what was an unusually dull afternoon of debate on civic affairs at city hall on Thursday.

But not everyone had that uplifted feeling.

Both Ald. Mike Young and Mayor Peter Pollen had some harsh things to say about the general conduct of the Canadian team, Young calling it "deplorable" and Pollen "disgraceful."

It all started when Ald. Tom Christie rose to move that "Whereas the city of Victoria is a former holder of the Stanley Cup and has always been a keen hockey city," the mayor should send a telegram of congratulation to the team on their "brilliant and courageous come-from-behind victory" in Thursday's hockey game.

Christie said both the Russian and Canadian teams should also be congratulated on their "outstanding and exciting play" in the eight-game series.

When it came to voting on the motion, though, Young was a very obvious dissenter.

"I don't think our city ever held any championship for pugilism," he explained.

That prompted Pollen to remark that he would gladly entertain a motion questioning whether the team's "rough-house behavior" was really necessary.

"I think the behavior of our team was disgraceful," he said. "I know it's not good for votes, but to have our children watching people hitting each other on the ice is deleterious . . .

When Ald. Alf Hood pointed out that the Russian players were hardly blameless in the pugilistic sense, Young said he was not suggesting the fault lay only with the Canadians.

He cheered and jumped along with reporters as Paul Henderson scored the winning goal in the final minute.

After the game was over and the series won, Barrett exclaimed:

"The French couldn't do it, the Germans couldn't do it; now Canada has done it and they had better get out of town before it starts snowing."

Elevator Strike Shuts Down Jobs

A three-week strike by elevator constructors in most parts of Canada is preventing completion of some building projects in Greater Victoria.

C. S. Dumaresq, vice-president of Montgomery Elevators, said today his company has several jobs shut down in apartments.

"It is not the total project which is shut down, but we can't complete the elevator installation," he said.

He said several apartments in Esquimalt, a motel on Gorge Road, Spencer Castle in Victoria and an apartment in Ladysmith are affected in this way.

"As far as maintenance is concerned, we are at a standstill on preventative maintenance. But we are answering all emergency calls," he said.

The strike is against the Big Five elevator companies in Canada — Montgomery, Otis, Westinghouse, Armour and Turnbull Dover. Montgomery employs 17 of the 23 union members in Victoria.

The men belong to the International Union of Elevator Constructors and are on strike in every province except Alberta and Quebec. The walkout is expected to extend to these provinces when requirements of the separate acts regarding negotiations have been met.

Main issue is prefabrication of elevators, which the union fears would lead to a reduction of half the on-site work force. Other issues have not been disclosed.

New Charge Coming At Mayfair Barber

Belcauguered barber Carlos Almeida's Mayfair Barber Shop Ltd. will face a new charge in provincial court for remaining open Wednesdays.

Almeida's firm was found not guilty Thursday of contravening a municipal bylaw by remaining open Monday, July 10.

The company was originally charged by Victoria Barber's Union Secretary Len Stephenson under a 1958 bylaw which stipulates barber shops must close on Wednesdays.

Stephenson plans to lay the new charge under a 1964 bylaw which allows barbershop proprietors the option of choosing their own weekday closing date.

The judge ruled that unless formal application is made to operate under the 1964 optional closing day bylaw, the proprietors of a barber shop are automatically subject to the 1958 bylaw.

Alder said the former owners of the shop in 1964, exercised that option and chose Monday. He said since Almeida took over the shop there had been no formal application to continue to close Mondays so Mayfair Barber Shop Ltd. should be closing Wednesdays.

Since July 10 the shop has been open Mondays and Wednesdays.

During the trial defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood made numerous objections to prosecutor Peter Birkett's attempts to introduce various pieces of evidence saying his attempts were "an abuse of the procedure of the court."

Owen-Flood rose so often to object such evidence was hearsay and inadmissable that Birkett called him a "jack-in-the-box."

Stephenson said today he plans to lay a charge against Mayfair Barber Shop Ltd. under the 1958 bylaw if the shop is open next Wednesday.

"I have no choice," said Stephenson, "the judge said he has to close Wednesdays and the bylaw has to stand or it doesn't. I've spent a lot of time on this bylaw."

Ask the Times

Q. Where would I write to get a duplicate copy of my parents' marriage certificate? They were married in the province of Manitoba. Also how much would it cost? — M.G.

A. You have to write to the division of vital statistics, No. 104, 401 York Ave., Winnipeg 1, Manitoba. You must provide your parents' full names, including your mother's maiden surname, the date and place of the marriage. It will cost you $2.

SMOOTH SAILING FOR NIGHT RUNS

A spokesman for ferry workers said Thursday he could see no barriers to the proposed night ferries.

"We would have no objections," said Norman Thornber, business agent for the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

"We could co-operate in setting up a night sailing. However, we would want complete negotiations to determine conditions and this would have to be ratified by the membership."

Highways Minister Robert Strachan said Monday the government is studying costs of night ferries and asking crews if they want to man the extra schedules.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Our deepest appreciation to the Rev. W. E. Greenhaigh, officers and members of Temple Lodge No. 33 A.F. and A.M. for the impressive service and tribute paid to their late brother and our loved one. The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed but we want our many friends on the Island, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow. — Mrs. J. Stanley Dyke and family.

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbours to know how much their kind words, letters, floral offerings and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our only son Danny Noble. — Jim, Margie, Lorraine, Leslie and Margo Noble.

9 IN MEMORIAM

PHIPPS—William H., who passed away September 29, 1965.
Quietly remembered every day,
Sadly missed along life's way;
Just as you were, you'll always be,
Treasured in our memory.
—Missed by loving wife Charlotte, Annie and Bill.

WATTS — In loving memory of our dear grandparents, Charlie and Jean, who passed away suddenly Sept. 29, 1967.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today;
For the ones we loved so dearly
Have forever been called away.
We think of them in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.

'Unethical' Pros Beat Sportsmen

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians lost their hockey tournament against Canada's professionals, but Soviet sports writers insisted today the "myth of the Canadian pros' invincibility has been destroyed."

The eight-game series ended Thursday night when Team Canada defeated the Russians 6-5 in the decisive match, giving the professionals four wins, three losses and one tie.

The series was to have been a battle of giants: professionals vs. Soviet "amateurs." And with a defeat on its hands, the government-controlled press screamed "Foul play," "Hooliganism" and "Unethical playing."

The Canadians were repeatedly labelled "professionals," while the Russians came off as "Soviet sportsmen."

The labor union newspaper Trud found consolation in the Soviet squad's playing which "confirmed our greater mastery and higher level of our collective attack."

"But, it said, the Canadians won the last match only with great difficulty, using both prohibited and permitted methods."

The national sports paper, Soviet Sport, said the Canadians' "crudity" was probably due to the Russians "high velocity on the ice."

The "Soviet team began the final game with unusually high speed," the paper said, "and this was probably not expected by the Canadians, who therefore began to violate the rules."

Today's papers failed to note that there were seven Russian penalties to the Canadians' eight in the final game.

The defence ministry paper said the professionals "demonstrated their full set of hooliganistic acts and unethical attitude toward their opponents and tried too use their fists on the referees."

The government news agency Tass complained that "it was indeed difficult to explain by temperament the Canadians' methodical persecution of the leading Soviet players."

Following the sixth Moscow game Sunday, Tass said "one of the best forwards of the Soviet team (Valery) Kharlamov sustained a serious leg injury."

The forward, however, apparently recovered quickly enough to account for an assist in the final game Friday night.

COULD BE FINIS FOR HENRI

HALIFAX (CP) — Henri Richard, captain of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, says he is serously considering retiring from professional hockey at the end of this season.

The 36-year-old centre is playing his 18th season with the Canadiens. This is the last year of his current contract.

Bruins Tie Jets

WINNIPEG (CP) — New Westminster Bruins and Winnipet Jets battled to a 2-2 Western Canada Hockey League exhibition tie before about 200 fans Thursday night.

Exemption Is Name of Game

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — Pro golf's long season is winding down. Many of the game's stars are on extended breaks. Some are through for the season. Others are playing abroad.

But for a nervous handful of golfers, the season is entering its most important phase.

They're the players fighting for a spot among the top 60 money winners for the year, the list that determines the exempt players for next year.

"Being an exempt player is the name of the game out here," said rookie Allen Miller before teeing off today in the first round of the $100,000 Quad Cities Open.

Exempt players can enter any regular tour event they want and be assured of a spot in the field. Non-exempt players must survive Monday 6,501-yard, par 71 Crow Valley Golf Club course, there are only six more events this season.

qualifying rounds to gain their place in each tournament field.

It appears that it will take about $41,000 or $42,000 in official money winnings to make the exempt list this year.

With this tournament, which runs through Sunday on the

Pounders Leads

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Leon Pounders led the way with a four under par 67 Thursday in the first round of the $75,000 U.S. National Senior Open golf championship. Pounders, 55, held a one-stroke lead over Eric Monti of Los Angeles, Andy Anderson, Oklahoma City and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va.

Among those in a fight for exempt spots are veterans Ken Still, Bob Goalby, Art Wall, Charles Sifford and Dan Sikes.

Knudson is in Tokyo this week where he rates as a favorite in the Japan Open.

Tom Shaw and Dale Douglass, both exempt this year, are faced with the need to double their earnings in the remainder of the season.

Most are on hand for this event, which offers a $20,000 first prize.

British Open champ Lee Trevino is the favorite. Other top contenders include Jones, Jimmy Jamieson, Lanny Wadkins and defending titleholder Deane Beman.

Schoendienst Signs

Huge Welcome for Team Canada

Times News Services

As Canadians from coast-to-coast rejoiced Thursday over Canada's final-game win and ultimate series victory in the unofficial world series of hockey Prime Minister Trudeau announced in Ottawa that the country will lay on a welcome-home reception for Team Canada to rival VE-Day celebrations.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said in his telegram: "Congratulations. Magnifique. Your great team effort is an inspiring example to your country. Canadians are proud of you — the best hockey team in the world."

Outside the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, about 35 boisterous hockey fans waved Canadian flags and shouted "Esposito for Pope" and "Esposito for prime minister," then shook hands with embassy staff who ventured out into the crowd.

In St. John's, Nfld., one elementary school had pupils watching the game as part of their lesson.

Nurses reported in one hospital that radios were at a premium as all but the most seriously ill tuned in.

Most of the students in Toronto schools chose to watch the game after Ontario Education Minister Thomas Wells told school administrators Wednesday they were free to cancel classes if students wanted to watch the game.

Work even stopped on the Soviet freighter Almetyevsk in Toronto harbor. Captain Alexander Lokrovnikov gave his 41-man crew time off to watch the game on the ship's television.

"Yes, two hours off today," he said. "Very special."

JAIL BREAK SQUAD SET

OTTAWA (CP) — The solicitor-general's department is moving ahead with plans to set up a new security system that will include special squads inside Canada's 10 federal prisons to "smoke out and analyse" escape rumors.

The move follows a rash of prison breakouts in the last several months and a special study on security made by the RCMP and penitentiary officials.

Central to the plan are the "special security squads" that will work inside jails attempting to uncover and prevent break-outs.

NEWS BRIEFS

Hijacker Given Life Sentence

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Frederick William Hahneman was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday for hijacking a jetliner and bailing out over Honduras with $303,000 in ransom. U.S. District Court Judge Oren Lewis said he gave Hahneman the maximum sentence under the federal air piracy law to present an example to would-be hijackers.

Taiwan Severs Ties With Japan

Times News Services

Taiwan broke off diplomatic relations with Japan tonight as Japan and China formally announced they had established diplomatic ties after 35 years of hostilities.

A foreign ministry spokesman in Taipei labelled Japan's recognition of Peking a "perfidious action" and other sources said the Taiwan government plans to boycott Japanese imports for three months in retaliation.

The foreign ministry statement said Japan must assume full responsibility for the rupture of the ties and any consequences which may arise.

In a six-point joint communique, issued by Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, Japan recognized Peking as "the sole, legal government of China."

The Chinese reaffirmed that Taiwan is an "inalienable part" of their territory. Japan said it "fully understands and respects this stand of the government of China."

It also was decided they would hold negotiations for other agreements on trade, navigation, aviation, fishery and other areas.

Sources close to the foreign ministry said Taiwan authorities had expected Japan to not go any further than Canada and other countries who had merely stated that they "take note" of China's claim of sovereignty over the Nationalist Chinese-held island bastion.

The communique said "the abnormal state of affairs which has hitherto existed between the People's Republic of China and Japan is declared terminated on the date of publication of this statement."

The two governments also agreed to establish "durable relations of peace and friendship."

Bus Service Expansion Announced

Early expansion of the bus systems in both Victoria and Vancouver will be the first stage of a long-term effort by the government to handle transportation needs, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said today.

Lorimer told a press conference the cabinet has agreed, following a preliminary report from him, "that the time has come to make a choice between the automobile and transit."

Lorimer said the government has decided against building a third crossing of Burrard Inlet in Vancouver, to help prevent the lower mainland urban centre from being overrun with freeways and cars.

A "beefing up" of the bus system will be followed by "planning for the long-term transportation needs of the modern, growing urban centres."

He gave no details of what the short-term expansion of bus systems would entail, or the study of transit systems.

But he said he is open to discussions with local and regional governments, and agreed it might be feasible to make regional governments the owners of the bus system.

Lorimer's statement was welcomed by Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, which suggested to the Social Credit government some months ago that the region take over the B.C. Hydro with the help of government subsidies.

The offer never received any formal acknowledgment, and Curtis said today: "Now I'm hopeful that we have only one way to go — and that's ahead."

"I know there will be municipal and regional people ready, willing and quite able to discuss transit in a constructive, positive sense with the new minister."

However, Curtis said he fully appreciated the minister had a great deal on his plate and would be able to produce no quick solutions.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young said the decision sounded as though the city could now move into rapid transit.

MARCOS FIRES CIVIL SERVICE

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos today ordered the entire civil service corps of about half a million, including his cabinet, to submit their resignations no later than Oct. 15 in a sweeping effort to reform Philippine bureaucracy.

Marcos, who imposed martial law last Friday, said the only exceptions to his order were members of the Supreme Court, the auditor-general's office, the Court of Appeals and other constitutional officers.

The president moved first on the bureau of customs and bureau of internal revenue, both considered to be among the most graft-ridden in the government. Among those already fired, the president said, were 2,000 officers and men from the bureau of customs and 192 from the bureau of internal revenue, including a regional director.

Lewis Seeks Probe on CDC 'Family Ties'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judicial inquiry into alleged conflicts of interest within the government's Canada Development Corp. was demanded here Thursday by New Democratic Party leader David Lewis.

His call for an investigation followed a news report that one of the CDC directors, Douglas N. Kendall, is father of the president of a company in which the government corporation has invested $4.5 million.

Until last March — before the CDC purchase was made — Kendall was also a director of the company, Venturetek International Ltd., of Toronto. His son, Jeremy Kendall, is president of the holding company which specializes in high-risk investments.

The CDC was created two years ago by Parliament under a board of directors, mostly businessmen, who were to supervise the investment of both private and public money into Canadian enterprises. The $4.5 million purchase of Venturetek stock gives the CDC 35 per cent ownership.

The senior Kendall is still president of one of Venturetek's major holdings, Hermes Electronics of Halifax.

NDP researchers armed with an arsenal of statistical ammunition went to work soon after the report of the Venturetek deal appeared in a Toronto newspaper.

"With this development, the time has come to take a very close look at the links, or should I say chains, that bind government and big business together," said Lewis.

Besides Kendall, the New Democrat leader called a roll of five CDC directors, who Mr. Lewis alleges, are examples of "specific cases of conflict of interest."

Lewis also charged two members of the industrial incentive advisory board with conflict-of-interest for having senior positions with firms receiving grants.

They are:

—E. Kendall Cork, vice-president of Noranda Mines Ltd., which has been offered $3,522,000 in DREE grants and whose subsidiary, Gaspe Copper Mines, got $3,267,000.

—J. B. Estey, executive vice-president of National Sea Products Ltd., recipient of DREE grants worth $3,689,331.

Lewis also said M. W. MacKenzie, president of the government-owned Multiplex Corp. of New Brunswick, is in a conflict situation because he

Bomb Explodes In Jerusalem

Times News Services

JERUSALEM — A time bomb police said was planted by Arab guerrillas exploded in a crowded Jerusalem supermarket today and wounded three persons, one of them the wife of a Venezuelan diplomat.

It was the first bombing in the Holy City in two years and police said they suspected Arab guerrillas were behind the incident. A number of Arabs in the neighborhood were immediately detained for questioning.

All three women — Margarita de Ochoa, wife of the second secretary of the Venezuelan embassy, Rina Schwartz of the United States and Israeli student Dina Cohen — were released from hospital after receiving treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

The supermarket was crowded at the time of the explosion, with the normal pre-Sabbath crowds swelled by people buying for the last day of the Jewish festival of Tabernacles.

It was the scene of a previous guerrilla attack three days ago when two persons were killed.

Meanwhile, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat urged Palestinian leaders to form a government in exile and promised Egypt's immediate recognition for it.

Speaking to a Cairo rally marking the second anniversary of the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser, Sadat also reiterated his rejection of an interim peace settlement and direct negotiations with Israel. He indicated that Egypt's strained relations with the Soviet Union may be improving.

PoWs 'Recaptured' on Return

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three prisoners of war released by North Vietnam returned to the U.S. Thursday night and were whisked away to military hospitals, angering the anti-war activists who escorted them to freedom.

"What you just witnessed is a recapture scene, replacing one incarceration with another," Mrs. Cora Weiss, one of those who helped arrange the release of the three pilots, told newsmen. The anti-war group accused the Pentagon of jeopardizing future PoW releases by assuming immediate control of the men. The Pentagon declined to comment on the charges.

Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, 34, of Valdosta, Ga., was flown by medical evacuation jet to the U.S. air force hospital at Maxwell air force base in Montgomery, Ala.

Navy Lieut. Norris A. Charles, 27, of San Diego, Calif., was taken to a hotel near John F. Kennedy Airport for a family reunion, then flown to the Balboa naval hospital in San Diego.

The three men, wearing new uniforms they had donned on the flight from Copenhagen, descended from the rear door of the giant Scandinavian Air System (SAS) Boeing 747 looking fit but showing signs of stress.

Waiting relatives rushed to them, hugging and kissing them in an emotional reunion.

Elias, the only one of the three who spoke into a bank of microphones, said: "I would like to say I am happy to be home again and I am thinking about other people not yet home." His wife said, "I couldn't be happier."

Charles did not make any formal statement but told a reporter for a network of black radio stations that he was furious over the military's handling of their arrival. Charles, who was shot down over North Vietnam last December, was quoted as saying he had to "fight" before he was able to see his relatives awaiting him outside the plane.

The anti-war activists said Elias had asked to go to a hospital for a checkup, but Charles and Gartley had objected, maintaining they were in excellent health and did not require hospital care.

DEATH KISS BRINGS JAIL

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man was convicted Thursday of assault causing bodily harm in the death of a woman he struck when she bit his lip during a kiss.

Herman Fries was sentenced to nine months.

The woman, Leone Gail Merry, suffered a broken jaw when she was struck, but the court was told she died as a result of a rupture of a faulty vein in her brain.

Pathologist Dr. Thomas R. Harmon said an autopsy showed she had an aneurism, or weak spot, in the vein, a condition she had had since birth. He said the aneurism could have ruptured at any time in her life.

Canada's Midnight in Moscow

By DAN PROUDFOOT
Special to the Times

When the Canadian fans, more than 2,500 of them finished their anthem, they started the chant, "We're number one." The final score was 6-5 for the Canadians, and series victory with four wins, three losses and a tie.

Inside the Team Canada dressing room, there was a feeling of frantic pride. Not a lot of noise, no victory champagne, just a team of proud men making assertive statements.

"It was the biggest thrill of my career to be named to this team," said Henderson, the left winger who has skated four years with Toronto Maple Leafs to modest reviews, "the next biggest thrill was to make the team.

"And now, three winning goals in a row. Who can believe it?"

Henderson was correct. Team Canada came to Moscow with a losing record of one win, two losses and a tie.

In the first game here, Team Canada blew a three-goal lead and lost 5-4. But the Canadians won the three final Moscow meetings to take the eight-game series, and each time Henderson scored the winner.

Thursday night, Team Canada never led until it went ahead 6-5 in the final minute. Four times the Russians were ahead, but the National Hockey League selects kept coming back. The Russians had the beautiful plays, the Canadians had the grim determination and the startling efforts of such individuals as Phil Esposito, who scored twice and figured in all three goals of the third-period comeback.

Henderson and Esposito completed the series as the top scorers with seven goals each.

At the end of the game, Henderson's lawyer, Alan Eagleson, was yelling again, as after the previous game, at Leaf owner Harold Ballard. "This has to be worth $25,000, Harold," shouted Eagleson, who is seeking bonuses for both Henderson and his Leaf linemate Ron Ellis on the basis of their play for Team Canada.

Henderson's arrival on the ice for the goal-front pass from Esposito that won the series remains at least partially mystical.

The Leaf winger was on the bench when he saw the final minute ticking off on the Palace timeclock. "I don't know what it was, maybe a feeling, but I yelled to Harry (manager-coach Sinden) and asked him who was on the next shift. I as much as asked him to go. He said Ratelle.

"And then he turned around and said, no you go on.

Henderson found himself in front of Russian goaltender Vladislav Tretiak and in a scramble he fell down. He got up, he got in front again, and Esposito's centring pass arraved: 6-5. Game over.

The emotion goalkeeper Ken Dryden felt was largely relief. He had been guarding a 5-5 tie, which would have meant a tie in the series. "In a situation like that, a goal against means much more than any other time, so I couldn't help but feel nervous."

"This has to be bigger than the year we (Montreal Canadiens) won the Stanley Cup and I won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable individual of the playoffs."

Dryden's teammates considered the win as big as he did.

The game was emotional, for players and fans, from the fifth minute when Jean Paul Parise was penalized two minutes for interference, 10 minutes misconduct for banging his stick on the ice, and a game misconduct for threatening referee Josef Kompalla with his stick.

Kompalla was one of two referees from West Germany whom Team Canada attempted to keep out of the final game, but was allowed to officiate when a compromise over game officials was reached a few hours before game time.

With the announcement of Parise's game misconduct, a small bench soared on the ice from behind Team Canada's boards, courtesy of coach Sinden. Trainer John Forrisstall then threw a chair. The fans, convinced Team Canada was in for a night of penalties, chanted "let's go home."

Twenty-one seconds into the second period it seemed Canada might be determined to lose. When Yakushev shot hard, and high, the puck bounced off the trampoline-like netting behind the goal, went by Dryden, and right to Vladimir Shadrin who rapped it home for a 3-2 Soviet edge. Bill White then tied the score on a pass from Rod Gilbert before tht Soviets went ahead 5-3, and set the stage for the third-period heroics.

Early in that final period, Esposito was in front of Tretiak for Peter Mahovlich's passout. He gloved it, a foot off the ice, took a whack at the puck and scored with the second shot.

"That was the goal we needed," said Dryden, "one in the first 10 minutes. It meant we didn't have to take chances, we would work with the knowldege we're capable of scoring at any time."

Tretiak was prone on the ice 10 minutes later when Yvan Cournoyer tied the score from a scramble.

Another six and a half minutes passed before Henderson shot the winner.

That gave the Canadians a special midnight in Moscow.

An Incredible Finish As Canada Stood Still

It was incredible, but oh, so beautiful, on a day on which all of Canada stood still.

Team Canada came all the glorious way back on Thursday; and let's face it, the refereeing wasn't all that bad either.

This was game eight, for everything, in the Team Canada-Team Soviet world series of hockey, and Canada won it with a brilliant third-period display. If the Canadians hadn't shown that much class, or character, in Canada, they certainly emerged as almost the "complete team" in the Lenin Palace of Sports this past week.

They beat the Russians three games out of four, and those were the last three crucial games of the series. That took some character as they then trailed the Soviets three games to one, with one tied.

As it was Canada should have won Game 1 in Moscow, which they lost 5-4. But then perhaps they were fortunate in Game 3, which they won 4-3. That might have belonged to Russia.

Thursday, it was a beaut.

Two goals down at 5-3 going into the last 20 minutes, seemingly there was little hope. But suddenly Pete Mahovlich, a tough competitor in this game, took the puck behind the Soviet goal and, while falling, passed out to Phil Esposito.

The big centre popped it home and Canada was back in the game. Then Espositio set up Cournoyer, twice, and the second time Cournoyer made no mistake. Finally, it was Esposito, once more, this time to Paul Henderson. Two chances, and Henderson didn't need another. It was goal No. 6 for Canada, and just 34 cautious seconds from ultimate victory.

The honor and glory of hockey in all of Canada had suddenly been salvaged by a gritty display of guts and heart.

A fuss over officials almost saw the game blow up in the first four minutes, but frankly, Canada had no excuse for the actions of Jean-Paul Parisse who lost his cool, and was banished and properly so, for threatening a game official with his stick. And through the rest of the contest, it was fair enough for both clubs.

Besides, as expected, coach Harry Sinden of Team Canada said that no, Canada never did really plan to opt out of the final game. "We would never have pulled out of a game this size," he declared.

Henderson's dramatic goal, his third game winner in three successive games, put him in the extraordinary class, a step ahead of most of the others of Team Canada. Then what else? The visiting Canadian corps in Moscow literally erupted, and the ice was suddenly full of officials from Team Canada, and it was a heartwarming sight to see.

Still, if Henderson's emergence puts him as the instant hockey hero in Soviet eyes, Phil Esposito will never play a better hockey game, or a series. Throughout the eight games, he was a cut above everybody else on the ice. His nationalism showed, and on him it looked good. It also looked great in Moscow Thursday night because finally, this was a team at work, and it was playing for Canada.

So now there is a new respect for Canadian hockey in Russia, and Europe, which wasn't the feeling when Team Canada left Sweden following their exhibition series there. Everything then was in bad taste, including many of the hockey players. The visit to Stockholm had been a lark, nothing more, but it didn't help the image of the team or the country it represented. Then there were the four defections, for whatever reasons; and many Canadians now are probably wondering what Vic Hadfield, Gil Perrault, Richard Martin and Jocelyn Gouvremont are thinking about today. They gave up on Team Canada, and the coaches, in one form or another, and shouldn't ever be allowed to forget it.

Now it's all hail the winner — the best team won, the hard way; by coming from behind, away from home; by beating the Soviets on their bigger ice surface, where it was mooted they would be skated out of the rink; and by spotting Team Russia a two-goal lead, with only one period left to play.

That's how they got it all back. And saved face.

That took some fancy doing, and a show of pride in their own ability, and accomplishment. So maybe our life style isn't so bad, or so tarnished after all.

And if some Canadians on the ice, and on the bench, or in the stands, used language that was loud, even uncouth, so what now?

For the Russians they might have deserved better. Honestly, they were unfortunate not to have won this very first confrontation with the NHL. Call it lack of experience or call it moral right to crow a little. They gave the Canadians all they could handle, and then some.

"Those bastards are darn good hockey players," said Henderson.

The Russians can play in the NHL, anytime, especially Alexander Yakushav. He was a perpetual danger, and Valeri Kharmalov was the pick of the Soviet team until he was injured. They were as good as any Team Canada player in any honest appraisal of hockey ability.

There will be other stories today, from Moscow, telling all, but wouldn't it have been great to have been there, and enjoyed it as it happened?

As it was, in living color, on the big screen, it was pretty fantastic as well; and just as easy to take.

Excited? Not much. In keeping a running score on the game, when Canada tied it up at 5-5, the figures that came out were 10-10.

Besides, I swallowed an olive stone. How about you?

Toronto Fans Offer to Buy Car If Paul Doesn't Receive Award

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada will return to its training camp site Sunday night in a torchlight parade of cars from Toronto International Airport.

The players are expected to arrive from Prague, where they meet the Czechoslovakia team Saturday, aboard two flights Sunday afternoon.

The Air Canada planes are scheduled to land 35 minutes apart, the first at 5:35 p.m., and their route to Maple Leaf Gardens will be along streets where a maximum number of hockey fans can greet the returning players.

The public is being admitted to the Gardens on a first-come basis for the welcoming ceremony. The rink can accommodate 19,000 to 20,000 with use of seats on the ice surface.

A group of Toronto fans has already offered to purchase a car for Henderson if he doesn't receive the MVP award.

Meanwhile, the vanguard of nearly 3,000 Canadians who attended the four Russian games begins arriving here later today aboard the first charter flight out of Moscow.

In news of Team Canada from Moscow, a column by Ted Blackman in the Montreal Gazette says that coach Harry Sinden will return next week to Boston Bruins as general manager of the defending National Hockey League champions.

Blackman says that Bruins' president Weston Adams Jr. approached Sinden with the offer at the Team Canada camp in Toronto last month and Sinden accepted.

He is to rejoin the team which he coached to a Stanley Cup win in 1969-70 before quitting over a salary dispute, the report says.

The Gazette also says Pat Stapleton, all-star defenceman with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, plans to retire from hockey after Saturday's game aganist Czechoslovakia in Prague.

The newspaper says in a story from Moscow that Stapleton, a father of four, feels he's not spending enough time with his family, has grown tired of professional hockey and has enough other activities to assure him of a comfortable income.

Stapleton owns equity in two skating and hockey rinks in Chicago which produce an income in excess of $40,000 a year for him, the newspaper said.

Dowling Tops Squash Rankings

Victoria's John Dowling, who makes a bid for new honors in a tournament opening tonight at the Racquet Club of Victoria, turned in the best performance by a British Columbia player last season, according to rankings released by the Pacific Coast Squash Racquets Association.

Dowling, now a student at the University of British Columbia, was ranked first in B division and is thus required to compete in A section of all future tournaments. At 17, he is the youngest player in PCSRA history to earn this top tournament ranking.

Three Vancouver stars were listed in the A division ratings. Neil Desaulniers was placed fourth, George Morfitt sixth and Mike Jackson 10th.

Victoria's Doug Hawkes, who seldom misses a tournament, was ranked eighth in the veterans' B division and another Victorian, Guy Screech, was rated 10th in C class.

Morfitt will be defending his title when the annual Victoria invitational tourney begins tonight at the Racquets Club, with his toughest opposition expected to be provided by Dowling and Desaulniers.

Play in the tourney, which includes four men's divisions, two veterans' sections, a junior men's event and an open women's division, starts at 5:30 p.m.

Competition is scheduled Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and continues Sunday at 8:30 a.m., with finals expected to be concluded around 2:30 p.m.

Players Help Eagle Flee Cops' Grasp

Special to The Times

MOSCOW — Lawyer Alan Eagleson tussled with Soviet police again last night but with the help of Team Canada players he managed to escape across the ice like Little Liza.

"After Yvan Cournoyer scored in the third period they didn't put on the red light behind the Russian goal. I just wanted to go down to tell the referee.

"The next thing I knew I was on my way to Siberia."

A phalanx of Soviet police grabbed Eagleson and he was being bundled toward the exit when Team Canada players skated over to help him. Other players, including Bill Goldsworthy, jumped off the Canadian bench and raced across the ice too.

As some of the players poked their sticks over the boards, Eagleson suddenly emerged from the melee, scrambled on to the ice and crossed to the Canadian team's bench.

"All they know here is muscle," he said rubbing his arm. "I think there's something wrong with my arm the way they twisted it.

"They even bounced the Canadian Ambassader's wife, Mrs. Ford, when she was standing near the dressing room. The police don't care whether it's a man or woman."

As he talked, Eagleson alternated between anger at the police and joy with the team's victory. However, he was emphatic about any connection he might have with a future Team Canada.

"Never again! We took a lot of abuse during the series. I can think of only one Canadian sportswriter who stuck with us all the way, who always said we'd win the series. No, sir, I'd never do it again."

The goal light failed to shine for Cournoyer's score and Eagleson, the godfather of Team Canada in Moscow, strode from his seat in the direction of the official timers' bench, where a referee was reporting. Eagleson found himself surrounded by police or army officers, he knew not which. He called them goons. They were leading him along the boards to kick him out of the glorious sports palace when Peter Mahovlich noticed the proceedings.

"It was a break in play," said Mahovlich, "and I saw about 6,000 Commies with one guy. I figured he was a Canadian so it caught my eye. Then I saw it was Eagleson and I went a little crazy. 'Cause he's part of the team more than anyone.

Mahovlich jumped over the boards, stick flailing. Other Team Canada players, including several from the bench, followed to the side of the boards and Eagleson struggled free.

Eagleson slipped across the ice to the Team Canada bench, from where he watched the remainder of the game.

Somebody asked where Bobby Orr had been. The best player of the NHL not only missed the series with a sore knee, he missed the final game completely.

"I don't think B.O. was here," said Wayne Cashman, another Team Canada player reduced to spectating by an injury. "He got too emotional watching the earlier games and I think he stayed at the hotel to watch this one on television.

"Who can blame him? I would never watch another one in person. It's so tough on the nerves. I would be in jail seven times if I tried going through another without playing."

Athletics Clinch a Pennant By Climbing Out of a Hole

By The Associated Press

The happy Oakland Athletics and desperate New York Yankees were at opposite ends of an emotional see-saw today as baseball's 1972 season headed into its final regular week of play.

The Athletics, wearing the American League's West Division crown, were happy that they hadn't backed into the title and the Yankees, still nursing an outside shot at the AL's East title, were grateful that they hadn't backed out of their chance for the other division championship.

Oakland wiped out a seven-run deficit and clinched the West with an 8-7 victory over Minnesota Twins while the Yankees, peering at the fate of instant elimination, fought back for a 3-2 victory over Detroit Tigers.

MICKEY LOLICH

The Tigers' loss, combined with Boston's 3-1 victory over Kansas City Royals, moved the Red Sox 1½ games ahead of Detroit in the AL East scramble. Each team has six to play including a season-ending three-game series against each other.

The Yankees are third, 3½ games behind with five to play and idle Baltimore Orioles slipped to fourth place, four behind with five to play.

In the only National League game played Thursday, Philadelphia Phillies topped Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 as Steve Carlton became the eighth pitcher in major league history to strike out 300 batters in a season.

Oakland, trailing by seven runs in the first 4⅓ innings, tied the score on Angel Mangual's two-run single in the eighth inning.

In the ninth, leadoff batter Sal Bando was hit by a pitch and then circled the bases on Dal Maxvill's double for the winning run.

New York beat Mickey Lolich, dealing the Tigers a tough blow. In order to catch Boston, Detroit will have to win two more games than the Red Sox of the six that both teams have left.

The loss left Lolich with a 21-14 record — 4-8 since the all-star game.

Canucks Strike Quickly

By The Canadian Press

Greg Boddy and Brian McSheffrey scored less than two minutes apart early in the third period Thursday night to break a 4-4 tie and send Vancouver Canucks to a 6-5 win over Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League exhibition game at Vancouver.

In the only other game, Mike Murphy snapped in his own rebound to give St. Louis Blues a 3-3 tie at Philadelphia against the Flyers.

Hornets Breeze; Invaders Tested

Saanich Hornets breezed to a victory Thursday at Royal Athletic Park to take over sole possession of second place in the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League, but the front-running Oak Bay Invaders had a rugged battle with Cowichan Chiefs before extending their undefeated streak.

Hornets romped to a 26-0 lead in the opening half and coasted to a 45-12 triumph over the winless Juan de Fuca Tigers. Ed Murray, booting two field goals and three conversions, and Chris Grew, who collected two touchdowns, paced the Hornet attack.

Invaders needed a spectacular scoring effort from split end Rob Parris to run their victory skein to five games with a 10-1 decision over the stubborn Chiefs.

Parris scored a touchdown on a 110-yard pass-and-run play and added the convert to give Invaders a 7-0 lead in the first half. Parris connected for a field goal in the second half while the Invader defence held the Chiefs to a single.

British Lead Race For Rich Golf Pot

TURNBERRY, Scotland (UPI) — Four British Ryder Cup stars moved clear of overseas challengers Thursday as Europe's richest golf tournament, the $150,000 John Player Classic, reached the half-way stage.

The 36-hole leader was Peter Townsend who carded a one-under-par 70 on the 7060-yards, par 71 Scottish links for a two-round total of 135, seven under par.

One stroke back was Welshman Brian Huggett, the first-day leader, who added a 72 to Wednesday's record 64.

Tony Jacklin had the day's best score of 68 to move into a tie on 137 with Peter Oosterhuis, who had a 69.

Bespectacled Tommy Aaron was the top-placed man from a strong American contingent after a 69 for 140.

Storm Hits First Round

Gilbert played in the same threesome with tournament favorite Lee Trevino, who had a 69.

City Players Dominate B.C. Hockey Side

Players from the Victoria area dominate the 12-member British Columbia second team that will be competing this weekend in the University of Alberta's invitational women's field hockey tournament at Edmonton.

Eight Victorians — Joan Peggs, Lis Dixon, Lesley Ker, Sue Moillet, Pam Temple, Sarah Angus, Maxine Harris and Kelly Shepard — are listed on the roster along with Vancouverites Linda Westlund, Barb Weston, Jean Sparling and Joan Corcoran.

Opening games Saturday in the two-day tourney will send the B.C. seconds against University of Calgary and University of Saskatchewan.
